ITALIANS REPULSE MASSED ATTACKS AT MONFENERA

FOE CONCENTRATING THERE

BERLIN REPORTS GAINS HELD

ROME, Nov. 20.—The struggle between the Austro-Germans and the Italians on Monte Tomba and Monte Monfenera, in the mountainous region of Northern Italy, continues, it was officially announced today by the Italian War Department. The invading forces were driven back four times when they attempted to take the Italian positions on the Monfenera Spur.

The text of the statement reads:

The struggle begun on the Monte Tomba-Monte Monfenera front Saturday night is continuing fiercely. The enemy four times interrupted the bombardment of our positions on the Monte Monfenera spur to launch his masses against them. Each time our troops, with courage beyond all praise, drove them back.

In the Meletta region (east of Asiago,) our parties yesterday continued the local offensive operations, which on Sunday and Monday altogether gained us 306 prisoners, including six officers, five machine guns, and several hundred rifles.

On the Piave front, on the islet in front of Folina, three machine guns and several rifles were taken.

Our bombarding airplanes repeatedly and effectively bombed enemy columns in movement along the road in the Lower Piave Valley, in the region of Quero. During the night airships dropped several bombs on enemy bivouacs at Torre di Mosto and in the neighborhood of the Motta di Livenza Bridge, which was damaged. Two enemy machines were downed.

Italians Fail on Tomba, Berlin Says.

BERLIN, Nov. 20, (via London.)—Strong Italian counterattacks against positions captured on the northern slope of Monte Tomba, on the mountain front near the Upper Piave, were unsuccessful, the War Office announced this afternoon. Heavy firing continues in this sector.

The text of the afternoon statement follows.

Strong Italian counterattacks against the positions captured by us on the northern slope of Monte Toma led yesterday to desperate fighting. The fire of our artillery and machine guns thinned the ranks of the enemy, who stormed in close masses, and our infantry drove him back into his former positions. Strong firing continues in this fighting sector.

On the Lower Piave there was nothing new to report.

Heavy Fighting in the North.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 19, (Delayed.)—The enemy is concentrating his attack on the north, and very heavy fighting is in progress south of Quero, where large enemy masses are attacking the Italian positions on Monte Fenera and Monte Tomba.

VICTORS ON THE PIAVE CAN'T BURY AUSTRIANS

By The Associated Press.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 19, (Delayed.)—The Associated Press correspondent today made a tour of thirty miles along the Piave battlefront, visiting Zerson, Fagare, and the Sega Mill, where desperate fighting has occurred, and saw the Duke of Aosta, commander of the Third Army, guarding the Piave line, whose men hurled the Austrians into the river and re-established the solidity of the Piave front. At the moment the Duke was issuing an address to his army, congratulating it on its glorious achivement.

An officer from General Staff Headquarters accompanied the correspondent, and, although the headquarters of the Third Army were reached at an early hour, the Duke was coming out to proceed along the front. He held in his hand a war map, which he consulted with his aids before giving directions for the route to be traveled.

It was a striking picture as the Duke stood there studying the map. He is tall, of athletic build, with gray hair and mustache, and face bronzed by exposure. He wore the service uniform of high command, with boots, spurs, and an overcoat edged with black fur. He acknowledged cordially the salutes of the correspondent's party, and a Colonel of his staff explained conditions along the line.

Everywhere, the Colonel said, the enemy had been thrown back except at the brink of the river at Zenson, where a few men were huddled in the bushes, unable to go forward or backward, and were being slowly cut to pieces. At

Burn Venice, Gabriele d'Annunzio Urges, Rather Than Yield It to the Austrians

By PERCEVAL GIBBON.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VENICE, Monday, Nov. 19, (Delayed.)—I had a conversation with Gabriele d'Annunzio, who since the beginning of the war has been in some sense the mouthpiece of his country. Never in modern times of war has a poet had such universal acclaim and recognition as he from the army of which he is a part and the people of whom he is one. He spoke of Piave first.

"It must, henceforth, be the only river in Italy," he said, "only a sweet water at which the Italian may slake his thirst. The Po, the Tiber, even—we must know nothing of them. The Mincio—never heard of it. It is the Piave which is our secret stream, where we must assemble our strength, the power and passion of our resistance, our patriotism and our hate, so that never, never, never shall the enemy cross this new and holy frontier into our holy land. I am going there myself tomorrow, into the very front line, I must plunge both my hands into those water."

He spoke of the men. He said he had seen wounded men as debonair as the first who had been wounded in the hours of victory; and then he spoke of Venice. It was then one could comprehend the power he wields over his fellow countrymen, for his dilettantism fell from him, and burning passion sounded in his voice.

"Austrians to walk in the piazza of San Marco!" he cried. "I cannot think of it. It is agony! It is the ultimate horror, not alone for the fact of it, but for all that it signifies. It must never be! Now, if ever, we Italians must experience the resurrection of our great qualities. We must make a great and immortal gesture, one which shall thrill the world. Rather than devote those stones to the tread of Austria let us fire the city! Let that beauty, that inspiration, perish in a fire whose glow shall illuminate the pages of your history for all time! Better that than to surrender it!"

The guns are still loud in the distance, and the "All safe" signal of the current raid has not yet been given. War is creeping upon Venice; its fires are burning ever nearer. It is the waters of the Piave that must quench them, and the news that comes hither tonight is good.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS CALL FOR REPRISAL

DECLARE FOR AUTONOMY

Will Not Join Old Parties and Will Make Federal Amendment Test of Candidates.

A brilliant gathering of women and men made Victory Night in the Metropolitan Opera House last evening a joyful climax to the first day's session of the forty-ninth annual convention of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party. Whether thye were giving a great ovation to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and applauding his demand for national enfranchisement and his appeal that they recognize their new power not as a privilege, but as a solemn obligation and dedicate themselves, united, to war service, or whether they were rejoicing with the venerable Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the women created for the occasion an atmosphere of genuine happiness.

There were moments when unexpected incidents dampened the ardor, but just before Colonel Roosevelt rose to speak the audience, in pledges from the floor, gave more than $10,000 toward the deficit in the victory campaign chest, and serenity was restored.

Governor Whitman, sharing with Colonel Roosevelt, and Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, who presided, the honors of the evening, probably was unconscious that he was responsible for the most awkward moment of the evening. Seemingly the Governor had not been apprised of the convention proceedings and was unaware that in his speech he was denouncing the very program of political reprisal which the women seemed determined upon.

The Executive Board at the afternoon session proposed a reorganization of the party along Congressional district lines, so that it might maintain its autonomy and concentrate its energies on the drive for the national amendment. This was followed by recommendations that every Federal and State officeholder who had opposed suffrage in the past be disciplined, and that the young power of the women be brought to bear upon would-be legislators and Congressmen of the future, so that none such should win office who would not indorse the Federal suffrage amendment.

Whitman Touches Tender Spot.

The convention did not act upon these recommendations, but the speeches of Mrs. Whitehouse and others showed that the board had only voiced the practically unanimous determination of the leaders, and the acquiescence on the floor was interpreted generally as meaning that the prepared program would go through, perhaps with no opposition, today.

These afternoon proceedings explain why there came over the House an antagonistic silence when Governor Whitman said:

"I am going to speak just a moment politically provided you won't leave the room. Republicans and Democrats and Socialists all—that is, all parties, contain representatives who voted for woman suffrage. I presume there were members of all those parties who voted against woman suffrage. The women of this State are under no obligation to support any party or any man because he voted for woman suffrage. If I had believed that the women of this State would support or vote for any man as a candidate for public office merely because he supported woman suffrage I would not have voted for woman suffrage. If I believed that they would refuse to support a man worthy for public office merely because he was opposed to woman suffrage I would not have supported it either."

Again the group of women leaders on the platform looked nonplussed when from all parts of the great auditorium a minority, too manifest to be ignored, applauded assertions that the growth of Socialism in New York City had contributed largely to the suffrage victory.

Dr. Shaw failed to win a warm response from a sympathetic house when she urged that while persisting in their campaign for national suffrage the women should go to Congress not with a threat but with a plea.

The proscenium arch was draped with the national colors, and a great yellow electric sign against a backdrop of soft blue blazed forth: "Victory, New York, 1917," when Mrs. Whitehouse and her fellow laborers walked upon the stage. James Lees Laidlaw, Chairman of the Men's Committee and the only man on the platform until Colonel Roosevelt and the Governor came, got a special welcome. The orchestra played a noisy "Star-Spangled Banner," to which the gathering responded.

Mrs. Whitehouse started the proceedings with a denial that suffragists were pro-German, asserting that when the

CALL ON STATES FOR MEN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The most complete machinery used for the purpose by any nation will be erected by this Government to enforce the President's proclamation to put down destruction of property by enemy influences. It was learned today that President Wilson is firm in the view that one of the most important tasks of the Government at present is to destroy the malign alien influences crippling industry. A force of at least 100,000 men will be needed.

Acting under the President's direct orders, Secretary of War Baker today instructed the Bureau of Militia Affairs that it would be the central organization authorized to execute the plan for watching enemy aliens and enforcing the President's proclamation. These seasoned regular officers are instructed to create a guard to protect the prohibited area around warehouses, piers, and shipping points, and to be the eyes of the nation in the enforcement of the registration of Germans.

Regular army men will be used as guards in some instances, but as far as possible Home Guards, State Constabulary, and municipal police will be employed in guarding the prohibited districts and in enforcing the registration and other provisions of the proclamation. Under the terms of the proclamation the Attorney General is authorized to protect all industries within three miles of a river or navigable stream. In this zone are most of the war industries and shipyards.

States Are Asked for Help.

Secretary of War Baker today instructed Colonel Jesse C. Carter, Acting Chief of the Bureau of Militia Affairs, to confer with State Adjutant Generals and learn how large a force each State can furnish and is willing to contribute. Secretary Baker emphasized the point that the States are not required to furnish such protection, but it is hoped that the different home guard organizations will gladly volunteer and act under Federal direction.

In a letter to Adjutant Generals, Colonel Carter, after calling attention to the President's proclamation and the necessity for prompt and effective carrying out of the regulations, asks these questions:

"What forces are now available in your State for this duty?

"Are there any forces sufficiently strong to do the work effectively?

"What facilities are available for the transportation of State guards?

"What do you see in your State that needs more effective policing?

"What facilities seem to be menaced by an alien population?

"Will there be any objection to having State guards or troops under the direction of the Bureau of Military Affairs?

"Will State guards and State constabularies object to being employed in the enforcement of the President's proclamation?"

In the larger cities the police will be asked to aid in different ways, but it is thought that in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and West Virginia the Home Guards are strong enough and sufficiently well organized to do effective police duty in the enforcement of the proclamation.

It was learned today that one of the first moves to be made in Congress would be the introduction of an amendment to Section 4,067 of the Revised Statutes, which defines as alien enemies males above 14 years of age. Because of the inhibition of this law, the President could not compel the removal of German women from the District of Columbia and the Panama Canal Zone.

It is well recognized that the allies of Germany, not yet recognized as ene-

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The American destroyer Chauncey, which has been engaged in naval patrol duty and the U-boat hunt in foreign waters, has been sunk in collision, according to an announcement made by the Navy Department today on the basis of a brief cablegram from Vice Admiral Sims, who said that probably twenty-one lives were lost.

"The Chauncey," said the official announcement, "a small American destroyer on patrol duty in foreign waters, was sunk in a collision early Monday morning. First dispatches indicate that twenty-one lives were lost. Further information will be made public when full reports are received."

The Chauncey was one of the old type of destroyers, completed in 1902, and displaced 420 tons, less than half the displacement of the newer and speedier destroyers now being built. Her complement was ninety-one officers and men.

For several years before the war the Chauncey was used only in coast defense work, and was classified as a coast torpedo vessel. She was built in Philadelphia.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Lord Northcliffe granted me an interview this morning, and the statement which follows herewith is the first cabled with his authority to an American newspaper since his return here.

"There is much interest in the United States in the mention of your name as a possible successor to Lloyd George," I suggested.

"That is mere Fleet Street nonsense," replied Lord Northcliffe. "We have a live wire at the helm. Unfortunately, a good many of the officers of his ship of state are shirt fronts and rubber stamps."

Lord Northcliffe was speaking in the London offices of the British War Mission—a seventeenth century building beneath the great shadow of the tower of the House of Lords, and a very marked contrast to his offices at 681 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and the Munsey Building, Washington. He was lamenting the absence of steam heating and pointing out that after the consumption of 100 pounds of coal in a mediaeval fireplace the temperature of the room had not been raised to 50 degrees.

"The situation in Great Britain," said Lord Northcliffe, "is no better understood in the United States than the American position is here in London. First, realize that not one Englishman in a hundred has any idea of the powers of the President. He is regarded by most Englishmen as the Prime Minister, and our Prime Minister is removable by a single adverse vote in the House of Commons. It is not understood here that the President has supreme authority over the army and navy. Thus, when his hurry-up call came to London yesterday morning in the shape of his message to Colonel House as to the essential needs of an interallied council, only two newspapers in London featured the message, and most of them buried it at the bottom of the column under small two-line heads.

"Do-Nothings" and "Deadheads."

"It is realized that the President is a man of great determination, clarity of vision and fair-mindedness. It has become apparent in the last six months that his character is in marked contrast to the do-nothings and obstructionists in our Cabinet whose inertia compelled me to refuse the high Cabinet position offered me by Lloyd George.

"The situation here is that a number of political back numbers are playing politics. They will not succeed. The other situation is that, with all his virility, vitality, and industry, the Prime Minister, Lloyd George, is not equal to the double task of fighting the enemy abroad and the deadheads of his own Cabinet, who are 'laying down on him.' Sooner or later he must reconstruct his Cabinet.

"The men who really run our Government are Lloyd George, Lord Milner, and General Smuts. Churchill is wiping out his Gallipoli blunder by great activity in shell production. He is proving an excellent Minister of Munitions, and if he does not start interfering with war strategy will eventually regain public confidence.

"The allegations that Lloyd George is plotting against our great Commander in Chief, Sir Douglas Haig, are untrue. The public have supreme confidence in our proved military leader, and would not tolerate interference by any politician, even our Prime Minister himself. I am in favor of a War Council that should meet continually, at which the actual heads of the various armies should be present, not merely representatives, and I believe that Haig, Pershing, Pétain, and Diaz should meet at some suitable place in France at least once a week.

"The modern General has no need to be actually with his army in these days of telephones and telegraphs. Haig could just as easily conduct his opera-

Berlin and Stockholm Have Report Which May Be German 'Feeler.'

STORY OF KERENSKY SUICIDE

RUSSIANS IN FRANCE REBEL

Mutiny, Fomented by Maximalists in May, Put Down by French Cannon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 20.—The Tidningen, an important and responsible newspaper here, learns that information has reached Stockholm through diplomatic channels, though not through the Swedish Foreign Office, that Russia's official participation in the war is not far from its ending.

The report is to the effect that the people are utterly tired of war and that Russia must be regarded as standing before an immediate peace.

The foreign legations in Petrograd are said to be protected by Polish soldiers.

A rumor has wide currency in Petrograd that Kerensky shot himself at Pskoff. Another rumor is that the Entente Ambassadors are leaving Petrograd.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 20.—The Berlin correspondent of the National Tidende learns that the German Government has received information by an indirect route that the Russian Maximalist Government has declared Russia out of the war.

The correspondent ascribes his information to a competent source, and later in the dispatch indicates that it was received from a military quarter, where, he says, the belief is now held that the prospects for a "peace of conciliation" are far better than before.

He adds a long statement on the military situation, intended to indicate that the Entente might as well give up all hope of defeating Germany and come to terms with the Central Powers.

The whole dispatch gives the impression of having been carefully prepared officially for the correspondent and may be regarded as a feeler.

Nothing has been heard in usually well informed Danish quarters with regard to the report. A Dane, who, better than most of his countrymen, is in a position to judge the sentiment of both England and Germany, told The Associated Press today that he expected a long continuation of the war.

German Socialists Back Bolsheviki.

Philipp Scheidemann and Friedrich Ebert, German Socialist leaders, before large meetings in Dresden and Elberfeld yesterday, launched a campaign designed to force the German and Austrian Governments to abandon their present plans for annexations under the guise of protectorates over Poland, Lithuania, and the Baltic provinces, and accept the peace offer of the Russian Bolsheviki.

Herr Scheidemann said Germany would be endangered and the proposed general disarament and lasting peace would be placed in jeopardy if Russia should be forced by German pressure to become a military State. He expressed pleasure at the general condemnation which he said was being made manifest within the Central Empires of the plan to make the Austrian Emperor King of Poland and invest the German Emperor with the authority of Duke of Courland and Prince of Lithuania.

Ebert, like Scheidemann, proposed resolutions of solidarity with the Russian Maximalists, and said that German labor must do its duty to force the Government to make an unambiguous, affirmative answer to the proposals of the Bolsheviki.

FRENCH CANNON END RUSSIAN CAMP MUTINY

Muscovites Rebelled Against Allies in May—Were Finally Subdued in September.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—An interesting official report of a mutiny of Russian troops in France has been published by the Provisional Government in the Russian press. Details of the report are reprinted here in the Manchester Guardian.

Soon after the revolution had broken out in Russia there appeared in Paris a number of newspapers of most extreme views. These papers reached the Russian troops in France and there began a frantic Maximalist propaganda, so it was not surprising that serious agitation sprang up among the troops which vented itself in unpleasant hostility toward their officers. Finally a mutiny broke out.

On order of Kerensky, the Minister of War, Commissary Rapp proceeded to the Russian troops on May 18. He reviewed the different units and made some changes in their organization, but the ferment continued none the less. The First Brigade refused to go on manoeuvres, explaining that it was use-

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Monday, Nov. 19.—Life goes on in an unintelligible way, defying bold plots and amazing negations, cheating all prophets and baffling all calculations. Trains still run, the electric light still burns, tradesmen still hand over goods in return for scraps of paper that are called money, and even the postman does his daily round.

There is no Government in Russia yet. Russia still exists by force of habit, by virtue of some common irrefutable, irrational belief. There is bitterness and wrath and futile bloodshed. There is conflict that is furious but diffuse, violent up to within an ace of a decisive point, perpetually and desperately inconclusive. If only one could point to a man or a group and say, "Here is hope of salvation, here is promise of a new day!" But there is no concentration as yet, no visible organizing centre.

I hear Socialists talking gloomily, depressed beyond all measure, contemplating the wreck of all their hopes, bewailing their own errors, loathing their own verbiage, and taking refuge in a lingering instinct of patriotism that for months they have passionately denied. I listen to them, but they proffer now no solution. They are afraid of the Bolsheviki and afraid of a dictatorship, and yet half inclined to make common cause with some of the Bolsheviki even now against the coming dictator wherever and whoever he may be.

Here in Petrograd the City Council have ceased negotiating with the Bolsheviki—who, in fact, never displayed any real willingness to negotiate—and are casting about for some democratic method of checking civil war and tiding over the period of anarchy till some central authority can be established. They proposed summoning a kind of new pre-parliament of representatives of local government bodies, and now they have decided to proceed energetically with the elections to the constituent assembly.

How elections can be held with the country in its present state it is difficult for an outside observer to understand, but the Petrograd City Council thinks if only half the constituencies elect, if only half the Deputies turn up in Petrograd, that, at any rate, will serve as a nucleus for the re-establishment of a central power. It seems a fantastic hope.

And in the meantime the ordinary administrative business of Russia is at a standstill, or rather there is no co-ordinating and directing power, and in default of instructions, local administrators are living on the resources of habit and on their wits. The process of disorganization goes on apace. The problems of food and fuel grow daily more menacing. Further anarchy and starvation loom ahead. It is a matter of continual astonishment that anything or any one works at all, that shops and banks do open, that we can send and receive telegrams, that draymen rise in the morning early and go about their daily work. The Russians are certainly at bottom a most extraordinarily law-abiding people, considering continual opportunity for and provocation to excess.

Outside Petrograd now there is a considerable force of infantry, cavalry, and artillery somewhere between Luga and Gatchina. From all accounts they are against the Bolsheviki, but demand a coalition Socialist Ministry. The Bolsheviki yesterday sent out the Red Guard and soldiers to meet them, but it seems to be doubtful whether there will be any real fighting, for the simple reason that both sides have very obscure notions of who or what to fight for.

As to Kaledines, whom Petrograd Socialists regard as the dreaded coming dictator, only faint rumors filter through as to his actions and plans. It seems tolerably certain that he secured complete control of the Donetz mining area, where he established industrial committees, consisting each of two representatives of the workers, two of employers, and one of the Cossacks. What is known of his methods does not sound excessively dictatorial, and it is said he demands a Constituent Assembly to meet in Moscow.

The problem of Russia's future is now a matter not for speculation but for liveliest imagination, and the probabilities are fantastic. Here one has the impression that the Petrograd period of Russian history has come to an end.

HAIG STARTS DRIVE ON SOMME FRONT

TAKES CAPTIVES AND BOOTY

Berlin Admits Ground Lost on Roads to Cambrai, but Is Taking 'Counter Measures."

LONDON, Nov. 20.—British forces on the Somme front, between St. Quentin and the Scarpe, carried out a series of attacks early this morning which are described by Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in his report issued tonight, as having had "satisfactory results." War material in considerable quantity was captured from the Germans, and a number of prisoners were taken.

Referring to the same operations, the supplementary night report issued in Berlin says that the British "attacked with strong forces and gained ground," adding that the German countermeasures "are in full swing."

The text of the British night bulletin follows:

Soon after daybreak this morning we carried out a series of operations between St. Quentin and the Scarpe. These operations have been conducted with satisfactory results. A considerable quantity of material and a number of prisoners have been taken, but no estimate can yet be given.

The weather has become stormy and wet, rendering action by our aircraft very difficult. The hostile artillery has been active at a number of points on the Ypres battlefront, particularly in the neighborhood of Zonnebeke and Passchendaele.

In his afternoon bulletin Field Marshal Haig said:

Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire troops made a successful raid last night east of Fampoux. In the region of Wytschaete a raiding party of Germans was driven off by our fire.

BERLIN, Nov. 20, (via London.)—The supplementary report from General Headquarters tonight says:

There was lively artillery activity at Poelcappelle and Passchendaele, (Flanders.)

In the region between the roads leading from Bapaume and Peronne toward Cambrai, the British attacked with strong forces and gained ground. Our countermeasures are in full swing.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The Chamber of Deputies this evening gave a vote of confidence to M. Clemenceau, the new Premier, by 418 to 65.

M. Clemenceau read to the Chamber the Ministerial declaration which had been decided upon by the new Cabinet. In the Senate the document was read by Louis Nail, the Minister of Justice. The declaration was as follows:

"We have accepted places in the Government in order to conduct the war with redoubled effort, for the better application of all our energies. We come before you with the sole idea of an integral war.

"We would like that the confidence which we shall ask you to give us be your own conscientious action, and we appeal to the historic virtues that exist in us French. Never did France feel so clearly the need to live and develop in the idea of force placed at the service of the human conscience—in the resolve progressively to advance the right, both as among individuals and as between peoples capable of establishing their liberties.

"'Conquer that justice may prevail'—that is the watchword of all our Governments since the beginning of the war. That program, open as the sky, we shall maintain.

PREMIER'S PLEA TO MISSION

ASKS ALL TROOPS POSSIBLE

SEVERE FOOD RESTRICTIONS

Will Be Imposed in Britain Soon—Counts Heavily on Aircraft.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Addressing members of the American War Mission and his followers among the leading representatives of the British Government at a historic conference held in Downing Street today on the prosecution of the war, Premier Lloyd George emphasized the importance of the American shipbuilding and military programs.

The Prime Minister told the mission that the collapse of Russia and the reverses to Italy "made it even more imperative than before that the United States send as many troops as possible across the Atlantic as early as it can."

The Premier said he wished to recognize the eager earnestness with which the people of the United States were throwing themselves into the great task. He expressed absolute confidence that the great democracies now marching shoulder to shoulder would utterly overthrow the menace which threatened the liberty of the world.

In opening his speech, the Prime Minister said:

"It is a source of great satisfaction to my colleagues and myself that this gathering of two nations, now equally dedicated to the common task of defending the liberties of the world, should take place in the very room in which the statesmen of an earlier and less enlightened period committed the blunders which had estranged them.

"This conference is a business gathering—the culmination of hard, patient, unobstrusive work done between the members of the mission and the various British departments. Its purpose is to determine how the United States can best co-operate with Great Britain and the other Allies.

"Like Britain, the United States is a pacific power and she, therefore, has had to build up a war organization from the start. In doing so she can learn from many mistakes which Britain made. Two of the most urgent matters today are man power at the fronts and shipping.

Send Troops as Soon as Possible.

"The collapse of Russia and the recent reverses of Italy make it even more imperative than before that the United States should send as many troops as possible across the Atlantic as early as possible. I am anxious to know how soon the first million men can be expected in France."

The Premier explained that British shipping was now wholly employed in war work, partly for the Allies, partly on the British account, and added:

"Assuming that the submarine situation gets no worse, the easing of the position of the Allies depends entirely upon the dates on which the American program for the launching of the 6,000,000 tons of shipping, promised for 1918, comes into practical effect. I have no doubt that with the largest industrial resources of the world, a most highly trained and adaptable industrial population, and an exceptional national gift of organization, the accomplishment of America in the matter of shipbuilding will astonish everybody."

Dealing with the airplane situation, the Premier said:

"Command of the air in the battle line is almost as essential as command of the sea. The people of the United States possess to an unusual degree qualities of enterprise and daring necessary to the creation of successful airmen. The American climate also lends itself to the development of the air service, because it is clearer and more equable than the climate of the British Isles. This is of special value, because the training of pilots, the creation of flying units, and the building of airdromes are as essential to the creation of an air service as the building of airplanes themselves."

Referring to food, the Premier said that the Allies were becoming increasingly dependent upon what the North American Continent could produce, and economize in the use of food. He assured the mission that the most drastic restrictions were about to be imposed upon the people of the British Isles, partly in order to assist the Allies, partly in order to leave more room for the carriage of men and munitions to the battle fronts. The Premier said that he regarded the tightening of the blockade as of next importance.

"Close co-operation between the United States and the powers of Western Europe can bring still greater economic pressure to bear on the Central Powers during the war," he said.

The Premier then thanked the mission

Benson Speaks for America.

In reply, Admiral Benson, on behalf of the mission, said that the mission was learning many lessons from the Allies. He expressed the gratitude of its members for the manner with which all sources of information had been thrown open to them.

"The United States is heart and soul in the war," he said, "and the country absolutely indorses the statement of President Wilson that none of its resources would be spared, its men and ships, or work, in order to win the war."

Admiral Benson then gave the conference information as to what the United States had done and was doing, not only in training armies, in building fleets, and in the manufacture of munitions, but in food economy and the construction of aircraft.

Practical Results Achieved.

The Premier's speech opened the discussion, which, beginning about noon, continued for an hour and a half. The session, of course, was behind closed doors. At the close one of the conferees said that a spirit of the greatest earnestness and unity permeated the meeting and that the most important practical results were achieved.

The American representatives present included General Tasker H. Bliss, Chief of Staff; Admiral William S. Benson, Chief of Naval Operations; Thomas Nelson Perkins, member of the Priority Board; Dr. Alonzo Taylor, representing the Food Controller; Bainbridge Colby of the United States Shipping Board, Oscar T. Crosby, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Vance McCormick, Chairman of the War Trade Board. Colonel E. M. House, head of the mission, was not present. His secretary, Gordon Auchincloss, represented him.

The British representatives were Premier Lloyd George, Foreign Minister Balfour, Viscount Milner, George Nicoll Barnes, and Earl Curzon of Kedleston, constituting the War Cabinet; Lord Reading and Lord Northcliffe; the Earl of Derby, General Sir William R. Robertson and Lieut. Gen. Jan C. Smuts, representing the army; Sir Eric Geddes and Admiral Sir John R. Jellicoe, representing the navy, and Major John L. Baird, Baron Rhondda, Lord Robert Cecil, Walter Hume Long, and Dr. Christopher Addison, representing, respectively, aviation, food, blockade, petroleum, and munitions.

None of the numerous allied war councils of the last three years occasioned so much interest as today's meeting. The scene was the dingy old residence in Downing Street which has served the Prime Ministers of many generations as both home and office, and the room was the Council Chamber, where the Cabinets meet and where the destinies of the empire have been shaped since the days of the American Revolution. The general work of the meeting constituted the taking of stock of the resources and needs of both countries, and, to some extent, of the continental allies.

Lord Reading was the first to arrive. He had a five-minute chat with Premier Lloyd George and then prepared to greet the distinguished men from America and the British participants. Some of these came on foot and others in motors driven by khaki-clad chauffeurs. There was no demonstration by the sightseers, only a small group to whom the time of the meeting was known being present. These, with the reporters and a battery of newspaper and War Office photographers, however, crowded together in Downing Street to catch a glimpse of the conferees.

Admiral Jellicoe, Chief of the Naval Staff, arrived with Sir Eric Campbell Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty. They were accompanied by a six-foot bluejacket carrying dispatches. Lord Robert Cecil, the Minister of Blockade, walked unaccompanied from the Foreign Office. The crowds displayed deep interest in General Tasker H. Bliss, Chief of Staff of the American Army, and Admiral William S. Benson, who arrived separately with their aids.

Cablegram to House Confirmed.

In the course of the conference the members had frequent recourse to the mass of statistics and official documents at their command. There was little formality about the proceedings. Lord Reading, the Lord Chief Justice, started them by explaining the purpose of the meeting. The discussion that followed was general.

Chancellor Bonar Law said in the House of Commons today, in response to a question, that the British Government had information quite officially that President Wilson had sent a cablegram asking Colonel House and General Bliss to attend the first meeting of the Interallied War Council.

The text of the question, submitted by William M. R. Pringle, Liberal, follows:

"Whether the Government has received any intimation from the Government of the United States to the effect that President Wilson asked Colonel House and General Bliss to attend the Supreme War Council which is to take place at the end of the month, and that President Wilson had cabled to Colonel House that the Government of the United States considered unity of plan and control between all the Allies essential; whether a statement to this effect in the press yesterday was issued by authority of the Government; whether Mr. Bonar Law's attention has been called to the message from Washington published this morning, in which it was stated that President Wilson denied he had sent a cable in the terms quoted, and whether in these circumstances the Government could make an authoritative statement on the matter."

To this question the Chancellor replied:

"President Wilson selected Colonel House to take part not only in the Interallied Conference but in the Supreme War Council, with General Bliss as his military adviser. There ought to be no misunderstanding. We have that information quite officially."

Hopes America Will Take Charge.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—William M. R. Pringle, Liberal, who, in the House of Commons today, put the question to Bonar Law concerning President Wilson's unity telegram to Colonel House, referred to the same subject in a speech in the House last night, criticising Premier Lloyd George's statement. Mr. Pringle's words, as reported in the official Parliamentary debates, were:

"I maintain that, however valuable in many ways the initiative and imagination and enterprise of Lloyd George may be to this country, nevertheless on all questions of high statesmanship he has been a false guide, and it is because he is a false guide that the sooner this Government falls the better for the country.

"There is only one ray of hope in all this. I notice with great pleasure in the press this morning that in a message President Wilson asked Colonel House to join this Allied Council, and that he has suggested that the American Chief of Staff should join it, with a view to securing unity of control.

"Lord Northcliffe said one illuminating thing in his recent notorious letter. That was that probably America would take charge later on, in view of the way in which the war had been managed in this country. I say, in God's name, let America do so! It will be a good thing for this country, a good thing for Europe, and a good thing for the world if America does take charge, because if America takes charge of the war you will see it managed on somewhat different lines from those to which we have become accustomed during the last twelve months, and we shall see, what is even more important and what I believe will contribute more than anything else to the good of the world, an American peace."

MET IN HISTORIC ROOM.

Scene in Council Chamber as Americans and British Conferred.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—It was in the historic chamber where the decisions that led the American colonies into revolution were taken and at the very table at which the draft of the Stamp act was approved that the chosen delegates of the United States met today members of the War Cabinet of Great Britain and conferred freely with them upon the share each country could contribute to the great fight for liberty.

The Americans were welcomed by the Premier in a short speech referring felicitously to the historic character of the gathering and to the memories the room called up. After a reply from Admiral Benson expressing the determination of the United States to continue the fight for the right to the end, the meeting settled down to business.

The Cabinet meeting room is behind the Premier's official residence, 10 Downing Street. It is a plain, unpretentious chamber, in size about 35 by 20 feet, looking out on the Premier's garden, now almost completely filled by a temporary office building for his secretaries. The main feature of the room is a long mahogany council table, around which every British Cabinet has sat for at least 200 years.

The Premier today took an armchair at the middle of one side of the council table, and was flanked by members of the War Cabinet—leading Ministers such as Balfour, Derby, Geddes, and Rhondda, and such important officials as Robertson, Jellicoe, Reading, and Northcliffe. On the other side the members of the American Mission were ranged. Colonel House was absent, as this was a meeting to consider business details, not the political situation, so Admiral Benson faced Lloyd George, with his colleagues on either side of him.

All around the room, except where the windows gave on the garden, were bookshelves laden with heavy calf-bound folios of "Statutes at Large," but the books were almost hidden by a multiplicity of war maps from every part of the world. Only one picture relieved the room, a fine portrait of Sir Francis Bacon, which hung over the fireplace.

After the preliminary speeches, the War Cabinet withdrew, and Lord Reading took over the Chairmanship. The meeting took the shape of informal conferences between groups composed of American and British representatives interested in the same subjects.

CALL LLOYD GEORGE VICTOR.

Even Opposing Newspapers Concede Strength of Premier's Speech.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The reception of Premier Lloyd George's speech of yesterday in the House of Commons by the morning newspapers justifies the assumption that the storm which lately threatened a crisis has passed, not only without damaging the Premier's hold on the country, but perhaps even strengthening it. It is conceded, even by his opponents, that the speech was in the Premier's best manner and was a parliamentary triumph. Editorial encomiums flow freely from his supporters, while the comments of hostile critics lack the fierceness of previous denunciation.

The Daily News, which has been hostile to the Premier, says that his reply concerning the military council contrasted startlingly with his Paris speech, and asks, if the council is only to be a body concerning which everybody is agreed, what reason there was for the sensational talk in Paris.

The Morning Post, another critic, objects again to the Premier's proposal. It says it may not work for unity, but for division and paralysis, which result from a conflict of expert opinion. It says that it was ingenuous for Premier Lloyd George to plead that he wished in Paris to shock everybody into a sense of reality, but that the soldiers know the terrible reality too well.

The Graphic says the speech failed entirely to clear up the situation, and wonders why the tone of the Paris speech was one of utmost gloom while the speech in the House was marked by almost exaggerated optimism.

Other editorials hail the Premier as a victor. The Daily Telegraph says he won, hands down, adding:

"No movement against a Government in our time ever perhaps was so completely defeated in a single speech."

The Daily Chronicle congratulated Premier Lloyd George on the effectiveness and vigor of his defense. It says:

"Outside critics overreach themselves. They should take a lesson from Mr. Asquith in abstaining from malice and irrelevance in criticism."

"The Premier achieved a great personal trimph," says The Times, "and also completely vindicated to the satisfaction of the House of Commons the essential soundness in its broad principles of the scheme for a closer union of the Allies."

The Times, nevertheless, adheres to the opinion that parts of his Paris speech were dangerous, but thinks that the reasons the Premier gave for them are undeniably weighty.

The Daily Mail congratulates the Premier on his "brilliant success," and wishes that all upon whom he relies for co-operation and support were as resolute and energetic as Lloyd George himself.

The Daily Express says that the speech demonstrated that Premier Lloyd George is the inevitable head of the nation in this hour of trial, and urges him now "to rid the ship of state of the barnacles still clinging to it."

WARNS BRITISH ABOUT FOOD.

Must Save or Undergo Rationing, Controller Rhondda Says.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Baron Rhondda, Food Controller, in a speech in the House of Lords today, said he was still hopeful that compulsory rationing could be avoided, but that it must come unless in the approaching few weeks the public fully responded to the appeals for voluntary rationing.

"There is no fear whatever of famine," said Baron Rhondda, "but the country might have to endure a scarcity."

The Controller said that the Allies would not lose the war through submarines. He was sanguine that there would be the necessary tonnage to provide the necessary supplies.

The situation as regards food stocks, Baron Rhondda continued, was generally better than at this time last year, but the country now had to supply France and Italy. If it were only a question of supplying Great Britain, he said he thought compulsory rationing would be needless.

LET FRENCHMAN LEAD, SAYS WHITNEY WARREN

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The following article by Whitney Warren is printed this morning in Premier Clémenceau's paper, L'Homme Libre:

"There is no problem at the present hour more urgent than that of a unified command. To solve it all the statesmen in power in all the Entente countries must devote their whole energy. Everywhere public opinion now fully realizes the importance of this question, and Governments are never so sure to be right as when their policy is based on untrammeled popular instinct.

"Common sense declares that Germany's successes are due to the unity of direction that she has been able to impose on her allies. The real strength of the Central Empires lies in the dominating brain of Hindenburg, and that superiority alone has hitherto sufficed to avert every peril of the most critical hours.

"The value of the Entente trumps has always been weakened by the lack of a guiding hand to co-ordinate and lead their game. Where is this hand to be found? Obviously, from a military viewpoint, none has the right to set itself up over France. Neither England, America, nor Italy is qualified to put forward its knowledge of war's science, and more especially its experience in this war, in comparison with that of the nation that has had the habit of victory throughout the centuries.

"It is simple logic that bids the Allies intrust to France the task of leading their armies in the supreme struggle. A French leader ought to apportion to each his part and lay out the lines of a plan that will insure Germany's defeat.

"We must hesitate no longer. It would be a crime against humanity to hearken to the voice of national pride and to compromise the common success by petty considerations of national precedence. To the German generalissimo, the head of the enemy coalition, we must oppose a French generalissimo, the head of the armies of the Entente. Any less vigorous arrangement is doomed to failure.

"It is not for me to name the proposed leader. All that I may say is that he ought to be inspired by the spirit of offensive. That is the price to be paid for breaking the German line. That such a line can be broken has just been proved on the Italian front.

"Too long has the theory of economic victory prejudiced that of military victory. To save bloodshed there has been a wish to stick to a military defensive and leave to the blockade the task of forcing Germany to ask for peace. The result has been to allow Germany to strike where she pleased and to profit from the weaknesses which so wide and varied a front as that of the Allies is bound to offer.

"I still repeat what I have repeated in vain for the last six months. If unity of command had existed and if the desire to find a favorable point for a common offensive had been the guilding thought of a single generalissimo, the French, English, and Italians would today be at Trieste and Laibach.

"That would not have prevented the blockade from tightening and from weakening the enemy's resources day by day. The truth appears clearly. The formula of 'a military defense and an economic offensive' must be replaced by that of a 'military and economic offensive.' Otherwise it means that peace is more distant with all that that implies of wasted blood and accumulated ruin.

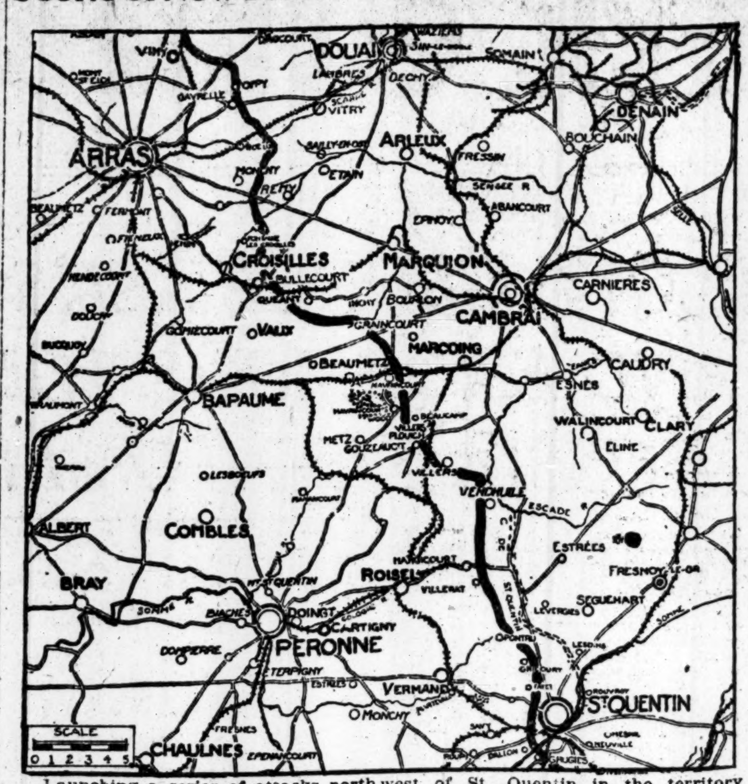
"Nor must we take a military offensive on land alone. There is the sea also—that huge front on which no decisive attack has yet been tried. There, too, we need a unified command which naturally should be intrusted to England. It will be the English task to co-ordinate the sea forces of Britain, America, France, and Italy, and to strike a decisive blow at the enemy coasts, either in the North or in the Adriatic.

"As for the economic offensive, why not intrust its direction to the United States? They possess all the elements needed to carry it through to a successful issue.

"In conclusion, what must be done is to replace the triumvirate born from the meeting at Rapello by a council formed of a single head of land, a single head of naval, and a single head of economic operations. From the working together of these three—one Frenchman, one Englishman, and one American—should come speedy victory and peace.

"If the Italian retreat could lead to some such co-ordination of effort when the world's destiny is at stake, then that retreat would prove to have been a blessing instead of a disaster."

Scene of New British Thrust Toward Cambrai



Launching a series of attacks northwest of St. Quentin in the territory between that city and the Scarpe River, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig today obtained what he describes as "satisfactory results." The heavy black line represents the battlefront in this sector, in which for a long time there have been no major operations.

Army Group of Prince Rupprecht—The artillery duel in Flanders increased considerably yesterday afternoon from Houthoulst Wood to Zandvoorde, continuing throughout the night with undiminished violence. A strong and destructive fire was directed in the region of Poelcappelle and Passchendaele.

Active fighting also was revived in the Artois, on both sides of the Scarpe and near Bullecourt and Queant. Enemy reconnoitring detachments were repulsed in hand-to-hand fighting.

GERMANS RUSH MEN AND GUNS TO FLANDERS

Holland and Denmark Report Big Transfers of Troops, Presumably From Russia.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A telegram from Maestricht, Holland, to Amsterdam, as forwarded by the Central News, reports a great movement of troops with artillery on all roads leading to the Flanders front. These troops are believed to have come from the Russian front.

A dispatch from Copenhagen says:

"Reports from several sources in Germany bear out the assumption that, taking advantage of the situation in Russia, the German Government is making heavy transfers of troops from the Russian front. Only part of them appear to be going to Italy, where the front is too narrow to permit of the use of great masses, and a blow by von Hindenburg at some other point, in the way of diversion, may perhaps be expected.

"Some troops are reported to have been moved to the western front, but this is not necessarily significant, as Field Marshal Haig's pounding tactics make necessary frequent reliefs for exhausted German divisions.

"German newspapers discuss with suspicious frankness and avidity the prospect of an offensive on the Saloniki front, but have never a word to say about the obvious chance of a smashing blow at Rumania in an effort to end the resistance of that nation. As for Italy, if the Austrians and Germans find the reinforced Italian Army too hard a nut to attempt to crack, the Central Powers can easily and quickly change to the defensive on a strong line for the purpose of seeking to force a decision on some other selected front with the bulk of their strategic reserve."

GERMAN THRUST AT VERDUN.

Small Gains Near Caurieres Mostly Lost When French Counterattack.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The Germans made an attack last night on a front of one kilometer in the Verdun sector north of Caurières Wood. They succeeded in penetrating the French advanced positions over a small extent of this front, says this afternoon's official statement, but subsequently were expelled for the most part.

Following is the text of the afternoon report:

North of St. Quentin we easily repulsed a raid in the region of Fayet. In Champagne there was rather heavy artillery fighting in the sector of Butte du Mesnil.

On the right bank of the Meuse, (Verdun sector,) after an intense bombardment of the front between Bézonvaux and Chaume Wood, the Germans attacked our positions north of Caurières Wood over an extent of about one kilometer. The attack was broken by our fire, and the Germans were not able to approach our advanced lines except over a very small space. Enemy troops which succeeded in gaining a footing were ejected for the greater part by an immediate counterattack.

In Lorraine an enemy raid on our positions south of Norroy was without success. Elsewhere the night was calm.

The communication issued by the War Office this evening says:

The artillery fighting has been rather violent in Belgium and in some sectors to the north of the Chemin des Dames, and also on the right bank of the Meuse.

Violent German gunfire on the Yser is reported in the Belgian official communication, issued at Havre. It reads:

During the day of the 19th we silenced several German batteries. The enemy directed his artillery fire especially in the direction of Merckem and Hoekske. During the night and the day of the 20th inst. the artillery activity on both sides was less than on the previous day. To the north of the Yser the enemy bombardment has been violent in the region of Mercke. Aschhoop and Hoekske. Our batteries replied vigorously, and shelled the enemy's defense works.

A German airplane was brought down in flames this morning in the direction of Dixmude.

BERLIN, Nov. 20, (via London.)—The War Office reports the collapse, with heavy loss, of a French attack yesterday upon German positions in Chaume Wood.

Following is the text of the afternoon statement:

Army Group of the German Crown Prince.—North of Soissons and on the eastern bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) there was a considerable increase in the firing, followed by an attack by a French battalion against Chaume Wood. It was repulsed with heavy losses, prisoners being taken. Preparations which the enemy made in his positions several times in the evening for an attack were shattered by our destructive fire. Enterprises by German detachments north and east of Verdun were successful.

MANY REPORTED SHOT IN BERLIN RIOTING

Police Volleys Dispersed Sunday Meetings of Socialists, Amsterdam Hears.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Serious rioting took place in Berlin last Sunday, according to dispatches received by the Wireless Press and the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam.

The message to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the fighting between the mob and the police was very fierce, and that there was a heavy casualty list, as the police used their firearms.

The Wireless Press says the military and police were called upon to oppose the progress of the Independent Socialist demonstrators. In the riotous scenes which followed the police were forced to fire with their rifles and revolvers, and the organizers of the meeting responded with firearms and knives.

The German press, the dispatches say, has been forbidden to publish details of the affray. No newspapers have arrived in Amsterdam from Berlin in the last few days.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 20.—The Independent Socialists tried to hold meetings in Berlin on Sunday, despite the Government prohibition against them. Afterward a small number of the Socialists held demonstrations in the streets in Eastern Berlin, but were dispersed without difficulty by the police.

REPORTS U-BOAT SUNK.

Letter Says Attack on Maryland Battery's Transport Failed.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20.—A letter received here from one of the members of the 117th French Mortar Battery, formerly the Coast Artillery, Maryland National Guard, says that after being followed by two submarines, one of which is believed to have been sunk in a brief engagement with United States destroyers, the transport bearing the 185 men of the battery, arrived safely at a French port.

The U-boat, it is said, was sent to the bottom soon after the transport entered the war zone, and a second submarine, after witnessing the destruction of her sister craft, disappeared. Part of the convoy gave chase, but the U-boat eluded her pursuers.

The battery arrived first at an English port, and was then whisked to a port on the English Channel, where it boarded a transport, arriving in France Oct. 31. The entire trip took thirteen days.

"Uncle Sam certainly gets his men off in a hurry," says the letter. "We were notified one morning at 1 o'clock to get up without making any noise and pack up our belongings. Twelve hours later we were on our way to France."

BRITISH CASUALTIES HIGHER

32,227 for a Week, an Increase of More Than 7,000.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—British casualties reported in the week ending today reached a total of 32,227. They were divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds: Officers, 296; men, 6,160.

The British casualty lists have been increasing recently, probably in consequence of the bitter fighting in Flanders. Last week they were 25,065, and in the preceding week 21,891.

M'ADOO PROPOSED NEW WAR COUNCIL

tions from Paris as from his present place behind the Allies.

"President Wilson should have the support of the whole world in insisting upon allied co-ordination. It is now no secret that at the suggestion of Secretary McAdoo, André Tardieu and I worked on this plan for months. It ought to have been put in hand long ago. Had it been organized at the time desired by Mr. McAdoo I believe that the Italian disaster might have been averted.

"The present system of running the war would ruin even the Steel Corporation in about four weeks. The present system of running the war ignores the vital factor of war time.

"When I think of the time wasted between those hot mornings in Washington, when Mr. McAdoo was pressing for this conference, and these cold Winter days in London, I feel a good deal more than angry.

"War is, of course, not an exact science of business. It is the most difficult of all human propositions. Success in war goes to the side that makes the least mistakes, but success in this war never will come until the board of war directors meets like any other board of directors.

"I have come back to England after five months in America (five months in which I made many new friendships and renewed many old ones—five months in which my average of travel was over 100 miles a day) to find the resolute spirit of England what it always has been in every phase of its history.

"We have seized every industry in this country—the railways, the mines, the shipyards. No private building is allowed. There are no private automobiles on the roads except those which by the most ingenious arrangement are now run by coal gas. The first time I saw one of these cars coming along I thought it had a Zeppelin on top, so large is the gas reservoir.

"Food is sufficient here and bread is cheaper than in New York, because in the matter of flour our Government has subsidized it to the extent of $200,000,000 a year.

"There are no men doing women's work. The women of the country are engaged in making guns, bombs, and bullets. All the elevators are run by women. They operate the street cars and subways to an immense extent. They have increased the output of England. They and the men who are working longer hours do much more than double what it was before the war.

"Remember, at this moment we are financing the allies to a larger extent than you are—a fact very little known in the United States. Remember that not one dollar lent to England, so freely advertised in your newspapers, crosses the Atlantic. Every cent is spent in Bridgeport, Cleveland, Detroit or some other busy centre. Our loans to our allies are made without any stipulation as to where the money should be spent.

"Would you through The New York Times kindly thank my friends not only in the East but also in the Middle West and Canada for a thousand acts of kindness to the British war mission and to me in particular? Would you also, whose guest I was to have been on Nov. 10, thank the Lotos Club for keeping the secret of my departure?

"I have no intention whatever of joining a Government constituted on the lines of our present administration. I have every intention at the termination of the allied conferences of returning to New York and Washington to proceed with the work which among such happy and helpful British and American colleagues I have engaged in for so many months there—that of hastening food and munitions across the Atlantic.

"When I return, I shall devote my attention particularly to aircraft. I am of those who believe that the war will be largely won in the air and that the resources of the United States should be mainly devoted at the present moment to the building of ships and the construction of bombing airplanes with which the Allies can blast their way into Germany."

SAYS NORTHCLIFFE UTTERED CALUMNY

Carson Resents Charge of Inefficiency Made Against British Management of War.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Sir Edward Carson, in a speech in London today defending the military and naval leaders from recent attacks, and characterizing the agitation as a "sham crisis," attacked Lord Northcliffe. He said:

"In the midst of these attacks a great man—a superman, if you like—comes to tell us that, in contrast with America, we are so inefficient that America will have to take over the management of the war. I have a great admiration for this great man, but I think that it is a great calumny upon his fellow-citizens and I know it is not the view of Americans.

"I have had the honor of meeting many members of the American Mission, and they are lost in astonishment and amazement at the organization and the effort put forward by Great Britain. I have searched the official reports, and this great man, so far as I can see, has never made one single suggestion since the war began from his seat in Parliament, when he can be criticised.

"I attended a historic meeting in Downing Street today. America has shaken hands with England across the Atlantic. We are in the war together to the end, and will see it through."

MUTINY OF RUSSIAN TROOPS IN FRANCE

less to go through exercises when they had decided not to fight any more.

Later a dispute between the First and Second Brigades threatened to develop into a bitter conflict. The soldiers of the Second Brigade insisted on being separated from the mutineers of the First Brigade and threatened to leave the camp if their demands were not conceded. That is why General Zankevitch, arriving with Commissary Rapp, ordered the soldiers who obeyed the Provisional Government to leave La Courtine Camp, taking their equipment with them. This order was executed June 25, and only those soldiers who refused to obey the Government remained in camp.

The extremely malevolent attitude of these men to their officers obliged General Zankevitch to remove the officers from the camp, and he left there only a few men who were charged to look after its administration. On Rapp's initiative political envoys visited La Courtine camp several times in order to bring the soldiers to a better view of things, but all their efforts were in vain. Even MM. Roussanof, Goldenberg, Erlich, and Smirnof, delegates of the Soviet, were received with hostility.

Finally General Zankevitch was advised from Petrograd that it was not intended to bring back to Russia the troops stationed in France, and that it was urgent that order should be re-established among them, even if it was necessary to have recourse to armed force. He went to La Courtine and posted a notice to this effect, enjoining the troops to put down their arms and to go to Clairvaux. This order was obeyed by only 2,500 men, who left La Courtine. The others, 8,600 in number, refused to obey.

Then further measures were resorted to in order to bring the mutineers to their senses. Their rations were reduced to a suitable allowance, and their pay was suppressed. French sentries barred the roads leading to the neighboring town. Such measures dismayed the rebels, but at the same time they only increased the influence of the agitators scattered among them. They assaulted the French soldiers. They kept under arrest for six hours a French officer and two non-commissioned officers who had been ordered by the French authorities to post in the camp a telegram from the Generalissimo.

On Aug. 19 General Zankevitch made a final appeal to them to put down their arms, but in vain. On Sept. 1 their provisions were stopped, but they had taken care to prepare a big reserve for this contingency. The next day Russian artillery took up allotted positions and an ultimatum was delivered to the Camp Committee under threat to open fire on the camp if they did not lay down their arms before 10 A. M. on Sept. 2.

No notice was taken of the order, and in due course the artillery opened fire. The rebels were warned that the fire would be intensified if they continued to resist. In the night 160 men gave themselves up. On Sept. 4, after about thirty shells had been dropped on the camp, the rebels waved white flags and came out, throwing own their arms. By evening 8,300 had given in. They were taken in charge by French troops.

On Sept 5 an intense artillery fire was opened on the camp. The mutineers, of whom 140 still remained, replied with violent machine gunfire, but by Sept. 3 the whole camp was occupied.

The Russian losses were eight killed and forty-four wounded. The French casualties were one killed and one wounded. Of the Russian loyal troops one was killed and five wounded. In course of disarming the rebels eighty-one arrests were made. Then the rest were formed up in battalions, two of which, composed of the most agitated elements, were sent to Bourg and the other to the Isle of Aix. The others will remain at La Courtine until the end of the inquiry ordered by the Provisional Government.

A copy of a telegram sent to Kerensky by Russian soldiers in France, in which they expressed confidence in him and urged him to fight the extremists, was received in Washington on Nov. 13. In their message these troops pledged themselves to respond to any call Kerensky might make upon them and urged him to deal pitilessly with the Bolsheviki and secret counterrevolutionists. The telegram concluded: "You are the only guarantee for our safety; be firm and pitiless toward the enemies of Russia."

REPORT KERENSKY WITH TWO ARMY CORPS

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Petrograd advices dated yesterday say that two army corps loyal to the Committee for the Salvation of the Revolution, stationed at Luga, report that Premier Kerensky is with them. There is no confirmation.

Vladimir Purishkevich, a former member of the Duma, who led in the attack on German influence in the Russian Army and the "dark forces" shortly before Emperor Nicholas was dethroned, has been arrested today on the charge of being at the head of a monarchist plot. With him at the hotel in which he was living under an assumed name was Prince Youssoupoff, who figured in the assassination of the monk, Rasputin.

General Alexis Brusiloff, former Commander in Chief of the Russian Armies, has been wounded in the leg by a shell which struck his house in the course of the recent fighting in Moscow. The telegram announcing the injury to the Russian officer was filed at Moscow on Saturday, and it adds that the Kremlin and other historic buildings there are practically intact.

An official Russian dispatch received by wireless here today says a congress is to be held in Petrograd to consider questions relating to the navy. The dispatch follows:

"To all Central Committees of the Navy: To bring about a timely meeting of the congress of the navy, we suggest that all measures be taken such as will enable the delegates to be present in Petrograd on Nov. 28. One delegate should be sent from each 500 electors, as indicated. Thus we must secure a solution of the essential questions which have to be introduced in legal manner into the life of the navy of the great Russian Republic.

"(Signed) Naval and Military Revolutionary Committee of all the Russian Navy."

PRESIDENT HOLDS UP SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIA

No More Shipments to be Made While Bolsheviki Remain in Control.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—No shipments of supplies will be permitted to go from the United States to Russia until the situation in that country clears. The American Government, before allowing the export of goods already on the docks, wants to know into whose hands they will fall on their arrival.

The cessation of shipments is temporary only if a stable Government is formed which the United States can recognize. If the Bolsheviki gain control and pursue their program calling for a peace with Germany, the embargo will be permanent. A protracted civil war also would work to keep the embargo tight, as the United States then would fear that supplies might go to the Bolsheviki faction.

Credits given to the Provisional Russian Government amounted in all to $325,000,000, of which $191,000,000 already has been advanced. Much of this money has been spent for supplies now awaiting shipment, and vessels have been furnished for its transport. Shipment will be held up by denial of bunker coal to the ships.

General Kaledines, the Cossack leader, is described in dispatches received at the State Department today from Swedish sources as "the man of the hour." He is said to be holding Petrograd at his mercy as regards food, and is expected to take possession of the capital shortly.

Confirmation of General Kaledines's ascendency also came to the department from Consul Smith at Tiflis, who reported him marching on Voronezh with a large force of Cossacks. Voronezh is approximately 300 miles south of Petrograd. If Kaledines gains control of the railroads rapid advance on the capital may be possible.

The only definite official information received by the State Department from Russia today was that John F. Stevens, head of the American Railway Mission, was on his way to Vladivostok in connection with his work. He had been reported in Moscow. No advices came direct from Ambassador Francis during the day.

'NOTHING BUT WAR,' PLEDGE TO FRANCE

immortal native land, in the noble ambitions of peace, will pursue the course of its destinies.

"Those Frenchmen whom we were constrained to throw into the battle have claims upon us. Their desire is that none of our thoughts turn away from them, that none of our acts be foreign to their interests. We owe them everything, without any reserve—everything for France, bleeding in her glory; everything for the exaltation of right triumphant.

"The single, simple duty is to stand by the soldier, live, suffer, and fight with him; renounce everything that is not of the Fatherland. The hour has come for us to be solely French, and with pride to declare that that suffices for us.

"Let everything today be blended—the claims of the front and the duty in the rear. Let every zone be the zone of war. If there must be men who find in their souls impulses of the old times, let us put them aside. All civilized nations are engaged in the same battle against the modern development of ancient barbarity. Against this, with all our good allies, we are an immovable rock, a barrier that shall not be passed.

"Let only fraternal solidarity, the surest foundation of the world to come, be shown at the forefront of the alliance, at every instant and everywhere. In the field of ideas France has suffered for everything that makes man firm. In her hope, drawn from the sources of the purest humanity, she consents to suffer still for the defense of the soil of her great ancestors, with the hope of opening ever wider, to men as to peoples, all the doors of life. The force of the French soul is in that. That is what animates our people while they work as well as while they fight.

"Those silent soldiers of the workshops, deaf to evil suggestions, those old peasants bent over their land, those robust women at their toil, those children who bring them aid—there are our 'poilus,' who, thinking later on of the great work, may say like those of the trenches, 'I was in it.'

"With those also we must remain steadfast, we must see to it that, stripping ourselves for the fatherland, we one day may be loved. To love each other, it is not sufficient to say so, we must prove it. We would like to try to give that proof and we ask you to aid us. Can there be a finer program of government?

No More "Treason Nor Semi-Treason."

"There have been mistakes. Let us think only of repairing them. Alas, there have been crimes also—crimes against France. Let them receive prompt chastisement. We take before you, before the country that demands justice, an engagement that justice shall be done according to the rigors of the law.

"Neither personal consideration nor political ardor will turn us from our duty or lead us to go beyond it. Too many criminal attempts have already resulted on our battle front in the shedding of a superabundance of French blood. Weakness would be complicity.

"We shall be without violence. All the accused before court-martials—that is our policy, the soldier in the pretorium in solidarity with the soldier in combat. No more pacifist campaigns, no more German intrigues. Neither treason nor semi-treason. War—nothing but war!

"Our armies shall not be taken between two fires. Justice is on the way. The country will know that it is defended and is a France forever free.

"We have paid too great a price for our liberties to cede any part of them beyond the need of preventing divulgations and excitations from which the enemy might profit. A censorship shall be maintained for diplomatic and military information, as well as for those susceptible of disturbing peace at home, up to the limits of respect for opinions. A press bureau will give advice, nothing but advice, to all who solicit it.

"In war time, as in time of peace, liberty is to be exercised under the personal responsibility of the writer. Outside of that rule there is only arbitrary anarchy.

New Regime of Sacrifice.

"It has not seemed to us necessary to say more under the present circumstances to indicate the character of this Government. Days will follow days, problems will follow problems, we shall march in step with you to the realizations that the necessities impose. We are under your control. The question of confidence will be continually in the balance.

"We are going to enter upon a régime of restrictions after the example of England, Italy, and America, admirable in her ardor. We shall ask of each citizen that he take his full part in the common defense, that he give more and consent to receive less. There is abnegation in the army. So let abnegation exist throughout the country.

"We shall not forge a greater France without putting our life into it. Something of our savings is asked besides. If the action that concludes this session is favorable to us, we expect of it consecration.

"In the complete success of our war loan is to be found supreme evidence of the confidence that France owes to herself when she is asked for victory. Some day, from Paris to the humblest village, shouts of acclamation will greet our victorious standards stained with blood and tears and torn by shells—magnificent apparition of our noble dead. That day, the greatest day of our race, after so many other days of grandeur, it is in our power to bring forth."

Premier Clemenceau read his declaration in a firm, clear, voice. When he spoke of France's debt to the dead, his emotion was evidenced by the trembling of the sheets in his hand. His peroration was acclaimed by the whole Chamber with the exception of certain of the unified Socialists.

J. F. Moore of Texas ran a store for 18 years and made only a bare living. No matter how many sales he put on, how much he advertised, nor what he sold, profits stayed down.

Then he ran across a SYSTEM article on store methods, based on data from 1,562 successful stores. One thing in the article struck him: The best of these stores did their buying of new goods strictly according to what past sales indicated as safe. He never did. He always bought on guess and hope. This habit, he perceived, was the gulf into which his profits went.

From that moment he began to make money. "Had I seen this analysis earlier," he writes, "I would have been thousands of dollars ahead." His letter stops there. Yet it is a romance, lacking only the tag "they all lived happy ever after" to make it complete.

HAIL DRY WEATHER ON AMERICAN FRONT

GERMAN DOG FINDS A HOME

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 20, (by The Associated Press.)—The American artillery and infantry at the front are dry once more, the rain having ceased for several days.

The correspondents visiting the immediate front through the courtesy of the French staff found that the Americans had taken advantage of the rainless weather and were devoting all their energies to changing, as they put it, "Germans into casualties." They are on their toes every minute and are not letting a single opportunity slip to drop a shell or to send machine gun and rifle bullets where the enemy is seen, or where he even is suspected of being.

There is no doubt that the men like the life they are living. They are as cool and methodical as if they had been doing nothing else than fighting throughout their lives.

The fine group in the first line trenches had just sat down to their salmon sandwiches and coffee when they jumped up and cut loose with their automatic rifles at Germans who were discovered hanging out clothes on a wire in a battered village. They saw the enemy dive for cover like rabbits and then they went on with their meal as if nothing had happened.

This particular section of France's long battle front in the earth does not absorb water like a sponge, as in some other localities. There has been no rain for three days, so the ground is fairly dry. The uniforms of the men show evidences of where mud once had been, but that is all.

From the first line trenches, which are on a hill, the German first line can be seen between 500 and 1,000 yards away. There was something in the German first line once which will never go back to Germany. It is a wooly dog which deserted the enemy, crossed No Man's Land, and bounded into an American trench one dark night recently. He licked the hand of an American "doughboy," and was promptly fed with a piece of white bread and a handful of Columbia River salmon. He was thereupon adopted, and now roams all around the trenches, and even walks upon the parapet and through the barbed wire entanglements as if there were no war.

"This pup," said one of the soldiers, "is a naturalized American, and there is no hyphen about him. He has entirely forgotten all his boche connections. I hope he gets a chance to bite the Kaiser."

As the correspondents approached the trench lines over the shell-pitted ground the enemy started breaking shrapnel over the first line. This firing lasted only a brief time, stopping as suddenly as it began. Immediately afterward came detonations from the rear and the whiz of shells overhead suddenly began appearing over the German trenches. The infantrymen looked cautiously over No Man's Land while the firing was going on, but as soon as it was over they appeared to forget all about it.

In a nearby dugout the men off duty had not even heard the racket. Their principal worry seemed to be rats. One occupant of the dugout explained that there was sleeping room in it for thirty-eight men, and that twelve cats were kept in it. Cats were everywhere, some sleeping on folded blankets and some prowling in dark corners or stalking their prey.

The men all appeared to be in the best of health, although during the wet and cold weather of previous days several men in this unit had contracted "trench feet" and colds.

While the sun was going down behind the hills and the darkness was coming on swiftly, scarcely a shot was fired. Just as the sun passed below the horizon, however, the German batteries opened up on one of the American battery positions with a hot fire, the high explosives bursting with the regularity of the clock tick—about one every second. The bombardment lasted a couple of minutes, and then ended abruptly. Immediately the American batteries retaliated, flashes of orange-colored flame stabbing the night. The detonations—some heavy and some light—continued for some time with as much speed as the Germans had shown. Then, the "strafing" and the answer being over, the artillery settled down for the night of usual quiet.

AMERICAN OFFICERS UNDER SHRAPNEL FIRE

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 20, (By The Associated Press.)—A German shell fell through the roof of the château in which an American regimental headquarters is established near the front yesterday. The shell exploded, but no one was hurt. Several officers, including the American Colonel in command of the regiment, were in the building at the time.

Two other shells exploded near by. An American Brigadier General had a narrow escape in the same town, an earlier shell exploding and scattering stones and mud on his automobile. The Germans are especially active in shelling the roads. A burst of shrapnel over a group of American soldiers eating supper at the roadside killed one and wounded three.

The German fire at points back of the American positions is most active. The shells fall very rapidly at times. The American artillery replies energetically, sending shrapnel at the enemy trenches and high explosive shells at his batteries.

Active patrolling continues. Four American patrols on a recent night remained for hours in front of the enemy line, hoping to ambush Germans, but none appeared.

FREIGHT EMBARGO IMPOSED.

Pennsylvania Order Affects Lines East of Pittsburgh.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today that it had placed an embargo on freight originating on all lines east of Pittsburgh, as well as on all freight originating on connecting lines destined for points on or by way of the Western Pennsylvania Division.

The Western Pennsylvania Division embraces the main line and branches from Altoona to iPttsburgh. An unprecedented congestion existed in that part of the system, the company stated. The embargo will be lifted as soon as conditions warrant, but relief is not now in sight. Government freight and food are not embargoed. Neither are coal for by-product ovens, coke for blast furnaces and limestone, which are necessary to keep the industries of the Pittsburgh district running.

BRITAIN WARNS PACIFISTS.

Will Withdraw Passports of Those Attending Conference at Berne.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Great Britain has not only decided not to issue passports to any one desiring to attend the so-called peace conference in Switzerland but, it was stated today, the Government will also consider the withdrawal of passports from any British subject, resident in Switzerland, who may attend the conference.

SPAIN WARNS OUR AIRMEN.

Military Will Fire On Any That Fly Over Her Territory.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A Madrid dispatch says the Spanish Government has issued a special warning that Spain would regard any flight of American airplanes over her territories as in violation of neutrality, and would instruct the military to fire on such airplanes.

ALL DISLOYAL MEN WARNED BY GREGORY

Criminal Courts Will Handle Their Cases, Says the Attorney General.

LINCOLN STATUES NEEDED

Those That Resemble President, Says Mr. Grescom, Should Be Sent to All Our Allies.

United States Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory sounded a warning to the disloyal elements in America during his speech last night at the Lincoln Memorial University dinner, Mr. Gregory, after asserting the fact that 95 per cent of the men in this country today would die as willingly for their beliefs as the men of 1776, said that he would warn the other 5 per cent. against any manifestation of disloyalty.

"Our message will be delivered to them through the criminal courts all over the land," he said. "And may God have mercy on them, for they need expect none from an outraged people and an avenging Government."

Mr. Gregory was the principal speaker at the dinner, at which were some of the foremost business and professional men of New York. After he had finished speaking, Francis Grescom, who knew Abraham Lincoln personally and who was present during several of the famous Douglas-Lincoln debates, delivered an address in which he bitterly criticised the present delusion concerning the appearance of Lincoln which would have the emancipator portrayed as "looking like an imbecile and feeling like a dyspeptic." After Mr. Grescom's speech ex-United States Senator Charles A. Towne of Minnesota offered a resolution which was adopted, calling upon the Chancellor of Lincoln University, Dr. John Wesley Hill, to undertake arrangements to have "correct statues of Lincoln, neither adding nor detracting to his real appearance," put in all the capitals of the "nations now allied together in defense of democracy."

Mr. Gregory, after discussing the character of Lincoln, and pointing out our martyred President's insistence on the maintainance of law, took up the opposite character of the Hohenzollern Emperor William of Germany, and from that proceeded to a biter arraignment of the German nation, its history, and its ideals.

"Each bit of stolen property," he said, "has been made to yield its conqueror footroom. Never has the German Empire developed colonies. It has always sprung upon people weaker in a military sense, but its equal in every conception of civilization. I challenge Germany to point to one instance where she has cultivated the waste places, one instance where she has civilized an uncivilized people.

"And now for the first time across the path of this outlaw nation falls the shadow of the giant of the west, the Republic of the United States. Before we went to war the German Government had torn down one by one every safeguard we had erected about us. It allowed no rule of war, no principle of civilization, no ideal of humanity to stay its hands. It sank our ships, broke down our factories, plotted to embroil us with our neighbors, and even tried to foment rebellion among our own citizens. Germany drowned our helpless women and babes, and then proclaimed a national holiday so that her own children could celebrate the wholesale murder. And, finally, she decreed that the only right she allowed to Americans on the sea was to die.

"What our fathers suffered, gentlemen, was child's play to what we endured before we went to war. And now I know that 95 per cent. of the men of the United States will give their lives as freely in 1917 as in 1776. I will not speak of them, but I would address the other 5 per cent. of disloyal persons and moral and physical degenerates who believe nothing is worth fighting for."

"Let me say to them," the speaker continued, his voice ringing clear in the hush that greeted his words, "let me say to them to lock that thought in their hearts, and throw the key away forever. To all the disloyal in this country a message will be sounded which they can understand through the criminal courts. May God have mercy on them for they need expect none from an outraged people and an avenging Government."

Attorney General Gregory then took up what he termed the other 95 per cent. who were loyal. Those whose fathers had died to preserve the liberties of the nation would fight for it, he knew, and also others who fathers had been allowed to find an asylum here.

"And now let me say one more thing," he continued. "There is no more insidious thought in this country than the belief that this war will soon be over. The end is not in sight. Whatever happens, the power of Germany must be broken and must be broken on the western front. And we are coming to the battle. Our President has sent his ringing message across the ocean to our gallant allies, England and France, telling them to 'Hold the fort,' for we are coming. And we are coming, 1,000,000, 3,000,000, 10,000,000, until our cause is won."

Mr. Grescom launched at once into a discussion of the conception of Lincoln, which aroused the discussion on the statue to be placed in London.

"Lincoln, as we saw him in the last great debate with Douglas at Alton," he said, "presented a wonderful difference between assumed dignity and dignity imparted by the grace of God. Lincoln as we saw him then was simple, calm, and unaffected. His face was stamped with the serenity that implies power without fear and wisdom without folly. For this reason, it is not permissible to depict a genial giant as one restrained by meekness, hampered by humility, and rendered tractable by adversity and opposition.

"The time is at hands when a statue of Lincoln as he looked should be sent to London and to all our other allies."

Among the other speakers were Bourke Cockran, Martin Littleton, Hamilton Holt, editor of The Independent, and Dr. John Wesley Hill.

ASK WRIT AGAINST EX-CZAR.

Transportation Men in Suit Assert He Has Millions Here.

Before Supreme Court Justice Benedict in Brooklyn it was disclosed yesterday that Nicholas Romanoff, deposed Czar of Russia, has a fortune of several millions of dollars deposited or invested in New York City. The fact came to light when the Marine Transportation Service Corporation, which is suing the former Czar and the Russian Government, asked and obtained from Justice Benedict a writ of attachment for the property.

The corporation asks $2,800,000 as damages for an alleged breach of contract. According to a statement made by Bernard Naumberg, counsel for the plaintiff, the corporation had a contract in 1915 with the Russian Government to carry supplies to Russia. It is alleged that after the goods were placed aboard ship in this country the Russian Government refused to pay for them. The transportation company, seeking to make good its losses from property owned by the former Czar here, declares that he has bank deposits and personal property in this State amounting to "several millions of dollars."

MEDIE'S DESTROYER SUNK.

Another Vessel in Convoy Hit U-Boat While Steamer Was Sinking.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—A German submarine was destroyed at the time the French steamship Medie, with a cargo of munitions, was torpedoed in the Western Mediterranean on Sept. 23, with a loss of 250 lives, says a dispatch from Algiers to the Journal. The liner Biskra was proceeding with a convoy of French and British steamers, among which was the Medie, leading the line. The Medie was torpedoed without warning before she was able to bring her guns to bear on the submarine.

Apparently thinking that the ships were not armed, the submarine commander brought his boat slowly to the surface. The Biskra immediately opened fire at a distance of two miles. The second shot struck the submarine forward and low. An explosion followed. The submarine's stern shot up. The U-boat plunged to destruction before the Medie disappeared.

GERMAN DIPLOMATS GO UNDER SAFE CONDUCT

Party of 68 From Orient Leave American Port—Suspect Is Arrested at Pier.

A liner which has sailed from an American port, with passengers of all classes, most of whom were going abroad for the holidays, had among those in the first cabin sixty-eight German and Austrian diplomatic and consular officials from the Far East and the South Sea Islands, accompanied by the wives and families. They were traveling home under safe conducts granted by the Allies. Among the members of the party were Baron von Rosthern, recently Austro-Hungarian Minister to China, and Dr. S. Barthelme, who was ordered to be deported from the United States recently.

Every precaution was taken to see that no German spies got away on the ship among the passengers or crew. There were about 100 Secret Service agents, officials from the Navy and Army Intelligence Departments, immigration inspectors, customs guards, detectives, and a special squad of Department of Justice officials from Washington on hand. The liner was searched five times from the upper crow's nest to the keelson and a quantity of mail was discovered which was being smuggled through to Germany. Part of the letters and papers were apparently of no importance, the Customs officials said, but others, which have been held for examination today may have some matters of importance contained in them.

A detective who was on duty at the gangway of the steamship to examine passengers saw a man whom he suspected going on board, and stopped him to look at his papers. As the man's baggage had not been marked by the Customs Inspectors on the pier, and he looked like a German, the Lieutenant ordered the baggage to be taken to one of the cabins for inspection. The man had a cabin passage ticket and a Russian passport, and said he was Kasper Wrede, 27 years old, single, a native of Finland. He told the Government officials that he was an aviator, and had been giving exhibitions in flying at various cities in the United States for the last six years. He was now going home to see his family in Finland, and hoped to make exhibition flights there if the revolution was over when he arrived. His headquarters in this country, Wrede explained, was at a small town near Cleveland, the name of which he had forgotten for the moment.

When the Customs Inspectors searched his clothing they found a 38-calibre automatic revolver in the inner pocket of his sack coat, with a number of cartridges. In a valise they found six spare parts of airplanes and several pieces of steel tubing which Wrede said were parts of the uprights of an airplane. Several papers were found in his possession, which will be examined and translated before he is brought up for examination before the Federal authorities. In the meantime the man was locked up for the night, and his baggage was taken to the Custom House. In the arrest of Wrede the authorities believe they have a good find, and hope to discover the identity of the persons who are carrying on a secret correspondence with Germany.

Another liner has also sailed from an American port with passengers who are going to spend the Christmas and New Year holidays with their relatives abroad.

DUNKIRK CITED FOR HEROISM

"May You Ever Be a Model to the Nation," Said French Premier.

The City of Dunkirk has been cited in an order to the French Army for the heroism of its people in enduring the frequent bombardments. The order, as printed in the Echo de Paris of Oct. 19, reads:

"The City of Dunkirk, subject for the past three years to violent and frequent bombardments, has, thanks to the admirable calmness and courage of its valiant population, maintained and developed, for the national defense, its economic existence and thus rendered to the army and to the country inappreciable services.

"Heroic city! May you ever be a model to the entire nation!

VALUE IN MEN'S CLOTHES

When first we introduced Hand-Tailoring the big ready-for-service shops were frankly astonished at our prices.

They naturally conceded the Superiority of hand-workmanship—not publicly, but privately, not in their advertisements, but in their hearts—but they could not understand our ability to sell Hand-Tailored Clothes at machine-made prices.

Obviously, Hand-Tailoring costs more, so it is a natural conclusion that we are doing finer work and getting less money for it.

VICTORS ON PIAVE CANNOT BURY FOE

Fagare, Follina, and the Sega Mill the rout of the enemy was complete, having been accomplished in fearful hand-to-hand fighting on Friday night and Saturday.

D'Aosta's Greeting to Victors.

The officer showed a copy of the Duke's address to his men. It is an inspiring document, breathing encouragement and confidence. It says, in part:

"Soldiers of the Third Army: The enemy has attempted to pass our defenses on the Piave, but his audacity has met with defeat before your heroic lines, and he is driven back, leaving in our hands a great number of prisoners and machine guns. My soldiers, your commander greets you at the moment of this glorious exploit, and conveys to you the grateful acknowledgement of the country. With you rests the victory. With all our hearts we join our efforts for the country, for liberty."

The tour along the front took the party to the very centres of the hardest fighting and along the edge of the inundated region, where the countryside was transformed suddenly into an inland sea. Approaching the battle front, the party passed the brigade mentioned by General Diaz, Commander in Chief, for its furious assault at Zenson. It was just back from the front line, and the men still wore their helmets. Many of them were not more than 20 years old. They were sturdy country boys, and marched along seemingly unconscious of their glory.

At the barracks they were counting Austrian rifles and guns gathered in the court. The line of captured machine guns looked like a collection of huge black grasshoppers. The bayonets were detachable bowie knives, with two-edged blades.

General Euherenl of the famous Bersaglieri Brigade, which carried the day, came out to greet the party. He is a short, stocky man of resolute bearing.

Sand Bar Strewn with Corpses.

On the cemetery road, where the Austrians advanced and set up their line of quick firers, a fearful scene was spread before the party. The road was littered as though a tornado had passed by. Dead horses lay all about in contorted shapes. The highway was strewn with enemy helmets, blood-stained clothing, cartridge belts, and all kinds of accoutrements. The trees on either side were cut in two, and the lines of bushes were leveled like grain before a storm.

Just ahead on the road was Sega Mill, where the bloodiest fighting was centred. The mill wheel was still running, and the water was flowing peacefully, but all about were evidences of fearful carnage. The soldiers who held the mill stood unconcernedly at the door, while all over the ground were tatters left by the Austrians as they were driven on the mill and thrown into the river.

Passing on to the bank of the river, just back of the mill, a horrible sight opened just under the eyes of the visitors. Over there on the sand bar in midstream lay corpses in heaps, as far as the eye could see, the uniforms showing plainly that they were Austrians. Some lay on the bank, and some floated in the water. The Italians had just buried the bodies of 300 Austrians, but those other hundreds could not be brought back for decent burial, as the Austrian guns cut down stretcher bearers every time they went off toward the sand bar. An officer's dead horse, with saddle and rich saddle cloth, lay among the bodies.

The gruesome line of bodies extended far down the river. The Austrians had been cut down by machine-gun fire as though by a scythe. All the men in the line pitched forward on their faces and lay there, as though on dress parade, but prostrate.

Going on to Zenson, the little town could be seen to have been retaken by the Italians after the enemy had obtained a brief lodgment in it. Behind the town on the river edge are bushes. Here were huddled what remained of the first enemy storming party which crossed the river. The whole place was swept by fire, and one realized the fearful furnace these men were in.

As the party passed the inundated region the tops of cornstalks could be seen above the long stretches of water, indicating that it was about five feet deep. Similar traces of vineyards could be seen above the flood. Soldiers of the Engineer Corps were along the banks of the canal. They had opened the sluices wide, and the water was up to the sills. The harvest had been gathered, but there can be no planting or sowing there next Spring.

BATTLE ON TOMBA CRITICAL.

Holding of Piave Line Depends Upon Italians' Success at That Point.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The turning point has been reached in the battle of the Piave River.

Upon the result of the furious fighting that has been in progress along the Monte Tomba line, in the mountain section between the Piave and Brenta Rivers, will probably depend the decision as to whether the Italian stand is to be continued along the Piave or abandoned in favor of a strategic retreat toward the Adige.

For the first time since the Austro-German forces burst through the Julian Alps and turned the left flank of the Isonzo line a twenty-four hour period has passed without any yielding of the Italian defensive line. The enemy has been cleared from the west bank of the lower Piave, and that front is solidly held. The mountain front in the north also appears to be standing firm, with furious fighting around the northern slopes of Monte Tomba.

The loss of Monte Tomba by the Italians would threaten the whole Italian line along the plains section of the Piave. This mountain is in the last high ridge of the Monte Grappa Plateau, between the Piave and the Brenta, and between the higher Alps and the plains that slope southward toward Venice and the sea.

This ridge starts at Fenera, a point on the middle Piave River, several miles south of Quero, and runs southwest toward the Brenta, ending several miles north of Bassano, an important strategic point where the Brenta emerges from the mountains in the plain. The highest point in the ridge is Monte Grappa, 5,683 feet high, about half way between the Brenta and the Piave, the peaks of the mountain range east and west of Monte Grappa in this ridge becoming gradually lower until the river edges are met.

South of this is a road extending in a valley highway running the full distance between the Piava and the Brenta, and this excellent road is the present objective of the Germans, since its possession would give them good routes toward Bassano on the Brenta and the west bank of the Piava south of Fenera.

The question of the ability of the Italians on the north front to make as successful a stand there as did the army of the Duke d'Aosta along the lower Piave, by delaying the flanking forces of the enemy armies several days, is a vitally important one.

Dias Praises Youthful Recruits.

An official dispatch from Rome received today says:

"Commander in Chief Diaz ordered the following message to be distributed to his troops:

"'The young soldiers of the class of 1899 have received the baptism of fire. On the river which today bars the enemy from the roads leading further into the motherland they have conducted themselves magnificently. Their ardent enthusiasm, coupled with the experience of older companions, triumphed over the enemy.

"'Some Austrian battalions which had dared to cross the Piave have met their fate. Twelve hundred prisoners were taken, and some guns, which had fallen into the hands of the invaders, have been recaptured and brought again by our soldiers to the positions marked by the bodies of the artillerymen, who remained at their post of duty to the very end.

"'In this supreme hour of duty and honor, in which the army, with firm faith and strong heart keeps the enemy back on the river and on the mountains, the entire army should know that our young soldiers have proved to be worthy of the glory and traditions of their regiments.'

"The enemy airplanes continue to throw to our soldiers pamphlets in which they express their benevolent disposition toward the invaded towns and the populations, also assuring the soldiers that the Austrians have a scrupulous respect for international law, and that the present occupation of our territories is only temporary in character, without aims of conquest.

"This system has the immediate purpose of weakening the fighting spirit of the Italians, trying to make them feel that there is no need for fighting longer if the invaded regions are going to be returned without further sacrifice on their part. To the enemy's snare the Italian soldiers reply with redoubled ardor in the fight.

"After a religious ceremony which took place in the Cathedral of Milan, Cardinal Ferrari delivered a strong appeal to the congregation, exhorting them to have faith in the complete and not distant victory of the allied arms. Later the Cardinal received French soldiers and distributed personal souvenirs among them."

ITALIAN ARDITI HEROES OF THE PIAVE BATTLE

By PERCEVAL GIBBON.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, Monday, Nov. 19, (Delayed.)—Only a few days ago people were talking of the Piave, as previously they had talked of the Tagliamento, as a line on which gallantry would fail, and where hopes were vain; but already on the sectors of the river the Italian resistance has hardened into a dogged and dangerous defensive, and the men who fought their way back from the Carso are holding their ground and counter-attacking.

One such sector, among others, is that which embraces the region from a point just south of San Sona di Piave, where the Austrians threw their first bridge across, to that other point just north of the Treviso-Oderzo Railway bridge, where another crossing was made and the land on the right of the river penetrated by the enemy as far west as the small hamlet of Fagare. Zenson, the scene of yet another crossing, is included in this zone, which is now garrisoned on the Italian side by that famous corps which formerly held the northern Carso line from Faiti to Castagnevizza, and that other corps which was General Diaz's command in the Third Army.

The ground on the west bank of the river here, on which the enemy established a footing, was widest at Fagare, while their most formidable thrust was at Zenson, where, it will be remembered, they had made an effort to create a regular bridgehead.

Further south still where they were in contact with the naval forces they had pressed to the line of the Sile River and occupied all that bay of marshes which extends to Porto di Cortellazzo, on the Adriatic.

There is, perhaps, nothing so disorderly as a forced retreat, unless it be an advance in pursuit, and there is reaso nto think that the Austrians have not recovered their organization and full fighting efficiency as quickly as the Italians have regained their capacity for active defense. I wrote at the time of the character of the retreat, of its masterly decision, and of the success of the Third and Fourth Armies in withdrawing in the face of immense difficulties.

Now that the armies have come to a standstill, the tale of that retreat begins to complete itself, and we learn in more ample detail of the means by which the Austro-German advance was hampered, and the Italian rear shepherded to safety.

Among the fighting elements which took a glorious part in it three are conspicuous—the cavalry, the armored cars, and the Bersaglieri cyclists. Of the divisions of cavalry which took part all suffered heavily. Apart from their dismounted work, they managed to charge again and again with sabre and lance. One regiment of light horse actually charged upon the Austrians, who had prepared to receive them with machine guns, and, despite their losses, charged the guns, and say that at the last minute the Austrian machine gunners left their weapons and ran as the horsemen bowled down on them.

The armored cars lived through a series of private epics at crossroads, spending hours and sometimes whole days motionless, their crews keeping a ceaseless, weary lookout through the loopholes in the turrets. Three of them thus engaged discovered that they had been cut off, and made their way at sixty miles an hour through the main streets of three villages occupied by the enemy and got well away.

The crew of another relate that, having been without food for two days, they shot a calf with their machine gun and carried it off to where they could cook it without interruption. Another, having delayed too long, cleared the Tagliamento Bridge so late that it was blown up before they were actually off it, and their car was hurled along by the impact of the explosion.

Each was in contact with the enemy a hundred times, spraying him with machine-gun bullets, dodging his cavalry and slowing his advance.

The cyclists were those who fought from house to house through one village after another. There was not left a bridge or culvert unbroken. Engineers and airplanes co-operated to make the enemy's path a succession of traps.

Continuous Fighting Near Zenson.

On the sector of the Piave which I have mentioned the fighting has been continuous since the first enemy crossed near Zenson. It is like the first days of a new war here, where conditions are yet primitive, and the men have not yet acquired the art of making themselves comfortable. The resemblance holds also in the attitude of the men. They have that debonair quality, that daredevil touch which belongs rather to new troops than to these hard-bitten veterans.

In the last two days of fighting they have retaken the ground around Fagare and pinned the enemy to the very edge of the river at Zenson. Fargare, of course, is a huddle of ruins, and Zenson has suffered considerably from Austrian shelling. Musile, likewise, where the former bridge crossed to San Dona, has been partly burned; but San Dona itself, on the further bank of the river, shows at a little distance only small traces of damage. Beyond it there are still campanili to be seen, although the airplanes report that a number of other campanili have been destroyed.

"Candidates for Death."

The fighting near Zenson, which took shape on Saturday, was particularly violent. The enemy forces consisted of a number of battalions of Hungarians and Dalmations, not previously identified, and the Italian troops included the Gredadiers, the Catania Infantry Brigade, and the Twenty-first Battalion of those special troops, volunteers for sheer fighting and specially for storming duties, who are called "Arditi." They wear a special uniform—a gray sweater and a short double-breasted jacket—and are trained in a fashion that weeds out any but the strongest and most resolute.

When last I saw them practising the storming of a hill beyond Udine, mountain guns were dropping real shells just over them, and Maxims and trench mortars were turning the affair into the most real test I had ever beheld. Every man of them is a highly schooled specialist in every weapon, from bare hands to flame-projector. Few live long, and there is never any lack of volunteers to take their places. They speak of themselves jestingly as "aspiranti cadaveri" (candidates for death.)

It was these, who have never ceased to resent and question the retreat, who led the storming column upon the enemy's lines at Zanson. There was a brief bombardment, and then the Arditi rushed the parapet. The Hungarians fought well for a while, but there was no standing against that attack. There was some active slaughtering, both in the assault and while the enemy fell back to the river.

The Austrian's losses in killed left on the field were exceedingly heavy, and their cramped position along the bend of the river now hinders their getting further forces across.

FAYOLLE OFF TO ITALY.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—General Marie Fayolle, commander of the French forces in Italy, departed last night to take up his duties. General Fayolle is an artilleryman. He was retired six weeks before the war began, but offered his services and received a command. He served under General Petain at Carency in 1915, and afterward was promoted and placed in command of the Sixth Army. He conducted the operations on the Somme which resulted in the retreat of the Germans to the Hindenburg line. He then took command of the central group of armies. It was under him that General Guillaumat finished clearing the approaches to Verdun.

General Fayolle has a reputation as a scientific soldier, earned largely while he was a professor at the War School.

GREEK FLAG OVER UDINE.

Indication That Constantine's Partisans Are Aiding the Invaders.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 18, (Delayed.)—Information is trickling across the Piave from the Italians in Eastern Venetia, now overrun by the enemy. According to these reports, Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary has visited Gorizia and Udine, and King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has passed through Gradisca and Palmanova.

The garrison at Udine, the former Italian headquarters, is said to be made up of Turkish soldiers who are using the Church of Santa Maria as one of their barracks. On the citadel of Udine the invaders have raised five flags—Austrian, German, Bulgarian, Turkish, and Greek. The last flag represents the Greek division which went over to the Bulgarians at Kavala and Fort Rupel, and which some reports put among the enemy divisions operating on the Italian front.

Early, in September, 1916, the Fourth Greek Army Corps, with headquarters at Kavala, surrendered to the Bulgarians. Its strength was reported to be 25,000 men, and these were later transported to Germany.

President of the Anti-Suffrage Association made that charge she forgot the support of the President, the Governor, and other men of unquestioned loyalty and of the great established political parties.

Tribute to the Pioneers.

Mrs. Whitehouse paid tribute to the pioneers of the suffrage cause as the most real contributors to the victory, and introduced Governor Whitman as "a man of little faith—a man who was a bad prophet, but a good friend."

The Governor congratulated the State on the "patriotic addition to the electorate of New York," and said there was no longer any such thing as an anti-suffrage party or a suffrage party. "That question," he declared, "has been settled once for all." Mr. Whitman declared it the duty of all women to vote, whether or not they had sought the franchise, and said he never had been concerned as much with the need of women for the vote as with the need of the State for their votes.

Woman's place always had been in the home, he said, amid much laughter, and so had man's, and the woman who did not make a success of her home was not likely to render any very great service to the world outside, and the man who was a failure at home was likely to resemble a failure elsewhere. The speaker concluded by returning to his theme that the attitude of public men on suffrage should not be made the test of their fitness for office, asserting: "I would not insult your intelligence by asking your support because we supported you."

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the next speaker, drew tears as she recounted the devotion of forty of her seventy years to the struggle for "enfranchisement and freedom." Several times the audience gave her rising greetings, and all over the house furtive handkerchiefs appeared as her voice faltered.

"If, as they claim, the Socialists did it," said Dr. Shaw, "then they have done a splendid thing. If it was the Democrats, they are beginning to understand the principles of democracy. If it was the Republicans, the Republicans are beginning to know what a representative government is."

She pleaded for a pilgrimage to Congress that should voice not a threat, but a plea, and went on:

"We have pledged our co-operation until all women of the nation, like ourselves, are free, and the best method by which it can be secured is by making a concerted drive on Congress this Winter to show the men there the earnestness, the sincerity, and the desire of the women of this country that they may now lay down their arms in the struggle for suffrage—that they may devote themselves, body and soul, without any restrictions whatever—without any consciousness of ingratitude on the part of the Government whatever, that they may devote themselves solely to carrying on the needs of our Government during this terrible war. We must give every power we possess of body and mind and heart."

Colonel Roosevelt, although the last speaker, received the most enthusiastic greeting of the evening and was vigorously appaluded as he told of the patriotic activities of members of his own family, and received sympathetic laughter when he offered to go without milk and butter that the children—and grandchildren—might have enough. In part Colonel Roosevelt said:

"Tonight I wish in greeting you first to exchange congratulations with you, and above all with Dr. Shaw, upon the stand that New York State has at last taken. Next I wish to say that we now have a right to expect that the United States as a whole will follow New York's example, and therefore pass the Constitutional Amendment at Washington. Third, and what is most important, I wish to speak through you to the women of New York about the heavy responsibilities that now are theirs.

"What we citizens of the democracy who enjoy full political rights need to remember is that we have no moral right to their enjoyment, and that in the long run we will not be permitted to enjoy them, unless we perform the duties necessarily implied in their possession. In this world neither man nor woman has any right to the enjoyment of a privilege unless he or she accepts and fulfills the obligations accompanying it. A democracy that represents merely the enjoyment of privilege is bound in the end to go down. It is only a democracy based on service which can permanently endure.

"As a matter of fact, among the reasons because of which I welcome the extension of suffrage to women is my belief that certain duties in the way of securing social and industrial justice, about which many men are lukewarm, will enlist the support of almost all women. Of course you will have to realize that silly sentimentality may be as bad as brutality. But we must act! And we must act with reasonable rapidity. Take, for example, the milk problem in this city. I am credibly informed that the price of milk has gone so high as to result in the stinting of the amount given to the children of the very poor, with results that have been lamentably shown in their health. For grown-up people, milk and butter are luxuries. For children good milk is a necessity. To try improperly to reduce the price paid farmers for milk inevitably means a reduction in the supply. But I would refuse to permit grown-up people to have milk or butter until provision has been made for supplying every child the milk necessary for its health and welfare. I would take whatever steps are required, whether by legislation, by the establishment of Government markets, or even by still further and more drastic action, if necessary, to accomplish the desired result.

Patriotism Woman's Duty.

"But, women of New York, my fellow-citizens, my fellow-Americans, what I specially wish to call to your attention tonight is the prime duty of the moment, the duty to make patriotism part of your very life, of all your actions, and not something merely to be talked about—or with abstract sentimentality. Patriotism is an entirely concrete thing. At this moment this country is at war for its own vital interests, and also for the vital interests of mankind.

"No man or woman is patriotic at this time who does not heartily back the United States Government in every action for the efficient prosecution of the war. In the world as it now is no people can exist unless they are able to defend themselves, no form of Government can permanently endure unless it works efficiently. The way to show true devotion to democracy, the way to make democracy safe, is to make it just, and to make it efficient. Let me illustrate by two examples close at hand. South of us a year ago lay the little Republics of Hayti and Santo Domingo. As far as names went they were as much democratic republic as was this nation. But their people had not developed self-control, self-restraint, the power to secure the doing of justice by and among themselves, or the power to prepare themselves so as to be able to resist foreign aggression. We invaded and conquered these countries, we then ruled over them, because in these two republics democracy worked so badly that injustice prevailed within them, while they were powerless to defend themselves from outside attack.

Must Be Prepared.

"In this country our prime failure has been to develop our strength so as to protect us from outside attack. This is the matter of first consequence to us at this moment. The woman who does not raise her son to be a soldier for the right, and the man who has not been raised to be a soldier for the right, are neither of them fit for citizenship in a free republic. We cannot make democracy safe in this country unless we make this country safe against alien aggression; this means preparedness in advance as our permanent policy; and at this time it means the stern resolution to put through this war until we win the peace of overwhelming victory.

"I believe that, even when temporarily puzzled, temporarily misled, the average of American men and the average of American women have in them the spirit which will make them in the end do what is wise and what is right, and fearlessly face any danger and any hardship rather than submit to wrong. I believe this as much of the women as I do of the men. The women and the men in this country more than in any other great country of the world now stand on a near equality of right and justice, shoulder to shoulder, side by side, mother and son, husband and wife, brother and sister, lover and sweetheart. Thus standing, you and I, friends, we must face every risk and endure every hardship, until we have won the great fight for justice, wherein we have taken our plac alongside all the justly acting and liberty loving nations of mankind."

NEW VOTERS TO BACK FEDERAL AMENDMENT

New York Suffrage Party's Program Calls on Women to Maintain Autonomy.

Political reprisal upon candidates who have opposed woman suffrage in the past, a campaign against candidates for Congress and the Legislature who refuse to indorse the Federal suffrage amendment, and a complete reorganization of the party along Congressional district lines, to the end that the votes of New York's women may be made effective in the national amendment drive, were the vital features of the program proposed to the forty-ninth annual convention of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party by the Executive Board at its first open session yesterday afternoon. There was applause for the proposal that the women maintain the autonomy of their own organization and refuse to split their membership among the existing political parties, thus abandoning the suffrage fight for the present. There was much laughter when the board's report called those who are to be punished for past offenses, not only Antis, but men "opposed to the interests of women and children and to humanitarian legislation in general." Otherwise the program was received in silence by the delegates when presented by Miss Alice Morgan Wright. The seeming indifference on the floor was interpreted by the delegates themselves as meaning that the great majority of delegates were in agreement upon the program and that it would be put through today.

The board's report, in conjunction with the declaration of Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, that the women should "take their army down to Washington and fight the battle for democracy there while the men fight it abroad, answered the question "What will the women do?" The full report of the Executive Committee read:

Suffragists' New Platform.

The Executive Board of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party recommends that:

First—In order to work more effectively for the Federal amendment the campaign district organizations should be abolished and in their place Congressional district organizations should be established. The Congressional district Chairman should be appointed by the elected officers of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party with the consent of the leaders of the Assembly districts which lie in the respective Congressional districts, and the officers of the Congressional districts should be appointed by the Chairman of the Congressional district with the consent of the Assembly district leaders of that Congressional district.

The Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Congressional Districts should be combined with one Chairman and organization, and the Forty-first and Forty-second combined with one Chairman and organization.

Second—The Assembly district organizations with leader and officers, elected by the votes of dues-paying members, should be retained.

The Assembly district organizations should bear the same relation to the organization of the Congressional district in which they lie as they now bear to the campaign district in which they lie.

The suffrage clubs should remain as well as the election district committees.

Third—We should remain a non-partisan group of voters. We should not at this convention indorse any principle, party or individual, or commit ourselves to parties or partisan measures before we have had ample time to study conditions and problems of Government which are new to us.

Fourth—We should inform ourselves of various problems of Government in order to use our new power of citizenship to the greatest advantage of State and nation.

We should maintain, therefore, the following committees:

Educational Committee—We recommend that the group known as the educational section reorganize to become a standing committee and undertake to hold lectures of the various forms of government of city, State, and nation; that they investigate the various administrative departments of city and State both as to their powers and duties, and as to the fulfillment of the latter. That they undertake the training of speakers on such matters who may be at the service of the organization throughout the State; that they hold monthly public meetings to report upon their investigations, and that they publish and distribute a correspondence course of civics.

Should Educate Women.

Americanization Committee—Should undertake the civic education of alien women in connection with preparations for their naturalization.

Legislative Committee—We should maintain a Legislative Committee with a representative at Albany during the sessions of the Legislature. The duties of this committee should be especially to watch legislation affecting women and children and the health conditions of the State. It should report upon its investigations at each meeting of the Executive Board. It should have power to recommend to the Central Board legislation which the Central Board may initiate or introduce into the Legislature.

Committee on Labor—The industrial section should be renamed the Committee on Labor, and should report to the Central Board upon the special interests and needs of the women and children in industry.

Intelligence Committee—There should be a committee to investigate and report upon the records of candidates for political office.

Committee on Rural Problems—The section on indorsements should be renamed and should give its attention to the problems of the rural women and undertake, with the consent of the Central Board, work in connection with the Grange.

The publicity, press, and organization departments should be retained. A War Service Committee should be formed to co-operate with the existing agencies to perform such services as we may be called upon by the Government to render.

Fifth—The Central Board should send a monthly communication containing informations and instructions to each Congressional Chairman and Assembly district leader.

Sixth—In view of the likelihood of the immediate submission of the Federal amendment to the State Legislatures for ratification we should campaign against the nomination or election of candidates for the New York State Legislature and campaign against candidates for Congress who will not agree to indorse the Federal amendment, providing the Federal amendment has not passed before the next Congressional election, which takes place in 1918.

Seventh—At the next primaries and election we should campaign against certain candidates for State and Federal offices who have consistently opposed woman suffrage, and whose records show them to have been opposed to the interests of women and children and to humanitarian legislation in general.

Eighth—The board further recommends that:

We, with the additional power of full citizenship, renew our offer of service to the Government in this time of war, and hold ourselves ready to perform any duty which it may designate.

The ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton was crowded with delegates, alternates, and visitors long before the first open session convened at 2 o'clock. The Credential Committee made its preliminary report after Mrs. Whitehouse had called the convention to order and the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant had delivered the invocation. Mrs. Raymond Brown, Chairman of the Organization Committee, reported next, and the floor was given to Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, the Congressional Chairman, who dwelt upon the work of the Congressional Campaign Committee.

Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, the party Treasurer, told of the difficulties of raising a campaign fund in the face of unprecedented demands from war charities, patriotic and relief organizations, and said in future campaigns there should be an Assistant Treasurer and a Finance Committee. After Miss Wright had presented her report, Mrs. Whitehouse, the retiring Chairman, read her annual report, and the afternoon session adjourned.

Mrs. Whitehouse Reviews Work.

Mrs. Whitehouse told of the interruption to suffrage work when war was declared, described the confusion attendant upon women's early efforts to serve the Government, and of the resignation of twenty-five pacifist members when the organization pledged itself to war service.

"The forty-eighth convention met a year ago to plan a victory," she began. "The forty-ninth convention meets today to celebrate a victory."

When the cheering was over she reviewed the chronology of the suffrage year including the enfranchising of Russian women, the coming of suffrage in Ontario, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and British Columbia, the promise of action by the French and Italian Parliaments, the success of the Electoral Reform bill in England, "making suffrage assured for English women," and the conferring of Presidential suffrage upon the women of seven States.

She spoke of the handicap of the disapproved pickets' campaign and said the antis adroitly increased the opposition aroused by the pickets with the result that "reproaches of pro-Germanism and disloyalty added to the general feeling of bitterness and disapproval." She said the party "also had to work against the psychological belief that suffrage could not win in New York State."

Mrs. Whitehouse again thanked President Wilson for his help, and thus expressed gratitude for Socialist aid:

"The Socialist candidate for Mayor in this city contributed generously to the cause when he publicly challenged the three other Mayoralty candidates to unite on this one non-partisan issue question and give it their support. Mr. Hillquit's challenge did not obtain the degree of support he asked from the other candidates, but it brought statements from the other candidates that each one was a believer in woman suffrage.

"The Mayoralty situation here worked to our advantage. The bitter fight between the four candidates, the personal attacks, the natural uncertainty of the result undoubtedly prevented any one of the parties from opposing our measure.

"Our greatest duty," she concluded, "is to use our new power in every way to obtain for the women of all our country the full citizenship that we have won for ourselves through such long and hard efforts. Our country sets an example we may follow. It is sending its armies abroad, our husbands, our sons, to fight not for any advantage of its own, but for democracy—'for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own Government.' We may in the same manner take our forces to Washington and there fight peacefully for democracy, for the rights of women who submit to authority in other States to have a voice in their own government. If we make this our first object, we shall be putting promptly to the best advantage—to the service of that same human liberty for which we have worked so long unarmed—our new, our powerful weapon of votes. Let us test our new weapon in the service of our sisters."

CAREW SAYS NO TO WOMEN.

Congressman Definitely Refuses to Vote for Federal Amendment.

Congressman John F. Carew told thirty members of the National Woman's Party who called upon him yesterday at the Wyandotte Club, 232 East Fifty-eighth Street, that he would not vote for the Federal amendment. He represents the district in which Mrs. John Winters Brannan, now serving a sixty-day sentence for picketing the White House, lives, and one of the things the women asked was that he would work to ameliorate the conditions of the imprisoned pickets. To this he did not reply, and the women did not press other questions.

A large number of women who have picketed and have been imprisoned were in the delegation. Mrs. John Rogers, Jr., who headed the delegation, was one; Mrs. Helena Hill Weed of Washington, D. C., and Connecticut, was another; Miss Maude Malone, who served a sixty-day term; Mrs. Thomas Holmes, and Mrs. Ella O. Guilford, who is now out on suspended sentence after the last arrest.

"Mr. Carew," said Mrs. Rogers, who was the speaker of the afternoon, "we want you to ask the President to put his tremendous power behind Congress to get it to pass the Federal amendment, and we want him to put it into his message. The President has told Mrs. Whitehouse that suffrage is a question of national importance and not one to wait, and that no other question should be settled before it. We want you to ask your colleagues to pass this amendment, and to refer it back to the States for ratification. The question should be put out of the way. We also want to speak to you in the interest of Mrs. Brannan, who is serving an unjust sentence."

Mrs. O. H. Havemeyer told Mr. Carew what a splendid triumph it would be for democracy to get the women out of prison and pass the Federal amendment, but Mr. Carew didn't see it that way. "I have never voted for that amendment and I am not going to change my position now," said Mr. Carew.

"Do you want us to come and visit you every day?" asked Mrs. Rogers.

"No," said Mr. Carew, "and if you want me to give you a decided answer now, I will tell you I will not vote for it."

"I have a great deal of respect for you ladies. I have a wife and three daughters and two sons, and I love my wife and daughters best. If I thought proper I would do as you wish. I have voted against the amendment every time I have had the opportunity. The only reason that might make me change my mind is the stand New York State has taken."

DE SAULLES CHILD HALTS MURDER TRIAL

Mother Insists Upon Seeing Him and Justice Says She May, but Not in Court.

EIGHT JURORS SELECTED

All Are 50 or Over, and the Fathers of Daughters—Defendant's Mother Taken Ill in Courtroom.

Mrs. Blanca De Saulles, who is being tried for the murder of her divorced husband, John Longer De Saulles, came into the Nassau County courtroom at Mineola, L. I., yesterday morning with her eyes flashing and her lips trembling. She began at once to talk with animation to ex-Judge Lewis J. Smith, one of her lawyers.

The contrast between her apparent excitement yesterday morning and her stony demeanor of the day before awakened interest, and it was learned that she had been aroused again concerning her four-and-a-half-year-old son, for whose sake she had shot De Saulles, according to the defense.

The boy, it was learned, had failed to appear at the prison on Monday afternoon at the close of the trial, when she expected him. By an agreement between counsel for Mrs. De Saulles and for the family of his father, the child, John Longer De Saulles, Jr., has been making visits twice a week to his mother, on Mondays and Thursdays.

No word had been conveyed to Mrs. De Saulles that the boy was not to be permitted to visit her on Monday, and her worry over his absence was heightened, according to her lawyers, by the fact that she was conscious of the possibility that visits to her from him might in the future be few.

Proposed Habeas Corpus.

After the young woman had talked to her counsel, Henry J. Uterhart, her leading representative, started to prepare an application for a writ of habeas corpus to compel the family to have the boy visit his mother. The child is now with the family of Mrs. August Heckscher, an aunt of the late John L. De Saulles, at Huntington, L. I. Before the papers were ready, however, Almuth C. Vandiver, of the firm of O'Gorman, Battle & Vandiver, which is representing Charles A. H. De Saulles, a brother of the dead man, entered a conference with Mr. Uterhart on the subject of the boy's visits. Mr. Uterhart said that he would press the habeas corpus proceedings at once, unless an arrangement for visits from the boy was made which was satisfactory to the mother.

Justice Manning, at the request of the two lawyers, suspended the slow process of getting a jury and went into his chambers to consult regarding the boy. This ended in an agreement that the two visits a week of the boy to his mother should continue during the trial, but they shall not take place in the courtroom. The first of these will take place after the close of court this afternoon.

The boy has not so far appeared in court during the trial. It was learned yesterday that Justice Manning had been very much opposed to having the child in the courtroom. Mrs. De Saulles has also been unwilling to have him near her at the trial, where it might be interpreted that he was being exploited as a feature of the defense. After the agreement as to future visits, Mr. Uterhart said:

"I was surprised to learn that the agreement to bring the boy to visit his mother twice a week had been disregarded, as that agreement was procured previously by a threat to resort to a writ of habeas corpus to prevent the boy from being kept away from his mother. Today I find that they had decided that they were not going to allow the mother to see the boy during the course of the trial. I told Mr. Vandiver to tell Charles De Saulles that if he did not want the boy taken out of his influence by a writ of habeas corpus he had better reconsider. After a conference with the Justice they came to terms."

Didn't Want Boy in Court.

Almuth C. Vandiver said that there was no objection to letting the boy see his mother, but that the trial was not adjourned until 4 P. M., and that it meant keeping the boy out until unreasonably late in the afternoon to let him visit his mother. He said:

"Yesterday the Heckschers, with whom the boy had been staying, were moving into town and on that account could not take the boy to the jail to see the mother. The boy spent the afternoon playing with the Heckscher children. In addition to that it had not been decided whether to allow the boy to visit his mother at all during the trial. Hitherto he had been seeing his mother twice a week from 3:15 to 5 o'clock. It was felt that visits to the mother after court would keep the boy out too late.

"The idea that the boy might visit his mother in court did not meet the approval of Justice Manning, and Mr. Uterhart told me that he did not want the boy in court either. The suggestion to put the matter before Justice Manning and let him decide what should be arranged came from our side. As a matter of fact, it was originally made by ex-Senator James W. O'Gorman. No court order was made, but Justice Manning simply brought us to an agreement. The boy will make visits to his mother on Wednesdays and Fridays during the trial from about 1 o'clock to 5:30."

The fact that Charles A. H. De Saulles is actively aiding the prosecution became known yesterday when he sat in court all day with two lawyers engaged by him on the case. Mr. Vandiver, who has been employed mainly regarding the little De Saulles boy, over whom Charles A. H. De Saulles has been seeking to obtain the guardianship, has had no part in the prosecution.

But Mr. De Saulles has been represented on the staff of the prosecution by Deacon Murphy, who was attached to the Homicide Bureau in the District Attorney's office under Governor Whitman. Mr. Murphy took a large part in the prosecution of Hans Schmidt, who was executed for murder, and in other important criminal prosecutions.

Mr. Murphy Aids Prosecution.

George Gordon Battle, who was originally employed by Charles A. H. De Saulles to defend the name of the late prosecution of Mrs. De Saulles. Mr. after the murder that he was engaged solely to defend the memory of the dead man, and was not interested in the prosecution of Mrs. de Saulles. Mr. Vandiver, a partner of Mr. Battle, said yesterday that the instructions to lawyers for Mr. De Saulles were not confined to the work of excluding from the trial or of combating attacks on the name of the late John Longer De Saulles. He said:

"Mr. Murphy has been engaged to assist the prosecution in every way possible. He has offered to do everything in his power to help District Attorney Weekes. There have been many points of the case to be looked up in New York, and Mr. Murphy has worked on them. We do not anticipate any attack on the memory of Mr. De Saulles, and we know that none can be successfully made."

The association of Mr. Murphy with the prosecution was brought forward by the defense as prominently as possible in the examination of jurors. Mr. Uterhart asked this question of every one of the talesmen examined:

"Are you acquainted with Deacon Murphy, formerly of the Homicide Bureau of the District Attorney's office in New York and now representing the family of the late Mr. De Saulles in the prosecution of this case?"

Jurors came slowly again yesterday. Several men were excused because they confessed prejudice in favor of the defendant due to reading of the case, while the majority were dismissed after peremptory challenges by the defense. Only four were chosen out of thirty talesmen called, leaving eight men in the jury box at the end of the day.

Mme. Vergara-Errazuriz, mother of Mrs. Blanca De Saulles, was present in the courtroom yesterday until the excitement of trial overcame her and produced a heart attack, which caused her to leave. She spent an hour in another room in the building, and when her strength returned she visited her daughter, who was by this time in her room again in the Sheriff's quarters in the Mineola jail.

Mme. Vergara-Errazuriz came to this country from Chile on the first steamer leaving Santiago after news that her daughter had killed De Saulles was cabled to her. Because of illness she did not attend the first day's trial, but she insisted on coming yesterday in spite of her physical condition.

Mother Is Self-Possessed.

Mme. Vergara-Errazuriz came into the courtroom accompanied by a Chilean Consular officer at this port and her son, William, and her daughter, Amalice. Unlike Mrs. De Saulles, who is extremely emaciated and white, the mother is fairly plump, with a touch of color in her cheeks. A striking resembiance runs through the family. Though the sister Amalice is in good health, she looks enough like Mrs. De Saulles to be a twin sister. Sitting but a few feet in the rear of the defendant, she has occasionally been mistaken for the defendant.

All members of the family have the characteristic of a calmness, bordering on stolidity, which has been so strikingly exhibited by Mrs. De Saulles. The mother, sister, and brother sat looking straight ahead, without the movement of a muscle on any of the three faces. No change of expression ever betrayed the fact if any of the questions on the juror's attitude toward the death penalty, on his readiness to punish a woman as quickly as a man, or other subjects produced the slightest emotional reaction in either of them. When Mme. Vergara-Errazuriz was seized with a heart attack, she spoke to her escort and walked slowly out of the room with him. She moved away so quietly that it did not become known that she was ill until her absence was noticed later.

After she had learned that the boy was to visit her again, Mrs. De Saulles appeared to lose interest again and gazed on apathetically while strings of complex questions were presented to the talesmen. Because the type of defense on the grounds of insanity, which is relied on to acquit Mrs. De Saulles, several unusual problems for a juror are raised.

Near the close of the session Justice Manning made a vigorous complaint against the procedure of the defense in taking talesman after talesman through the entire labyrinth and then regularly using the peremptory challenge against them. He said:

"I don't see the use of pursuing this course at extreme length of time, and then exercising the peremptory challenge. It is a mere waste of time."

The next man was quickly chosen. He was the eighth juror. The increased speed that followed the Justice's admonition indicated that the selection of the jury might be completed in this morning's section of court.

While the defense has not revealed the principle on which it has been selecting jurors, the general plan is pretty well outlined by the statistics of the domestic life of the eight jurors who have been accepted. Every one is of middle age or past, the youngest being 49 years old. All have one or more children. Each has at least one daughter.

All talesmen were carefully examined as to the size and make-up of their families. At the morning session the defense by peremptory challenge rejected in succession three talesmen, evidently suited in all other respects for the purposes of the defense, but disqualified by the fact that they had but one child each, and that a son. The theory evidently was that a father of boys, in deliberating on the case, might think of the slain John L. De Saulles, while the father of daughters would dwell more on the thought of the young woman whose life was at stake.

William A. Seaman of Woodmere, a painting contractor, confessed at first that he had both scruples against capital punishment and an impression on the case, which the prosecution assumed to be in favor of Mrs. De Saulles. Nevertheless, the prosecution passed him. But the defense, on learning that he had been married only four months, dropped him precipitately.

The prosecution's main reason for rejecting jurors was their confession of bias due to reading of the case. John J. Dowd of Sea Cliff answered several questions satisfactorily, but when asked if he had read of the case said:

"Yes, ever since Aug. 3."

"Oh, you even know the date of the killing," said District Attorney Weeks.

"Yes," replied the witness. Mr. Weeks asked if his close attention to the case had made an impression on him which it would require evidence to remove.

"Yes, and strong evidence," said Dowd.

The first juror accepted yesterday was William P. Jones, a real estate dealer of Freeport. He is 61 years old, married, and has a family. He satisfied the defense by saying that he had no prejudice against the defense of insanity, if it was properly established, and would not draw a conclusion unfavorable to the young woman because she carried a revolver without a license on the night of the shooting.

The next juror was John A. Ellard, 50 years old, of Oyster Bay, a builder. He has one married daughter. The first two were selected at the morning session. The two additional obtained in the afternoon were Herman H. Beers of Freeport, a retired cigar manufacturer, with a family, and ex-State Commissioner of Fairs William H. Jones of Oyster Bay, who is also past 60 and has daughters.

Jurors rejected besides those mentioned were Frank E. Baldwin of Montauk, Nicholas J. King of New Hyde Park, Charles L. Cochs of Port Washington, Allen E. Moore of Central Park, David Bandler of Carle Park, John D. Gardiner of Baldwins, Thomas K. Box of Baldwins, Carl Koehler of Rockville Centre, Eugene P. Hawkins of Rockville Centre, Samuel Combs of Woodmere, John Hannan of Franklin Square, Orson C. Foster of Oceanside, Martin W. Watts of Woodmere, James M. McQueen, Jacob Post of Freeport, Royal Molineux of Hempstead, Thomas A. Maloney of Great Neck Station, Irving Smith of Rockville Centre, Melvin S. Terry of Freeport.

The trial will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

QUESTIONS SWEENEY ABOUT ARMY BAZAAR

DOWLING URGES REFORM

Introduces Ordinance Giving the City Control of Benefit Entertainments for Charity.

District Attorney Swann's investigation into the disposal of the funds collected at the recent Army and Navy Bazaar centred closely yesterday around the activities of George F. Sweeney, the "advertising publicity and campaign director." Mr. Sweeney was called before the District Attorney to explain some of his accounts. Before his arrival, however, Mr. Swann had obtained about fifty checks, which, according to the prosecutor, showed that Sweeney, within a period of a month before the bazaar, during its progress and after it closed, had drawn upon the Union Trust Company, where he had an account, for $20,134.83.

Among the vouchers were checks which ran as high as $5,000, drawn to "Cash." The bazaar was held from Oct. 27 to Nov. 3. The checks drawn by Sweeney on the Union Trust Company to "Cash" from Oct. 17 to Nov. 17, it is asserted, aggregated a total of $12,290. Many checks of substantial amounts were drawn to some of the solicitors, according to the District Attorney's office, whom Mr. Sweeney employed to assist him in his work, which, according to a letterhead obtained by the District Attorney, was that of a "campaign director," specializing in the publicity and financial organization of "national, local, and special campaigns."

Directors of the Christmas festival which the National League for Woman's Service will stage the week of Dec. 22 to 29 for the benefit of the children of United States soldiers and sailors announced yesterday that Mr. Sweeney would not handle the advertising matter for the program and had canceled his contract.

Isabelle H. Hardie, Secretary of the National Special Aid Society of 259 Fifth Avenue also said Mr. Sweeney was no longer Executive Secretary of that organization, and said he had received no salary since Oct. 21.

Detectives yesterday said they found evidence that Sweeney's name was taken from the door of his office at 303 Fifth Avenue and the telephones were removed.

According to District Attorney Swann, Sweeney, when he appeared at the office, said little in connection with his affairs. It was not until he had left the office that the District Attorney decided to question him with reference to the vouchers, but Sweeney could not be found.

On the advice of District Attorney Swann, Edward S. Moore, Assistant Secretary of the Title Guarantee Trust Company and Treasurer of the bazaar, sent a letter to Sweeney yesterday calling upon him to turn over all the collections received by his solicitors, which were free contributions, and not intended as payment for advertising space in the program. According to the accounts in the possession of the District Attorney's office, these collections aggregate more than $6,000.

Some evidence obtained by Mr. Swann was presented to the Grand Jury yesterday.

Frank L. Dowling, President of the Board of Aldermen, introduced an ordinance at the meeting of the board yesterday to give the city jurisdiction over war charities and other benefit entertainments, with the exception of such affairs conducted by lodges and religious organizations. There will be a public hearing on the ordinance at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Aldermanic Chamber.

Introduction of the ordinance to put an end to impositions on the generosity of New Yorkers by persons making money out of charity was a direct outgrowth of the result of the inquiry into the Army and Navy Bazaar. The ordinance would place various restrictions upon profiteering from war charities. It is in effect the same ordinance introduced two years ago by Alderman Wendel, which was defeated because of the opposition of religious organizations. These will, therefore, be exempted from the operation of the ordinance.

President Dowling, in a statement last night, said:

"One of the provisions of the ordinance is that no manager of a charity entertainment not having been connected for at least three months preceding the undertaking with regularly incorporated charity or charities shall advertise any entertainment or receive money from the promotion of the same, without having a license therefor or without having given a sufficient bond or surety to be approved by the Commissioner of Licenses in the sum to be fixed by such Commissioner. Provision is also made that the manager of such charity entertainment shall file with the Bureau of Licenses a statement of the estimated expenses, with the percentage of proceeds or amounts to be retained by the managers, or other conditions of employment, and that such statement of percentages shall appear in a conspicuous place on any advertisement, poster, program, invitation, or letters of credential or appeal used in connection with such enterprise. The license fee is to be $1.

"It is also proposed that the manager or managers of such entertainment shall keep records in which lists of all receipts and expenditures shall be given and that these lists shall be open to the inspection of the Commissioner of Licenses and shall be filed with the Bureau of Licenses within ten days after such entertainment, and shall be retained in such bureau as a public record."

CONFESSES HE SLEW HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW

Catalone Clears Mystery of Dismembered Body Found Scattered in Paterson Suburbs.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 20.—The murder mystery which had kept the Paterson police busy since Nov. 5, when a man's torso was found in a vacant lot on the outskirts of the city, and the head in the mud of the Passaic River two days later, was cleared today when Manuel Catalone of 77 East Twelfth Street confessed that he had killed his brother-in-law, Stephen Cassa, who lived at the same address, and had cut his body to pieces with a cleaver. Catalone was arrested when the body was identified as that of Cassa. Mrs. Catalone and Mrs. Cassa, sisters, were also held on a charge of murder.

According to the story Catalone told the police today, on Oct. 31 he and Cassa, both of whom worked at the plant of the Royal Piece Dye Works, were on their way home to luncheon when they became involved in an argument. Catalone said they went to his apartment, on the second floor of the house, and that he prepared lunch for both of them. While the men were eating the quarrel was renewed. Catalone said he grabbed up a hatchet and struck at Cassa's head. Cassa, he said, raised his arm and received a deep gash in it. A moment later he succeeded, he said, in striking Cassa on the back of the head, so that he crumpled on the floor and died almost instantly. He said he then dragged the body into the bathroom and covered it with rags and old newspapers. Both Mrs. Catalone and Mrs. Cassa were at work at the time, he said.

Catalone said that night he told his wife what had happened, cautioning her not to tell her sister. He said that the next day he did not go to work, but after his wife and her sister had gone, went to a store and bought a large suitcase. Returning to his home, he said, with a butcher's cleaver he cut off the head and legs of the body, so that it would fit the suitcase. The body remained in the bathroom over that night. The next day, he told the police, he packed the body in the suitcase, and wrapping the head in paper, went to the Passaic River and threw the head into the water. Then, Catalone said, he went to the vacant lot and threw the contents of the suitcase into a clump of weeds, leaving the suitcase near by.

Catalone told the police that Mrs. Cassa began to worry about her husband, and he told her that Cassa had gone to Luxor, Penn., where they used to live, to visit friends. This appeased her until Nov. 5, when the newspapers told of the body being found. Two days later she insisted that Catalone and his wife accompany her to the morgue. There the body was identified as that of Cassa, and Catalone, his wife and her sister were placed under arrest.

The police went to the Catalone home and found blood on the bathroom floor. Then they began to question Catalone. He persisted that he knew nothing about the case, until yesterday Mrs. Catalone confesesd to the police that Catalone had told her something about the death of Cassa. Today the police obtained a suitcase which was a counterpart of the one Catalone was known to have purchased, and when they showed it to him and told him they knew he had used it to dispose of Cassa's body, he confessed.

DUTCH LINER RELEASED.

The Nieuw Amsterdam Will Carry Provisions for the Belgians.

William Van Doorn, general manager of the Holland-America Line in the United States, said yesterday that the liner Nieuw Amsterdam was coaling and he expected that she would soon sail for Rotterdam. The bunker license had been received from Washington, Mr. Van Doorn said, and all the ship had to wait for was an official inspection of the cargo. She has 10,000 tons of provisions on board for the Belgian Relief Commission, and no other freight, but will carry about 300 first and second class passengers and mails for Holland.

REGAN HID 6 MONTHS TO ESCAPE THE DRAFT

Now He Will Spend the Next Half Year in Mercer County Jail.

Daniel Regan, an American of draft age, who when the selective draft law became operative went into voluntary retirement "for the period of the war," decided last Monday that he would like to see if New York had changed during the six months he had remained indoors, and so he sallied forth on Broadway before the white lights were dimmed. Daniel's home is on Ninety-sixth Street near Columbus Avenue, and the neighbors who had known him before the war were surprised when he suddenly appeared. They had been led to believe that he had left the country.

Regan had not gone a block before he ran into Policeman John Cannon of the West 100th Street Station. Cannon looked at Regan and Regan blinked back at Cannon.

"Where have you been these six months?" asked Cannon.

"Oh, I've been gallivantin' 'round," Regan answered.

"Let me see your registration card," said Cannon.

"I do not happen to own one," replied Regan.

"You are under arrest," said Cannon.

Regan was turned over to the Federal authorities. He decided to plead guilty, and told James S. Johnson, Assistant United States District Attorney, that for six months he had remained in his room to escape service in the national army. All this was told to Judge Julius M. Mayer in the United States District Court.

"Well, I will sentence him to six months in the Mercer County jail," said the Judge, and Regan leaves for that prison today.

Over in Jersey City Commissioner James D. Carpenter had before him yesterday John Schmid, a German Swiss, who was charged with violating the draft law and who, according to the evidence, had informed his draft examining board that "I'll be —— if I will shoulder a gun for any man."

Commissioner Carpenter held Schmid without bail for a hearing at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

LABOR PLEDGES AID UNTIL WAR IS WON

PACIFIST GROUP SILENT

Resolution Adop[illegible]d by Buffalo Convention Another Triumph for Samuel Gompers.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Without a dissenting vote, the American Federation of Labor today reaffirmed its unswerving loyalty to the country and a determination to stand behind the National Administration until peace comes. The pacifist element which yesterday mustered a small minority against President Gompers's attitude in support of the war was silent.

The resolution containing the declaration was reported favorably by the Resolutions Committee. It was sweeping in scope. The course pursued by Mr. Gompers in calling a conference of the national and international officers of the federation at Washington on March 12 was approved, and all his subsequent actions and those of the Executive Council with reference to the war were concurred in.

The pacifists declared that they were unaware that the resolution was to come up today. They made no move for a reconsideration, however, and it was pointed out that while their fight yesterday was based on a vote of confidence in Mr. Gompers, today's resolution called for a declaration on a clear-cut question of loyalty to the country.

This resolution, with others from the Committee on Resolutions, occupied practically the entire day. Vice President James Duncan made a report at the afternoon session on his trip to Russia as a member of the commission appointed by President Wilson, and Gifford Pinchot, speaking for the Federated Board of Farm Organizations, asked for closer relations between the farmers' organizations and the American Federation of Labor. A committee was appointed with instructions to report to the present convention on the possibility of constructive action along the line suggested by Mr. Pinchot.

Race Question Brought In.

The only resolution that caused extended debate related to the organization of negro labor. It was submitted by Delegate Murphy of San Francisco, and embodied in its preamble a resolution adopted by the International Negro League and presented to the San Francisco Labor Council for indorsement. The Negro League's resolution specifically referred to the "Southern States" as the scenes of wrongs inflicted upon the race. The Resolutions Committee, reporting to the convention, assumed no responsibility for the statements in the preamble of the Murphy resolution, and recommended reference to the Executive Council of only that part of it referring to organization of the negroes.

O. D. Gorman of Georgia protested against the reference to the Southern States remaining in the record, and moved as an amendment to strike out the entire section.

"The slaughter at East St. Louis came as a result of thefts by starving negroes enticed away from their Southern homes," Mr. Gorman said. "I defy any delegate to point to a single instance of a negro being killed for robbery in the South. I resent this reference to the Southern States. The treatment of the negro in the South is better than it has been in the North."

Vice President Duncan explained that the committee's recommendation explicitly disclaimed responsibility for the statements made in this part of the resolution, but Gorman and other Southern delegates insisted that this was not going far enough and demanded that the section be stricken out. President Gompers ruled that no such action could be taken, as the question before the house was on the approval or disapproval of the report from the Committee on Resolutions. A motion to lay the report on the table was lost and the debate was resumed. Finally the report was amended by the Resolutions Committee to read:

"Your committee cannot be responsible for and rejects the statements contained in the preamble of the resolution," and as so amended the report was adopted.

In his address on Russia Vice President Duncan expressed confidence in the ultimate formation of a stable and lasting republican Government there.

"Give them an opportunity to develop their new democracy and there will be born in it a national spirit that will be worth fighting for," he said.

Demands Press Freedom.

The Committee on Resolutions deplored that part of the espionage law which "threatened unduly the restriction of a free press."

Taking up the report of the Executive Council on the high cost of print paper, the committee recommended that the council continue to work for measures that would bring about a reduction in prices and "to curb the greed of the paper trust."

John Burke of the Sulphine and Paper Workers gave notice that when the present wage agreement with the paper manufacturers expired in the Spring an advance in wages would be asked.

"If prices of paper are fixed by the Government," Mr. Burke said, "it must not be at the expense of labor."

On motion of Max S. Hayes of the Typographical Union, the report of the committee was amended to place the Federation on record in favor of a Government-owned paper manufacturing plant.

HINDU PLOT TRIAL BEGINS.

Government Drops Charge Against Five of Defendants.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—Efforts of the Government to prove the existence in this country of a conspiracy to foment revolution against British rule in India began today, when thirty-four alleged conspirators went on trial in the United States District Court.

Two things were to be accomplished by the alleged conspiracy, the Government charges. India was to be freed and Great Britain was to have been forced to withdraw troops from the Continental battlefronts, thus weakening the allied forces. The plot had spread greatly, the Government alleges, until it flourished in many places on the Pacific Coast, in most large American cities, in India, and in Mexico.

United States District Attorney Preston moved that the charges against five of the defendants—Ernest Sukki of New York, Captain Ralph Russ, who received his commission in the United States Army in the first reserve officers' training camp here; M. Martinez, San Diego, Cal., attorney; Leopold Michaels, wealthy shipowner of San Francisco, and Ray Howard, Los Angeles, a Mexican—be dismissed on the ground that it would not be "just and fair" to prosecute them. The court granted the motion. The $10,000 bail of John F. Craig, wealthy shipbuilder of Long Beach, Cal., the only defendant who failed to appear, was declared forfeited and a bench warrant was issued for him.

District Attorney Preston then moved that the trials of three other defendants be indefinitely postponed. One of these, Surandrar Nath Karv, was dying in a Berkeley, Cal., sanitorium, he explained. The cases against Solon Leonhauser, Buddhist priest, and his wife, Marie, the only woman defendant, were also ordered postponed on the ground of advanced age and ill-health.

Five jurors had been temporarily passed when court adjourned. The trial will consume about three months, according to Mr. Preston. Eleven attorneys appeared for the various defendants.

30 DAYS' SUSPENSION FOR CAPT. SULLIVAN

ONLY ONE PENALTY GIVEN

Regulations Call for Dismissal of Officer Convicted on Charges Made Against Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., Nov. 20.—The findings of the General Court which a month ago tried Captain Howard E. Sullivan, Battery D, 105th Field Artillery, on a charge of having supervised the beating of Private Otto Gottschalk on Oct. 13, were announced today. The court found Sullivan guilty and sentenced him to suspension of command for one month, confinement to the reservation for the period of suspension, and directed that he be reprimanded.

As Captain Sullivan had been placed on trial charged with violation of the 95th Article of War, covering the conduct of an officer and a gentleman, the nature of the sentence aroused considerable comment. Regulations provide but one penalty for conviction of violation of Article 95—dishonorable discharge or cashiering.

Inquiries established that the court had exercised its power and changed the indictment against Captain Sullivan from violation of Article 95 to violation of Article 96. This latter section of military law concerns acts prejudicial to the good of the service and the leniency or severity of penalties is left entirely to the discretion of the court.

It was also ascertained that the court turned in its verdict more than two weeks ago for review by the Judge Advocate and for the approval of Brig. Gen. Phillips as commanding officer. It was said that when General Phillips learned of the sentence he promptly returned the verdict as unsatisfactory. The court was thereupon directed to reconvene apparently for the purpose of returning a more severe verdict. But at its second session the court again agreed on its original findings. This gave General Phillips no recourse but to approve the verdict, because his failure to do so would have permitted Captain Sullivan to go free.

The attitude of headquarters is set forth in the following statement, issued from the office of Major J. Leslie Kincaid, Judge Advocate: "In order that the accused (Captain Howard E. Sullivan) may not entirely escape punishment, the proceedings, findings, and sentence in the case referred to are approved and will be duly executed at the station of his command.

"This despite the fact that the reviewing authority is of the opinion that the evidence presented clearly constituted a violation of the 95th Article of War and discloses a cowardly abuse of authority on the part of the accused. Our military ssytem provides a proper method of punishment for offenses. The methods employed by Captain Sullivan practically amounted to a justification of mob rule in his command.

"However, even taking the view that the findings were warranted by the evidence presented, it is still considered that the sentence awarded is entirely inadequate.

"In sending this case back to the court for reconsideration and revision the reviewing authority stated that in his opinion the findings of the court under the specifications warranted punishment considerably greater than that awarded by the court in the case. The court, however, saw fit to adhere to its former sentence.

"The opinion of the reviewing officer as to the offense committed and Captain Sullivan's responsibility relative thereto is fully indicated in the foregoing remarks. If these remarks are carefully considered by Captain Sullivan and are allowed by him to have proper influence upon his future conduct as an officer and a gentleman, the full purposes of a reprimand are considered to have been obtained."

ASKS REICHSTAG CREDIT.

Vote of 15,000,000,000 Marks to Come Up Next Week.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 20.—A bill has been submitted to the German Reichstag authorizing the Chancellor to dispose of a credit of 15,000,000,000 marks for extraordinary expenses, says a Berlin dispatch today.

The bill has been placed first on the order of the day for the Reichstag session of Nov. 29.

FIVE SURVIVORS LAND IN BOAT OF ROCHESTER

Were Tossed About on Seas for 18 Days, and 7 of Their Companions Perished.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The missing boat from the American steamship Rochester, which was sent to the bottom by a German submarine on Nov. 2, has just landed at a port in Ireland, the British Admiralty announced today. The boat contained five men, the only survivors from the original boat's crew of twelve.

The Admiralty announcement says the Rochester was torpedoed without warning by a German submarine, being struck abreast the No. 3 hatch, and that the explosion destroyed a boat, demolished the wireless room and disabled the main engine. The second assistant engineer was killed, and the ship went down in five minutes.

The boat which has now reached Ireland, and which originally contained twelve men, was commanded by the first officer. Two men died of exposure, and one became insane and jumped overboard. Just before they reached the coast four others died. Of the remaining five only the first officer was able to walk. The hands and feet of the four others were badly swollen and immediate medical treatment was necessary.

Hope had been abandoned for the twelve men in a boat from the Rochester, who had been missing for eighteen days. Vice Admiral Sims cabled the Navy Department on Saturday that these men had been given up as lost. The landing of the five men reduces the Rochester's death roll from nineteen to fourteen. Four men died of exposure in another boat. Two were killed by the explosion of the torpedo, and one was drowned.

BOMB IN FEDERAL BUILDING.

Discovered in Parcel Post Room of the Chicago Structure.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—A bomb was discovered on the floor of the parcel post room in the Federal Building today, starting Federal agents on a search for its maker and an explanation of how it came to be in the Post Office.

A fuse 18 inches long wrapped around the cover burned slowly when it was detached for inspection, and a powder with which it was packed emitted a nauseating gas.

GOVERNOR CHECKS REVOLT IN KINGS

LIVINGSTON FALLS IN LINE

Governor Expects, If Renominated, to Get 300,000 Majority Up State, With Women's Aid Next Year.

Governor Whitman has spent a week in the city, during which much of his time has been devoted to the patching up of his political fences in Kings County. When he returns to Albany today it will be with the assurance that the threatening storm clouds that have loomed on the political sky over Kings have been entirely dissipated. The immediate results of the Governor's negotiations with the Republican leaders of Kings County are these:

1. Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey of Brooklyn will not be a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination against Governor Whitman in the Republican primaries next Fall.

2. A reconciliation between Governor Whitman and State Controller Eugene M. Travis has been effected, which will align in the Governor's support the militant political machine built up by the State Controller and extending to every county of the State.

3. Governor Whitman through his working agreement with Controller Travis and the support of the forces behind F. J. H. Kracke, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, who is the leader of a powerful faction in the Republican organization in Kings, will have Jacob A. Livingston, the Old Guard Republican boss of Kings, at his mercy. Livingston will be compelled to come into camp or face political annihilation. Present indications point to his coming into camp.

In view of these recent developments the friends and political supporters of Governor Whitman declare with the most positive assurance that he will have a clear track for a third-term nomination for Governor, and in the event of his re-election, of which they entertain little doubt, will loom as a formidable candidate for the Presidential nomination in 1920. So optimistic are Governor Whitman's friends in their outlook that they are making election forecasts, twelve months in advance.

"We will come down to the Bronx with a 300,000 majority for Governor Whitman," said one of the Governor's friends in discussing the situation last night. In view of the fact that women will wield the ballot in the Gubernatorial election next year and are expected to run heavily to the support of Governor Whitman, this prediction is regarded by political observers as less far fetched than would appear at first blush.

The junction of the Whitman and Travis forces caused no end of surprised comment in Republican circles yesterday. The first intimation the politicians had of it, prior to the positive statement of persons in a position to speak for both the Governor and Controller Travis, was when Deputy Controller William Boardman, accompanied by Commissioner Kracke, called on Governor Whitman at the Hotel St. Regis yesterday and remained in close conference with him for more than an hour. With them came Chairman Alfred E. Varss of the Kings County Republican Committee, who, up to the present time, has been regarded as chief lieutenant of Boss Livingston.

After their visit came the positive announcement that Commissioner Kracke would be appointed a Public Service Commissioner at $15,000 a year, and that there would be no objection from Mr. Livingston.

Many reasons have been given for the sudden shift of Controller Travis from Livingston to Whitman. Here is the most likely version:

The Controller until recently has been known to nurse a Gubernatorial boomlet of his own. It is assumed that he had assurances of support from Boss Livingston and some Old Guard bosses up-State, opposed to giving Governor Whitman a third term.

Then came the Cropsey boom for Mayor, his refusal to become a candidate, the substitution of William M. Bennett, the bolt of Kracke and United States Senator Calder, and the threat that Justice Cropsey would become a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination next year.

With this threat materializing, the chances of Controller Travis for either the Gubernatorial nomination or for a renomination to his present place would have gone glimmering, for geographical considerations would have compelled the naming of an up-State man for Controller, with Kings supplying the candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination.

Realizing this, Controller Travis, it was said last night, had decided to take his stand with Governor Whitman, receiving in return assurances of support from the Whitman forces for a third term in the Controller's office.

With Commissioner Kracke slated for the vacancy which will occur in the Public Service Commission for the First District when Colonel William Hayward files his resignation, it was learned yesterday that Governor Whitman was considering John W. F. Bennett and Justice Samuel H. Ordway for other prospective vacancies. Mr. Bennett, who at present is Consulting Engineer to the Borough President of the Bronx but is likely to lose his job with the incoming of the new administration, may be named to fill temporarily the vacancy created through the resignation of Henry W. Hodge, who is doing engineering work with General Pershing's forces in France, while Justice Ordway is said to be considered for the vacancy that will arise when the term of Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the commission, expires on Feb. 1 next year.

NO RED CROSS "CHAINS."

Society Again Gives Warning Against Letter Writers.

The Red Cross announced last night that notwithstanding previous declarations that it does not approve the chain-letter system of raising money, and that it has never authorized any chain-letter promoters to use the name of the Red Cross, such letters are in circulation, and many of them have been forwarded to the society.

"The American Red Cross," a statement issued last night reads, "reiterates that no chain-letter project has its approval. While some of these schemes may have been started in good faith, mention of the Red Cross is not warranted. Red Cross members, and the public in general, are warned that there is no assurance that donations in response to any chain-letters will reach the Red Cross treasury, and are urged to pay no attention to such appeals, whose sincerity is always open to doubt.

"Aid to the American Red Cross should always be furnished through recognized channels, if the donor wishes to be assured that his gift is to reach the object intended."

CITY TO RAISE PAY OF 15,000 LABORERS

CAN USE CONTINGENT FUND

Board of Estimate Made Provision for Increasing Minimum Wage Scale in 1918 Budget.

More than 15,000 city employes receiving less than $3 a day probably will get an increase in pay as a result of action taken by the Board of Aldermen yesterday in adopting a resolution introduced by Alderman Kenney asking the Bureau of Personal Service of the Board of Estimate to prepare wage schedules for all departments of the city and county government based upon a minimum rate of $3 a day for all laborers provided for in the 1918 budget at less than $3 a day.

The Board of Estimate, in preparing the 1918 budget, fixed the minimum pay for laborers employed by the city at $2.75 a day. Some had their pay fixed at a minimum of $2.85 and others at $2.90. The men had asked for a minimum of $3 a day. While not granting the $3 minimum itself, the Board of Estimate set aside $1,500,000 as a contingency fund for labor, and recommended that the Board of Aldermen, if it saw fit, fix another minimum scale.

The resolution adopted yesterday asked the Bureau of Personal Service to estimate what it would cost the city to fix a minimum of $3 a day for its laborers. No statement was made as to what would be done if the $1,500,000 proved to be insufficient. None of the Aldermen had any estimate of the number of men getting the minimum wages of from $2.75 to $2.90, and therefore no estimate could be made of the total cost of the proposed change in the pay schedule.

The resolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen was as follows:

> That the Board of Aldermen hereby requests the Bureau of Personal Service to prepare schedules for all departments, boards, bureaus, and offices of the city and county governments, based upon a minimum rate of $3 a day for all laborers provided in the tax budget at $2.75 a day, and others at rates between $2.75 and $3; also, rates for annual employes in the labor class at correspondingly higher rates, the report to include a calculation of the amount required for each department to place the rates in operation for the year 1918.

All changes in the budget by the Board of Aldermen are subject to the approval or veto of the Mayor; but inasmuch as the action of the board yesterday was taken in pursuance of action by the Board of Estimate, and as the present Board of Aldermen is of the same political complexion as the next city administration, it is not believed that the change of administration will affect the chances of the laborers for the raise in pay.

CULT TO AID MAYOR.

Misha Appelbaum's Organization Suggests Cabinet Slate.

The Humanitarian Cult is preparing to keep an eye on the Hylan administration. Committees of the Cult will also keep a watchful eye on legislation and aid the Mayor-elect in putting his municipal ownership program through the Legislature. As an initial move in their program the Cult at a meeting held last night at Carnegie Hall suggested a slate to the incoming administration and also agreed on some hints to Judge Hylan as to how his administration should be conducted.

"Let him appoint as many women in his Cabinet as he can consistently and without breaking promises made before election and I am sure all the four years of his administration will be free from scandal," said Misha Appelbaum in announcing the program of the organization. "And as for you women, now that you have the ballot, don't you join the parties—stay out of them!"

Dr. Felix Adler, Ernest Thompson Seton, Dr. Luther Gulick of the Camp Fire Girls, C. J. Atkinson of the Boy Scouts, Owen R. Lovejoy of the Anti-Child Labor Committee, Rheta Childe Dorr, Dr. Henry Leipziger, and Thomas W. Churchill were the suggestions for the new Board of Education. Isaac Russell was named for Park Commissioner, J. G. Phelps Stokes for Commissioner of Correction, Dr. S. S. Goldwater for Health Commissioner, George Gordon Battle for Corporation Counsel, Lillian D. Wald for Charities Commissioner, Arthur Woods or Thomas McCarthy for Police Commissioner. Leonard Wallstein, Robert Adamson, and John T. Fetherston would be retained in the present positions as Commissioner of Accounts, and heads of the Fire and Street Cleaning Departments, respectively, if Mr. Appelbaum had his way.

COLUMBIA TO TRAIN TYPISTS

Course Established Will Supply Clerks for the War Department.

Dr. James C. Egbert, Director of the School of Business of Columbia University, announced yesterday that beginning Dec. 3 there would be conducted, under the direction of the Department of Extension Teaching, a course to train typists for the War Department. This action was taken in response to an appeal from the Adjutant General's office in Washington, which said, in part:

"The Statistical Division of the Adjutant General's office is in need of ninety-two clerical assistants. The division needs forty typists at once, forty typists by Jan. 1, and twelve file clerks at once. Is it possible for Columbia to recruit forty typists to serve at the rate of $1,000 per year and to recruit and train forty intelligent persons as typists during the next six weeks? Can the university supply twelve file clerks also?

"It will be necessary for these typists and clerks to apply at the Custom House, New York City, to take the civil service examination for such positions. They should request that they be certified for duty with the Statistical Section, the Adjutant General's office. This is the section of the army which keeps the soldiers at the front in touch with their families at home. The service rendered by the clerical staff will be of tremendous importance to the nation and far beyond the pay which is alloted for such service."

The Columbia class will meet from 4 to 6 o'clock five days in the week, and a fee of $15 will be charged.

COMMITTEE FAILS ON WEST SIDE PLAN

Joint Body Urges City to Re-establish the Public's Rights to Streets Before Dec. 1.

The joint committee of members of the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate, to which was referred the task of effecting an agreement between the city and the New York Central Railroad Company on the west side improvement, made a report yesterday in which it confessed failure. That the railroad company would not accept the tentative proposals of the committee which were submitted to it early in October has already been announced by Vice President Place. After reviewing its work and inserting in the report the letter of refusal from Mr. Place, the committee recommends proceedings for the repealing and rescinding of certain laws and ordinances which conferred upon the company many of its privileges to use public thoroughfares in this city.

Under the law enacted last Winter the matter passes out of the control of the Board of Estimate on Dec. 1 and into that of the Public Service Commission. Feeling certain now that the company will remain obdurate the committee has recommended that the ordinance passed by the Assistant Board of Aldermen in 1847 giving the company rights to construct tracks in certain streets be revoked, and that other resolutions and ordinances passed in various years by the Aldermen up to May, 1910, granting privileges to the company be also revoked not later than Dec. 1.

The report makes light of the rights conferred by the 1847 ordinance by saying that it was only a "mere assent, permit or license, which, like other permits granted as to public streets, may be revoked at any time by the competent city authority." Reference is made to the fact that the ordinance provided that the railroad company should lay its tracks in such manner as to cause no unnecessary impediment to the "common and ordinary use of the streets for all other purposes."

In its review of the work done and the efforts made to reach an agreement with the company the report said that Mr. Place had been invited to attend the conferences and to submit any plan which he thought might be better than the one formulated by the committee. An extract from a letter written by Mr. Place in reply to the invitation showed that he was sure that it would be impossible to reach any agreement under the terms of the law enacted last Winter. In all matters, however, Mr. Place said that he was willing to give the committee what help and information he could.

It is shown in the report that the joint committee set to work to plan and submit for public scrutiny a definite suggestion that would consider the rights of the railroad company and of the city. As a result of this determination, the tentative proposals were made and submitted to the company in October. A draft of an agreement was made along the lines of the proposal and sent to Mr. Place on Oct. 30. Then the report says:

"The statement was made to Mr. Place that this draft does not represent finality of the committee's view as to the form or detail of a desirable agreement, but it is submitted as showing the lines along which such an agreement might proceed and provisions which might well, in the public interest, be inserted. Mr. Place has not undertaken to criticise or comment adversely upon the form or substance of this draft."

A letter was sent to Mr. Place on Nov. 15 in which appeared an extract from a statement made by him that the company could not and would not under the law of 1917 make any contract. On Nov. 16 Mr. Place replied in a long letter, in which he said that as careful a study of the tentative proposal had been made as was possible without maps or profiles, and that with only a preliminary draft of an agreement. Neither the proposals nor the draft, Mr. Place said, overcame the difficulties created by the new law, and they only emphasized the impossibility of reaching an agreement. Commenting further on the law of 1917 transferring on Dec. 1 all power over the west side improvement to the Public Service Commission in case of the failure to reach an agreement with the company, Mr. Place said:

"The impossibility threatened by the bill became a fact. For whatever may be said of the validity of other provisions of this statute, there is not the slightest doubt of the effect of its destructive and obstructive provisions and purposes. Those leave no discretion with any one. They are mandatory. The necessary result is that the railroad company cannot and will not at any time or under any circumstances or conditions which can be proposed by any one under this statute make or enter into any contract. That language accurately states the position of the company."

At a meeting yesterday of the committee appointed by the Governor to inquire into the progress made toward solving the west side improvement problem, opinions were expressed by several representative citizens concerning a plan for developing the port of New York. William R. Willcox, Chairman of the New York-New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission, and Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for the commission, discussed plans for the development of transportation and terminal facilities.

mies by this Government, must be reached by Congressional action. The Administration, for reasons unexplained, is unwilling as yet to have Congress declare that a state of war exists with the allies of Germany—Austria-Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria. According to lawyer officials of the Government, Congress can declare the allies of Germany enemies and authorize that they be treated, as is provided in Section 4,067 of the Revised Statutes. This, they hold, can be done without a war declaration. It is believed that President Wilson will point out the necessity for additional legislation.

Ousting Germans from District.

Maurice Splain, Marshal for the District of Columbia, issued today the following regulations and instructions for the exclusion of enemy aliens from the District, pursuant to the proclamation:

"Acting under the authority conferred upon him by Regulation No. 4,067, the President has issued a supplementary proclamation in regard to alien enemies, Section 13 of which reads as follows: 'An alien enemy shall not enter or be found within the District of Columbia.'

"The enforcement of this proclamation has been delegated to the Attorney General, and the following instructions are issued under such delegation:

"The Department of Justice has permitted alien enemies who were residing in the District of Columbia prior to April 6, 1917, a period of grace, extending until midnight of Dec. 15, in which to remove from the District of Columbia. No other alien enemy shall be found within the District on or after Nov. 21, 1917. This regulation and the instructions under it will be enforced without exception, and an alien enemy violating it renders himself liable to summary arrest and detention.

"The following instructions are made regarding the removal of alien enemies from the district:

"(a) Every alien enemy residing in the district must, before he removes therefrom, fill out and swear to, in duplicate, a supplemental paper furnished by the department, giving correct details as to his future movements. The Marshal will then transmit one copy of this supplemental paper to the department and the other copy to the Marshal of the district to which the alien enemy plans to remove.

"(b) Every alien enemy must report to the Marshal's office of the district to which he removes, or to that of his deputy nearest to him, immediately upon his arrival therein. Further, any failure to observe the above restrictions or requirements will render the alien enemy liable to summary arrest and internment.

"The department suggests that the Marshal for the District of Columbia inform the alien enemies excluded from the District by this regulation of the other regulations of the President, and of the necessity of their understanding and obeying the same.

"Further, the Marshal should inform these persons that if they should be arrested summarily the United States Government will not undertake in any way to care for or support their dependents.

"It must further be understood that the issuance of this proclamation automatically revokes any permits issued to alien enemies to work or reside within forbidden areas previously existing under regulation No. 4 of the President's proclamation of April 6, 1917."

WATERFRONT PATROL TAKES 4,000 MEN

Regulars Expected to Take Over Guardianship of Piers with Local Aid.

The Eastern Department of the United States Army, with headquarters on Governors Island, will probably be charged with the enforcement of those provisions of the new enemy alien regulations which have to do with the guarding of the waterfronts of New York and other cities in the department and the protection of munition plants working on Government contracts. Officers of General Hoyle's staff on Governors Island are said to have already begun the work of perfecting a scheme or patrol. It was said that at least 4,000 regulars would be needed for this duty. The military authorities will work in co-operation with the State and municipal authorities.

Following the ruling of President Wilson regarding the presence of German aliens on the waterfront, Marshal Power issued an order to all lessees of piers and waterfront property in Brooklyn and Staten Island that strict surveillance must be maintained to guard against acts of sabotage. Pier owners, according to the orders of the Marshal's office, must engage a force of inspectors to carry out the work of guarding the waterfront property.

An exodus of Germans is under way from the vicinity of the army piers at Hoboken where, on Monday night, soldiers arrested and interned nearly 200 enemy aliens. Last night, it was said, that for the first time in the history of Hoboken, a person could walk along River Street without meeting a single German and without even hearing a word of German spoken.

When the Government took over the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd piers for army use at the beginning of the war, the crews of some of the ships and also employes of the companies who worked at the piers betook themselves to houses on River Street, which runs parallel with the water. Also German sailors and workmen went to live in small flats and boarding houses on the side streets running up from the harbor front. At night they assembled in the saloons on River Street, which ran wide open.

When army officers began to have trouble with the illegal sale of liquor several weeks ago, an order was issued to close places where liquor was sold in a zone which would take in every bar near the piers. Still, bootblacks, barbers, and newsboys were able to get liquor and give it to men in uniform. Appeals on patriotic grounds were unavailing. Next all the saloons in Hoboken were closed.

Albert Struntz of 206 River Street, an aid of Mayor Griffin, was arrested and taken to the docks for embarkation to Ellis Island, despite his protest and his display of a shield of office. His wife saved him when she came down to the boat with his citizenship papers. There were two more arrests of Germans yesterday made by soldiers near the piers.

It is expected now that in a week or so the Government will declare River Street closed to all except Government business. The east side of the street is already patrolled by sentries who force all traffic to the western side, and if the order goes into effect a dead line, it is expected, will be declared at Newark Street at one end and at Fourth Street at the other.

An investigation has been ordered by army officers to determine the cause of fire on the transport Pastores, which started soon after the raid took place. The fire did only small damage, according to Hoboken firemen, who were summoned when the soldiers failed to put out the blaze.

Army officers denied yesterday the report that the Pastores had been occupied by German prisoners of the raid prior to the time the fire started. They assert that the fire was caused through carelessness on the part of some one who was assisting in the fumigation of the ship.

Capt. Tunney Says Capture Is Most Important Since War Started.

The arrest of a "very dangerous enemy alien" was announced late last night by Captain Thomas J. Tunney, head of the Police Headquarters Bomb Squad. Captain Tunney refused to divulge the identity of his prisoner further than to say that he was formerly in the employ of the Hamburg-American Line, and was a German reserve army officer.

Captain Tunney said the arrest was one of the most important captures made since the United States entered the war. The German had been under investigation for several weeks, and last night Captain Tunney sent Detectives Peter Walsh and George Gilbert to bring the suspect to Police Headquarters.

When the detectives reached Headquarters with their prisoner they brought a large bundle of papers, which Captain Tunney said were important, and a large number of photographic plates of fortifications along the Atlantic Coast and of bridges in the vicinity of New York, all seized in the man's apartment. One of the plates was said to contain a reproduction of one of the large East River bridges.

Captain Tunney said that the prisoner would be turned over this morning to agents of the Department of Justice.

Another former German army officer, an enemy alien, arrested last night on a charge of abandoning his wife and three children, will be closely questioned by the Federal authorities this morning. He is John M. A. Klein of 428 West 204th Street, who says he was once a Lieutenant in the Fifty-eighth Prussian Infantry. He was arrested on a warrant issued in Jersey City, at the request of his wife, Mrs. Carrie Klein. The arrest was made by Detective Bennett of the Jersey City Police force and by Detective Apple of the Fourth Branch. It was not known at the time of the arrest that Klein was a former officer in the German Army.

GERMAN SEIZED IN TUBE.

Petty Officer of Navy Says Denecke Sneered at Government.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Lewis A. Marsh, stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was on a train in the Hudson Tunnels yesterday when he engaged in conversation with Henry Denecke, a clerk working in Manhattan, on his way to his home at 614 Traphagan Street, West Hoboken. Denecke expressed opinions about the war that didn't please Marsh. In the argument that followed Denecke made bold to state that he was a German, never expected to become an American, and just to show what he thought of the Government, boasted that he went into barred zones whenever he felt like it, although he didn't have a pass.

Marsh stuck at the enemy alien's elbow until the train reached Jersey City, when the German was very much surprised at being turned over to Police Lieutenant Hogue at the request of Marsh. He was taken to Jersey City Police Headquarters and the Federal authorities were notified.

WOMAN HELD FOR SEDITION.

Mrs. Couch, Reported Executed in Germany, in Jail in Illinois.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Nov. 20.—Mrs. Catherine Couch, who was reported to have been put to death in Germany last Summer for criticising that Government, is under guard in the village of West Salem, her former home, where she delivered a pro-German address on Sunday night. Sheriff Naylor of Edwards County said he expected no violence, although feeling was high in West Salem, and that Mrs. Couch would be guarded until Federal officers arrived.

Mrs. Couch is said to have criticised the United States for entering the war and for supplying the Allies with munitions.

ROUND UP I. W. W. IN KANSAS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 20.—A roundup of members of the I. W. W. in the oilfields of Kansas is to be made immediately, Fred Robertson, District Attorney for Kansas, announced late today. More than fifty I. W. W.'s were arrested in the Butler County oilfields today.

The purpose of the raids is to rid the oilfields of undesirables, Federal officers say. Each man arrested will be examined as to whether he has registered for the draft.

ROBERT BERESFORD SUED

Discouraging stock market experiences of the Hon. Seton Robert Beresford during the last two years, while he has been in this country in behalf of the British Government, are revealed in papers filed in the Supreme Court yesterday through which the Stock Exchange firm of O. R. Brand & Co. of 74 Broadway, obtained an attachment for $26,516 against any of Mr. Beresford's property that may be found in this State.

The complaint alleged that between June 2, 1916, and May 7 last the brokers bought and sold securities on the defendant's order, and rendered true statements of his account, "which he received and retained, and made no objection to any debt or credit therein contained." The final statement was made to him on Oct. 19, showing $26,516 due the brokers, and he also received and retained this statement without objection, it is alleged.

The defendant, who seldom uses the name Seton, and is best known as Bobby Beresford, is the brother of Lord Decies, who married Vivian Gould, and of Henry Beresford. He is Captain in the British Army, and for some years held the amateur lightweight boxing championship of Great Britain. When he came to this country in 1911 to attend the wedding of Lord Decies he engaged in a boxing match with Anthony Drexel, who later married Marjorie Gould. The match took place in the George Gould gymnasium at Georgian Court, Lakewood, and resulted in Mr. Beresford scoring a knockout in three rounds, for which he received a cup presented by Mrs. Gould.

CIVIC BODIES TO AID FOOD COMMISSIONS

Nine Organizations Will Be Represented on a New Advisory Council.

AIMS TO HELP HOUSEWIVES

Committee Will Hear Consumers' Complaints and Report on Conditions by Election Districts.

A plea for a definite program and for immediate co-ordination of the State, city, and Federal Food Administrations was made yesterday at a meeting called by Arthur Williams, City Food Administrator; John Mitchell, Chairman of the State Food Commission, and Dr. Henry Moskowitz, City Commissioner of Markets, for the purpose of assembling the various civic agencies that have been dealing with the food problem. Commissioner Moskowitz presided.

A resolution was adopted providing for the appointment of a committee of nine, representing the various civic associations, to act as an advisory council, which will be a channel through which the joint food commission will know the trend of affairs in each election district in the city. This committee also will give expression to the complaints of the consumer, and will assist in working out plans under which the State, city, and Federal Commissions will deal with the various organizations working in the interest of food consumers. Dr. Moskowitz said the membership of the committee would be announced today.

Commissioner Moskowitz declared that any action decided upon must have the good-will of public opinion, and that the housewife must feel that something is being accomplished that is benefiting her as an individual, as well as the community at large. He asked that the campaign be conducted along purely democratic lines.

Discussion of the food question revealed that the three food agencies are handicapped by the lack of a definite plan of action. Mrs. Robert Bruere, representing the Women's City Club, asked just what powers the city and State administrations possessed. Mr. Williams replied that Herbert C. Hoover, National Food Administrator, had declared himself as determined to back them to the extreme. Any violators of the regulations of the National Food Administration, he said, would be prosecuted.

A pledge of financial support for an advisory organization was made by Mr. Mitchell, who pointed out the seriousness of the situation. He said he found the absence of concrete suggestions disappointing.

" I believe," he said, " that we should bring into a federation of associations the various units that will be able to carry out the policy of the Food Administration. But we should go further and organize the groups of men and women now unorganized until we have a good working body in each ward of the city."

Jerome Green of the Harvard Club offered the resolution authorizing the advisory committee. Before the vote was taken, several speakers expressed the opinion that there should be a definite working program for the food administration before there could be concerted action by any committee. This sentiment was voiced by H. T. Klein, who was active in the food pledge campaign. He said there was danger of a new organization neglecting the work already done.

Tells of Complaints.

In reply Mr. Williams said that 308 complaints had been received from women, and 60 per cent. of these were based on the practice of forcing combination sales with sugar. He recited what had been done to bring relief in this direction. He thought the card campaign organization should be kept together. Mr. Williams's idea is to do educational work that will make every woman in New York her own food administrator.

Carl Beck, Secretary of the Labor Food Conference, said he deplored the fact that no definite program of co-operation for the three food administrators had been fixed. Labor, he said, was willing to co-operate. He feared that the committee would be a failure if it tried to assume the executive responsibility that belonged to the Commissioners.

"Let us have action and no more investigation," said Mrs. Julian Heath, President of the Housewives League.

A definite working program that "will get us somewhere," was advocated by William G. Willcox.

How the State has been organized in the cause of food conservation is shown by reports received by Major Michael Friedsam, Quartermaster General of the State and President of B. Altman & Co., who is the New York State Merchants' representative of the National Food Administration. Major Friedsam has been conducting a Statewide food conservation campaign through the retail merchants of the State. He believes that there is no better medium for reaching the housewives of the country than through the retail merchant. The first step taken by Major Friedsam was to call together the merchants of the State and to enlist them in a plan for reaching the public, with the idea of food conservation through store window displays, advertising, and through personal effort over the counters of their shops. Reports received by Major Friedsam cover not only the larger cities of New York, but many villages, where the food conservation meetings are largely attended. Hearty co-operation with the National Food Administration is shown all over the State, according to these reports.

Magistrate Groehl in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday held Thomas Revino of Jersey City for Special Sessions on a charge of the larceny of fifty pounds of sugar. Policeman Kollmen of the Macdougal Street Station said he saw Revino carrying the sugar from the confectionery of Adolph Ode of 421 West Broadway early yesterday morning. Revino said he obtained the sugar from John Abbruzbestz of Hoboken. Abbruzbestz was also held as a witness.

PLANS TO CONSIGN COAL TO THE EAST

PRICES OF COKE ANNOUNCED

Last of State Administrators Is Chosen—Policy of Local Control Announced.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The Fuel Administration is considering immediate withdrawal of the priority order under which all Middle Western coal shipments have been going to lake ports for the northwestern territory. When this is done the coal will be diverted to the East to relieve shortages, particularly in New England.

Dr. Garfield called into conference on the subject today F. C. Baird of Cleveland, the Fuel Administration's representative in charge of the Great Lakes situation, and W. H. Gloverman of Minneapolis, Secretary of the Northwestern Coal Operators' Association.

The lake shipping season is nearly over, and it is believed that most of the coal that can be supplied before it closes already has started from the mines.

Basic prices for by-product coke, by which it is sought to stabilize the market supplying manufacturers, were announced by the Fuel Administration. The prices, it was said, were fixed so as to provide a reasonable profit to the producers and consumers alike, and to maintain a steady product for the market. The Fuel Administration's order, which became effective yesterday, was as follows:

" The price of coke shall be understood as the price per ton of 2,000 pounds, free on board cars at the plant where the coke is manufactured.

Maximum Coke Prices.

" All the maximum prices mentioned herein shall apply to car lots sold to consumers or to dealers for wagon delivery, any commissions paid to selling agencies, or margins allowed to jobbers shall be paid by the vendors, and shall not be added to the prices established hereby.

" In all cases where wagon deliveries are made, either by the coke producer or by dealers, a reasonable charge for such handling and delivery may be made; such charge shall be subject to approval of the State Fuel Administrator.

" By-product Coke—Except for by-product coke produced in New England, the maximum prices for each grade of by-product coke, free on board cars at point of production, shall be the sum of the base price for the grade, and the freight rate from the competing beehive coke district which takes the lowest freight to the point where such by-product coke is produced. The base prices are as follows: Run of ovens, $6; selected foundry, $7, and crushed over one-inch size, $6.50.

" Gas Coke—The maximum price of gas coke sold for industrial or metallurgical use shall be fixed at the price established by the United States Fuel Administrator for the corresponding grade of coke produced in by-product ovens. The maximum price of gas coke sold for household purposes shall be the price established by the United States Fuel Administration for anthracite coal in the same locality.

" This order becomes effective 7 A. M., Nov. 19, and will remain in effect until Jan. 1, 1918, or until superseded by further order."

With the appointment today of Ferdinand A. Meyers of Baltimore as Fuel Administrator for Maryland, the list of State Fuel Administrators, who will enforce coal prices and coal regulations in the individual States, was completed. The Fuel Administration said the work of completing the local organizations in the various communities would be rushed.

" The Fuel Administration," the statement said, " desires to decentralize all of its activities as far as possible, in order that all rules and regulations may be accommodated to local conditions. To this end the State Administrators will be given full authority to deal with all matters developing in their particular States, under the general policies and rules laid down by the United States Fuel Administration.

" The State Administrator in turn will delegate to each coal committee formed in the local communities throughout his State sufficient authority to handle all local problems, under the general policies and rules of the State Administrator and the Federal administration.

" The local organizations are being gradually completed in many of the States, and as rapidly as work can be done the entire country will be brought under the decentralized system."

TO ADJUST MILK PRICES.

Federally Appointed Tribunals to Work in Large Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—To solve the problem of high milk prices in metropolitan areas, the Food Administration today decided to establish regional milk tribunals under Federal appointment. These will be set up in New York, Chicago, and other of the large cities, and their function will be to adjust prices as between the producer and the consumer. The Food Administration's action, it was announced, is due to discontent among consumers over increasing prices. The producers have claimed justification for the rise.

The plan of the United States Food Administration, according to G. Harold Powell, in charge of the Division of Perishable Commodities, is to set up regional Federal commissions on which producers, distributers, consumers, milk experts, and the public at large will be represented.

These commissions will be formed, so far as can be done, from citizens in the districts concerned. They will at once begin public hearings, giving all parties in interest an opportunity to assemble and present all milk data and attendant facts that may bear upon equitable prices, decide according to the facts, and make reports that will advise the public of the true status of the milk nidustry in each of the districts named.

As the costs of producing and distributing milk vary, it is not expected that a uniform national price will be the outcome, but the Food Administration believes that important reforms may be inaugurated both among producers and distributers. The personnel of the commissions for the New York and Chicago dairy districts will be completed within a few days.

Help Conserve Our Nation's Gasoline and Rubber with the Franklin Car

THE daily production of gasoline is 6,849,000 gallons. Of this production, the Government needs, and must have, nearly a million gallons every day.

This is a new demand on our gasoline supply—last year it did not exist.

The Government's War needs are imperative. Government officials, newspapers and magazines put it up to the motorist to help conserve our nation's gasoline supply.

A motorist may, in all sincerity, wish to cooperate with the Government in gasoline conservation—but, unless he operates a car of thrift, of what value are his "good intentions"?

In connection with this lively National issue, it is interesting to note the motoring public's opinion of the Franklin Car as a car of thrift and utility.

The Franklin has tripled its building schedules.

Working on this tripled production it has not, as yet, equaled the daily growing demand that has sprung up for the Franklin throughout the country since the cost of gasoline and rubber went up.

Gasoline and The Franklin Owner

The man who knows anything at all about automobiles knows that the Franklin owner is already down to rock-bottom thrift. He gets eight to fourteen miles more per gallon than the owner of the average fine car.

He owns a fine car that is scientifically constructed to deliver the most miles for the least expense in GASOLINE, TIRES and OIL.

DIRECT AIR COOLING removes 177 unnecessary parts of plumbing in a Water Cooling System—with its freezing troubles in Winter and its overheating troubles in Summer. It saves the expense and uncertainty of anti-freezing mixtures, repairing radiator leaks and a hundred and one other annoyances well known to the owner of a water-cooled car.

The Franklin Owner has a comfortable car—the easiest riding car built. Easy to take through the thickest traffic and untiring over roads as they come.

Tires and The Franklin Owner

Rising costs in rubber is another problem to most motorists.

His Franklin consistently gives an average of 10,000 miles to the set of tires, as recorded from individual owner's reports.

Where the owner of the average fine car buys four sets of tires, the Franklin Owner buys but two and the heavy car owner's cost would be almost three times the Franklin Owner's. On tires, too, he is down to rock-bottom thrift.

The Franklin Sells on Performance —Not Theory

Much talk is being expounded on this question of gasoline and tire economy.

But talk will never settle the question.

The car itself must give the economy—not the owner.

If it is, it can perform like the Franklin.

When "Le Roi" was produced in Paris, some ten years ago, American managers, one and all, were tempted to produce it here, for it was quite the freshest and most amusing piece of its kind in years. One and all decided that, with its risky wit and riskier situations, they could not chance it. Since then much water has passed under the bridges, and many old standards in the theatre have taken to cover. Mr. Ditrichstein himself has been a main factor in making us accept a certain kind of lover as great, and now it is he who has produced "The King," which is quite the limit of his achievement in amorous and theatrical adventure.

Caillavet and Flers wrote the piece at a time when Paris held fresh in mind the state visit of a certain minor monarch from Eastern Europe. A republican populace had turned itself inside out to do homage to royalty, and society had gone into esctacies over a charming but quite commonplace young man. Meantime the amorous adventures of the King became so strangely mingled with affairs of State that the Ministry tottered. It was a situation and a topic spotted with targets for the shafts of satire, and the authors of "Love Watches" and "The Sacred Grove" riddled it.

We ourselves are supposedly republican, and we also disgorge ourselves like a leech in the presence of royalty. That helps us to understand one phase of this satire. Does France cast down her kings? It is because the Goddess of Liberty is a woman, and the kings presumed to master her. But a visiting king is in the happier case of the lady's lover. . . . The point is clear, even to our virtuous American intelligence. Hits at the foibles of social democrats are also familiar ground to us. As for the background of amorous intrigue, a long apprenticeship in imported drama, and perhaps a native sense of human nature, make that also familiar.

The wit of the play sparkles incessantly, and the laughable detail with which it is embroidered seems marvelously fresh and spontaneous. The character drawing is keen as an etcher's point, and the mood of the whole is inspired by the gayest and most abandoned good humor. There were times when even a first-night audience caught its breath, but it was only to burst more explosively in laughter. "Necked is always necked," says the social moralist of the piece But, as he himself presently learns, that is not quite true. There are some who prefer the crude physical nudities of certain musical shows, and others who delight more in revelations of undraped human nature. It is to the latter that "The King" addresses itself.

As the very naughty but very human young King, Mr. Ditrichstein has a part which does not at all test his finer abilities as an artist, but which gives abundant scope to his sense of risqué humor, and especially to his mood of amiable good fellowship. It is due to his air of good comradeship more than to anything else that the things he says and does are so nearly tolerable and so very amusing. He is every inch "the King." And the performance is no less notable for being so well within his range

In so large a cast it is not to be expected that these scenes of Parisian life shall be rendered with the last touch of subtlety and atmospheric effect. Much of the production was exceedingly crude. Yet the main points of humor and character were adequately rendered. If special credit is to be given, it is due to Robert McWade, who played the social climbing Socialist, and to Fritz Williams as a comic detective.

TRIED TO ROB MRS. KING.

Seven or Eight Men to be Prosecuted After Means's Trial.

While waiting for the trial of Gaston B. Means, who has been charged with the murder of Mrs. Maud R. King, Assistant District Attorneys John T. Dooling of New York and Marvin Barnhart of Cook County, Illinois, have been in consultation over a mass of documents which implicate some seven or eight men here and in Chicago in a conspiracy to defraud Mrs. King of her estate.

Mr. Dooling said yesterday that he has obtained certain documents which point clearly to the commission of larceny, perjury, and forgery in the manipulation of Mrs. King's affairs, among these documents being the forged will, which has figured so largely in the investigation of the woman's affairs.

According to Mr. Dooling, he and Mr. Barnhart will simultaneously take these documents before their respective Grand Juries, and proceed to the indictment of individuals who were clearly guilty of crime. For certain reasons, however, Mr. Dooling said, it was necessary to postpone such action until after Mr. Means had been tried on the murder charge.

TELL OF CAMP SCOURGES.

Army Surgeons Give Hints to Civilian Practitioners.

Majors William F. Snow and David Silver of the Surgeon General's staff, U. S. A., addressed a gathering of physicians last night in the rooms of the Kings County Medical Society, 1,313 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and mentioned pneumonia and meningitis as among the great scourges in the army.

Major Snow said that surgeons no longer consider measles, typhoid fever, and malaria dangerous. The mortality rate of these diseases was very low, he added, because the medical department of the army had found the means to cope with them and to prevent their spread. He pointed out to the civilian practitioners how they could do their bit in reducing disease in camps.

Health Commissioner Haven Emerson said yesterday that he knew of no truth in a report that illness among the enlisted men was due to the action of Germans in spreading disease at the camps. He said he did not credit the report.

THREE NEW SINGERS FOR METROPOLITAN

The Metropolitan yesterday announced three new artists soon to be heard in opera. They are Alice Gentle, an American mezzo-soprano, who has sung at Milan and who will create the Indian title rôle in Cadman's "Shewanis"; Morgan Kingston, a Welsh tenor, remembered in English "Lohengrin" at the Century, and Rafaelo Duaz, a young American tenor.

General Manager Gatti-Casazza also announced that Liszt's "St. Elizabeth," originally to have been staged in German this week, is being restudied in English for production in January. Rabaud's "Marouf," the French novelty, will have its American premiere in mid-December. Before that comes a revival of Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment" in Italian.

The third week of opera will bring the first repetitions, including "Faust" next Monday with Farrar, "La Traviata" on Wednesday week with Hempel, a Thursday "Bohème" with Muzio and four new Bohemians, and a Saturday matinée of "Elisir d'Amore" with Caruso.

A Thanksgiving matinée, "Carmen," when May Peterson makes her début and Whitehill sings the Toreador, will be among the next week's additions to the repertory, together with a Friday "Prince Igor," sung by last year's cast and conducted by Bodanzky, who has led Russian operas in Russia.

Finally, on Saturday night, Dec. 1, Morgan Kingston makes his appearance in "Trovatore," the fourteenth opera thus far scheduled, or a third of the year's repertory in the first three weeks. At next Sunday's concert, with Percy Grainger, pianist, the singers are Claudia Muzio and Thomas Chalmers.

THE MARGULIES TRIO.

Fourteenth Season Opened with Franck, Bossi, and Beethoven.

The Adele Margulies Trio began their fourteenth season in New York with their concert last evening in Aeolian Hall. They have deserved well of the New York lovers of chamber music, and have been conscientious and skillful interpreters of a form of that music that is not otherwise systematically represented in public concerts, though it comprises many fine works of the masters, greater and lesser. As in recent seasons, the organization is made up of Miss Margulies, piano; Mr. Lichtenberg, violin, and Mr. Schroeder, 'cello.

The program last evening comprised César Franck's trio, Op. 1, No. 1; a sonata for violin and piano, by M. Enrico Bossi, in E minor, and Beethoven's trio in B flat, Op. 97. Franck's early work is naturally not the Franck that is now best known and most influential; but it has characteristic traits that are unmistakable; as the opening theme and much of its treatment; certain harmonic progressions now and again; and, most of all, the "community of theme" that subsists through the three movements. Bossi's sonata is vigorous and sober music, erring most in the direction of lascivious pleasings, and in certain portions unmistakably dry. But there is an abundance of vitality in it, and it was interestingly played by Mr. Lichtenberg and Miss Margulies. Beethoven's great trio has before now appeared on the programs of the Margulies Trio.

Miss Garrison's Recital.

Miss Mabel Garrison, whose singing at the opera has put her among the talented American contingent there, gave a song recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, where a large audience heard her. The voice is a light and fragile high soprano, delicate and clear in quality, rather slender, naturally, in its capacity for emotional color and expression, but, through the skill, grace, and vivacity of Miss Garrison's use of it, capable of producing delightful results. It can hardly be said that the aria from Bach's cantata, "My Spirit Was in Heaviness," which she put on her program after Handel's "Come Thou Goddess Fair and Free," is one adapted to Miss Garrison's voice or style. Far more so was Mahler's charming song, "Wer hat dies Liedlein erdacht"; and in general the songs of lighter sentiment and manner were those in which she was most successful.

Notable among these was the "Hymn to the Sun," from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Coq d'Or," with its Oriental melismas and high tones; or Stravinsky's "Pastoral," without words, or the Oriental "Danse Sacrée" of Georges. Miss Garrison included a group of English and American songs in her program, including one by Mr. Kurt Schindler, who played her accompaniments with exquisite skill, and two of the delightful Kentucky songs collected by Howard Brockway and Miss Loraine Wyman. One thing her admirers would like to hear from Miss Garrison is an attack upon sustained tones that is not followed incessantly by a swelling of the tone; whereby her legato style would be improved. The charm, delicacy, and frequently the brilliancy of her singing gave great pleasure.

Assume War Tax on 'Losing Eloise.'

Selwyn & Co., in view of the falling off in theatre attendance brought about by the 10 per cent. war tax, announced yesterday that they would assume the tax at all future performances of "Losing Eloise" at the Harris Theatre. This will mark the second attraction to recognize existing condiditions in this way, the first being "The Land of Joy," at the Park Theatre. At several other theatres the tax is being paid by the management on certain priced tickets.

"A Night in Spain" on Century Roof

The Cocoanut Grove, on the roof of the Century Theatre, will be reopened on the night of Monday, Dec. 3, with an entertainment called "A Night in Spain," which will be given by the Spanish company now appearing at the Park Theatre in "The Land of Joy." As previously, the Cocoanut Grove show will begin at midnight, and accordingly will not interfere with "The Land of Joy." Special music for the new entertainment will be composed by Joaquin Valverde, composer of "The Land of Joy."

PHILADELPHIA SHUNS MEAT.

Hotels, Restaurants, and Lunchrooms Observe Tuesday Rule.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—Beefless Tuesday today became meatless Tuesday in the restaurants as well as the hotels of this city.

Proprietors of chain restaurants and lunch rooms have an ironclad pact for a meatless Tuesday, which means that beginning today it is impossible for any one to get meat on Tuesday in any of the cheaper restaurants. The rule is also being observed in the higher-priced restaurants.

Buckwheat cakes were served without sausages and Boston beans were unflavored by pork.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Packing houses and the meat industry generally are co-operating fully, the Food Administration announced today, in support of a meatless Tuesday. As an illustration, attention was called to a notice just sent to its customers by a packing company of Los Angeles, informing them that it would make no deliveries of meat or meat products for consumption on Tuesday, except for the army and navy.

REVIVES NEUTRAL SCHEME.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 20.—President Irigoyen has revived the project for a congress of neutral Latin-American nations, although several attempts to assemble such a conference have failed. The President will shortly issue a call for the congress.

FEDERAL CARGO SHIP READY TO LAUNCH

HAS BEEN NAMED ADLON

Steel Oil-Burner of 8,800 Tons—Twenty-eight Requisitioned Vessels Already Accepted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—An epochal event with the Emergency Fleet Corporation will take place next Saturday when the steel vessel Adlon, the first to be constructed by the Government since war was declared, will be launched at Seattle. The Adlon will be the forerunner of a huge fleet of merchant ships, Government built and owned, which will be put upon the ways within the next few months.

The Emergency Fleet Corporation does not announce how many vessels it expects to launch by next Summer, but the number, it was said today, will be sufficient to make an appreciable difference in the ocean-going tonnage. Steel and wooden ships will be turned out every week or so from now on.

The Adlon, an oil-burning vessels of 8,800 tons of the standardized type, was begun under order of Major Gen. George W. Goethals when he was head of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. It has taken five months to build, and cost approximately $1,540,000.

Besides this steel-built Government ship, the Emergency Fleet Corporation, it was announced today, has completed and accepted twenty-eight steel, oil-burning ships that were under construction for American and other shippers, or for foreign Governments, and which were requisitioned by the corporation. These vessels have an aggregate of 159,299 tonnage. All are constructed for transatlantic service. The aggregate cost of construction of these vessels was $175 a ton, making a total expenditure on them by the Government of $27,877,325.

Some of these requisitioned vessels will be in service within a few days. All of them will be in operation within a month. The ships have been constructed at various private shipyards along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and on the Great Lakes. The tonnage runs from approximately 3,000 to 11,000.

Five of these steel ships were completed last week. Three were former British ships, with deadweight tonnage of 2,930, 3,100 and 4,000; one a French ship of 4,000 tons, and one an American vessel of 5,000 tons. Two weeks ago a former French ship of 5,500 tons, a Norwegian ship of 10,475 tons and a British ship of 4,000 tons were put upon the ways.

GOVERNORS IN CLASH OVER EXTRADITION

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Governor McCall, in a letter to Governor Cornwell of West Virginia, made public today, explained that he had declined to grant a requisition for the return to that State of John Johnson, a negro, charged with an attack on a white girl at Charleston, because of the "grave danger" that the defendant might be convicted and sentenced to death for a crime of which he might not be guilty.

Assistant Attorney General Brown, who was directed by Governor McCall to conduct a public hearing, reported that exaggerated accounts of the crime had been circulated in Charleston, and because of their nature and Johnson's color there existed a prejudice "which would be difficult, if not impossible, of control by the most upright judge." Mr. Brown recommended that the negro, who is in jail here, be not returned to West Virginia. It was announced at the Governor's office that Johnson, who has been held in default of $10,000 bail on a charge of being a fugitive from justice, would be released forthwith.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 20.—Characterizing the refusal of Governor McCall of Massachusetts to honor his requisition for the return to West Virginia for trial of John Johnson, a negro, as constituting "a reflection upon the State of West Virginia," Governor John J. Cornwell late today made public a letter which he had written to the Massachusetts Executive. Previous to receiving Governor McCall's letter declining to honor the requisition, Governor Cornwell had writer to the Massachusetts Governor, a personal letter guaranteeing that no harm should come to Johnson and declaring "there is absolutely no danger of Johnson's being lynched or otherwise mistreated."

Governor Cornwell's letter as sent to Governor McCall today, follows in part:

"With all due respects to the representative of your State who visited this city for the alleged purpose of making an investigation regarding the case, I am compelled to say that he has evidently misled you as to the facts in this matter.

"The prosecuting attorney requested the privilege of presenting West Virginia's side of the case at the coming hearing of Johnson in Massachusetts, and was assured it was not necessary to do so, but when he insisted upon making that appearance, he was told he would be advised when the matter was to be again heard, and that no such advice was received, and that the prosecuting attorney had no intimation or information relative to the time of the further hearing as promised.

"Only a few days ago, I honored a requisition for the return of an alleged fugitive to your State. The crime with which he was charged was insignificant and unimportant as compared with the one which Johnson is charged, and for which two people are now serving sentences in the State penitentiary as accessories.

"Your refusal to grant this requisition for the reasons, as alleged, constitutes a reflection upon the State of West Virginia, and shows a deplorable lack of knowledge of it and its people. It also, in my opinion, tends to thwart the ends of justice, and violates the spirit of comity between the States to such an extent that I shall feel compelled to scrutinize with more than usual care any similar requisition from you."

ALLOW McCLURE TO SPEAK.

Declares His Loyalty in Address at North Carolina University.

Special to The New York Times.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 20.—After denying its platform to Colonel S. S. McClure of New York, the University of North Carolina today offered it to him, and tonight Governor Bickett introduced him before the State Literary and Historical Association.

Although placed last on the program and with only half an hour allotted to him, Colonel McClure was allowed to speak an hour, and the crowd expressed its change of heart in a resolution of regret at the earlier act of State officials and university men in canceling the McClure lecture. Governor Bickett declared the facts on which the platform was withheld were not denied by Colonel McClure, but so explained by him as to give universal satisfaction. The speaker denied any connection with The Evening Mail or the magazine bearing his name.

"I have always been right-minded on this war," he said, "and it broke my wife's heart that my loyalty was questioned."

SHIP NEGOTIATIONS STILL ON WITH JAPAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—In an authoritative way it was learned today that negotiations between the Japanese and the United States Governments concerning an exchange of Japanese merchant ships for American steel had not been broken off as indicated by an official statement issued in Tokio.

A cable message received in Washington today explained that the statement of the Japanese Department of Communications on the subject was intended to convey that if the negotiations were continued on their present basis the Japanese Government would feel obliged to bring them to an end. The dispatch stated that if the exchanges were suspended the Japanese Government would feel obliged to issue a statement reviewing the discussions and stating its position. This would be done, it was said, for the benefit of Japanese public opinion.

According to information received here the Japanese Government stated its minimum terms affecting tonnage and made its maximum concessions, and fully expected that, as an agreement upon the principle of exchange had been reached, an agreement upon the exchange itself would be effected soon. Disagreement came in the discussion of details.

Japan, it was asserted today, offered to the United States an amount of tonnage that would be a very material addition to the merchant marine of the United States. The deliveries were to be of ships already constructed and those not yet built.

Two prices for the ships were under consideration. The United States, it was said, demanded new bottoms, but Japan maintained that she could not supply these without disorganizing her trade. According to the account given, the price offered by the United States was far below that prevailing for tonnage in Japan, and the Japanese Government felt that there was no one who could sustain the loss which would be represented in the difference between the quoted prices and that offered by America. The United States also desired deliveries of vessels at dates far ahead of the time in which Japan undertook to deliver them.

The price for tonnage not yet constructed was another point upon which no agreement could be reached. Japan maintained that the price which the United States would require for steel would directly affect the price of new ships which the United States Government might contract for through the Japanese Government with the Japanese shipyards.

GOVERNMENT AND LABOR AT PEACE.

Government officials formally announced on Monday their policy toward labor in its performance of the joint task in the war conditions. Organized labor declared its policy on the same point the next day by a vote of 21,579 to 402. These were independent actions, without relation of cause and effect, or promise and consideration. But taken together they are parts of a logical whole, and gain strength from their independence. This co-operation will cheer those who have doubted the wisdom of the President's reliance upon organized labor and its spokesman. It has been justified by its first fruits, and creates a presumption which can be removed only by later incidents of a different sort.

The new demands of labor upon the railways have been referred to the President by both sides. The menace of labor troubles in the coal trade has been removed in the bituminous trade, and reduced in the anthracite trade. It is difficult to say which of these incidents is the more important. There can be neither production nor distribution without coal, and the coal supply has been the chief industrial problem of the war in all countries. It gave more trouble than any other branch of industry in England, but it has yielded to considerate treatment even more encouragingly here than there. No doubt there will be more friction from time to time, but at no time has the outlook been clearer than just now. So long as the present temper continues, future troubles may be faced with hope, and even confidence.

The Government's declaration of a policy of liberality toward labor embodies nearly all that union labor has asked for, and perhaps more than it would have received but for the demands of unions. The eight-hour day, as a rule, the weekly holiday, the fair wages and humane working conditions are now on the Government "schedule" as well as on the unions', and with general approval. In return, it may be hoped that labor will give its best efforts and cease the strikes which have marred its record. Patriotic speeches at Buffalo are welcome, but more welcome would be conduct concordant therewith on the railways, in the mines, and throughout the processes of production. If the unions will support Mr. Gompers in the ideas he has spread on the record, there will be no reason why he should not support the President, and why the country should not support them both. That would be the end of the labor troubles until peace shall revive the contentions which the war buried.

THE ONE GREAT DUTY.

The exhortation to better service, swifter service, for winning the war which Representative Medill McCormick delivers after his return from the battle fronts in France and Italy is timely and deserves attention. The conditions he describes are receiving attention of the Allies with increased steadiness and concentration.

Against the German advantage of a supreme command the Allies are making provision, late, but wisely and firmly, by organizing the Interallied Council. Lloyd George's proclamation of purpose, powerfully supported by President Wilson's message of instruction and approval to Colonel House, brings into view at once such unity of plan and control on the part of the Allies that we may hope to see no further sudden moves of Germany so triumphantly carried out as that on the Isonzo line. The iron ring about Germany will not restrain her or conquer her unless it is kept strong and inviolate at all points.

Representative McCormick calls attention, also, to the wonderful industrial organization of Germany, to the entire concentration of all the resources of the German people and German industries and talent for organization upon the single purpose of efficiency in the war. We must profit by that teaching, too. German industry, German organization, German singleness of purpose, can well be commended to our emulation. There is no other interest, no other duty, for a moment to be compared with the duty of individual and collective contribution to the efficiency of this nation in the war. The American people have shown their spirit in the wonderful response to the appeal of the Government for billions of money. The same spirit must and will be shown in all the industries that contribute to victory.

For the winning of the war we give life, we give money, we can give much more work than we have yet given. The spirit of sacrifice does not prevail everywhere. It would be reassuring, in this supreme hour, reassuring to ourselves and to our allies, if we could hear less talk from labor about the eight-hour day. The nine-hour day, the ten-hour day, would help immensely in forwarding our preparations. Why should not that sacrifice be made by labor in response to the patriotic impulse that has prompted other classes of the American people to innumerable sacrifices and new efforts? The farmer, too, needs something of the quickening spirit. Already we hear that disappointment with the results of this year's crop will curtail the acreage of planting and sowing for next year. That is a false note in the general harmony of patriotic striving. In the last two years certainly the toil of the farmer has been richly rewarded. He ought to keep step with the nation now, above all now, for next year's demand for foodstuffs may be even greater than the present demand.

We all hate war, we all want the war to end, but the sure way to bring it to an end promptly is for every American to make the utmost contribution in his power to the means of ending it. It is the one great duty, nothing should stand in the way of its performance.

THE DEBATE IN THE COMMONS.

Mr. Lloyd George's victory was assured before the battle began, and that is why it was not much of a battle. The opposition which suddenly flamed up against him, all based on the vain imagining that the Paris speech had supplied it with fuel, found that this was wet weather for conflagrations. There never was a more shining example of picking the wrong issue, erecting the wrong standard, shouting the wrong shibboleth. His adversaries imagined for one day that the speech was an indiscretion and had delivered him into their hands. Hence they shouted their war cry to the diverse clans, and there was no answer, no echo.

The debate had to be, because it had been announced. But a more perfunctory debate never was. Instead of falling upon Mr. George with Excalibur, Mr. Asquith went over his policy with a tuning-fork. It was not attack, it was criticism, and criticism in its dictionary sense, which is very far from its colloquial sense. And Mr. Asquith was far less concerned in attacking Mr. George than in defending himself. The speech was much more a repelling of the Premier's insinuations against a former Ministry than an assault on either the War Council or the Paris speech.

The result being foregone, Mr. George's reply was only in form a defense. It was much more a statement of policy. As he said, "America is in, Italy is in, France is in, Britain is in, and public opinion is in." So why wax hot in self-defense when everything was going his way? Never was there a more easily won triumph, but it was won before the day of battle.

THE ITALIAN DEFENSIVE.

The Italian defensive is so far from being a forlorn hope that before another month passes doubt may give way to confidence. At the present time there are grounds for holding that the Austro-German invasion will be brought to a standstill and then completely foiled. Venice may fall into the enemy's hands and even Vicenza and Padua, but not before the armies of Italy, France, and Great Britain have dug themselves in along the Adige. The friends of Italy must be prepared for a retirement from the Piave, to the Brenta, to the Astico, and then to the Adige, which the genius of General Foch and the gallantry of the allied armies should make impregnable. But while it may never come to that, a calm survey of the strategic situation indicates the Adige as the final defensive line.

There are signs that the Austro-German advance in the Alpine country south of Asiago and Quero, the design of which is to overwhelm the Italian left and force a retreat of the centre and right from the Piave, has not met with the success expected by the German General Staff. There are no better mountain troops than the Bersaglieri, and they are determined that the Germans shall not pass. The Italians may have to yield to numbers and heavier guns in the highlands that overlook the plains of Venetia, but the invaders are now realizing that they have to deal with much sterner stuff than the loosely organized Russians and the unprepared Rumanians. For the first time since the Isonzo was crossed on Oct. 24 General von Below is learning that the Italians can fight back hard in their own mountains.

Rome claims the repulse of four mass attacks on the Monfenera spur, and it is significant that Berlin speaks of "strong Italian counterattacks" and of "desperate fighting" on the northern slope of Monte Tombe. Meanwhile, Winter is at hand, and in that region Winter, with its deep snows and blizzards, is the ally of the defenders. With each day the Austro-German army coming down from the Trentino is held by the Italian resistance it will become more difficult to get supplies through for the invading army. After several weeks of campaigning the advance is no longer a rapid movement to envelop the Italian left. It begins to flag, and even if the Italians should be driven back, time has been given the French and British to place strong reinforcements on any line chosen by General Foch for a first or a final defensive.

On the lower Piave the Italians have not only held the Austrians but constantly repulsed them with heavy losses. If the German offensive in the north compels a retirement, it can be made in good order and over a well-equipped railroad, with branch lines running from the northwest into Treviso, Castelfranco, and Vicenzo. This system has a strong strategic value as far back as Verona on the Adige. Unless the unexpected happens, an Italian retreat should present no serious difficulties.

Taking the worst view of the case, the Italians should find in the Adige a sure defense with the aid of their veteran allies and under the direction of a master strategist like Foch. The Adige flows from the heart of the Trentino Alps for 220 miles to the Adriatic Sea. It is navigable all the way in Italian territory. Nature made it an ideal stream for a defensive. Its width for much of its course is 200 yards and the depth is from six to ten feet. It is a rapid stream and at this season of the year sudden and angry floods often occur. Verona is well served by railways, and a line runs back of the Adige southeast to Rovigo, Adria, and to Chioggia on the Adriatic. Bringing up troops, guns, ammunition, and supplies should present no grave problem.

The defenders, with their backs to the rich and populous States of Lombardy and Piedmont, would have a great advantage over the invaders, with two long lines of communication which pass through rough Alpine regions. General Foch, it may be assumed, is planning another defensive battle, with the victory on the Marne as a model.

REWARDS OF VALOR.

We have been reading, every now and then in the last three years, of some American soldier in the French or British Army, some precursor of America's entrance into the war for democracy, some ambulance driver, aviator, doctor, nurse, getting a decoration for bravery. How many of us know that if an American aviator, for example, wins the Croix de Guerre, he cannot wear it, under our army regulations, if he joins our army? Thus valor and skill are penalized, for these little gauds and ribbons, won in the face of death, not seldom bestowed, indeed, upon those who are "deaf to the triumph that they died to gain," are more than promotion, rank. Any British private is eligible to the Victoria Cross. It is the greatest prize of war in that army. A Distinguished Service Order is another pride and honor, plucked from the edge of death. It is a symbol of courage, self-sacrifice, extraordinary merit; and by and for symbols men live and die.

To Americans in the Foreign Legion, the Escadrille Lafayette, the British armies, the matter is important. Those who have won foreign decorations hesitate to join an army where they are not permitted to wear them—few but gallant spirits whom their country needs. It is the men and women of our forces, military and civilian, who are most interested. We are fighting by the side of forces where the award of distinctions is recognized as necessary and beneficial, stimulating every brave heart to more faithful, heroic effort.

There should be a series, grades of decoration. The means that France has found so rich in inspiring heroic enterprise should be no longer neglected by us.

Mr. William T. Hornaday, Vice President of the United States Army League, has prepared a plan or first sketch of a War Honors Commission bill, and Representative Murray Hulbert of this city has introduced it into the House. It provides for an Honor Commission, consisting of the Secretaries of State, War, Navy, the President of the National Academy of Design, the Director of the Mint, and "one distinguished citizen to be appointed by the President," all to serve for four years without pay. They are to provide honor medals and so on, to be awarded by "duly designated officers of the United States Government," to prepare regulations and designs, which, when approved by the President, Speaker of the Senate, [sic in the draft,] Speaker of the House, and Chairmen of the Military and Naval Committees of the Senate and House, shall become law. Persons who have received foreign decorations for gallant or meritorious service since Aug. 1, 1914, shall be allowed to wear them.

There is much that may be amended in the terms of the bill, the composition of the commission and of the tribunal to which the regulations are to be submitted; and the appropriation of $5,000 for the commission's expenses and $5,000 "for work that may be done at the Mint," is sufficiently parsimonious; but the main thing, the main purpose of Mr. Hornaday and Mr. Hulbert, is to awaken Congress and the country to the high necessity of establishing a modern system of war honors. Here is an inexcusable gap in our war preparations. It should be filled. There is an incalculable quickening of the spirit in the hope of a V. C.

NEUTRALS AND THEIR SHIPS.

The release at Baltimore of a Swedish ship, which is permitted to carry a load of grain to a home port, indicates that our Government's terms have been accepted by at least one of the northern neutrals. It may be that Sweden has promised to send no more high-grade iron to Germany. Norway is said to have accepted all the conditions. Her leading exports to Germany have been fish and nickel. If Denmark has been asked to withhold food from the Germans, measures pending in her Parliament do not show that she yields. These provide for rations of butter, (half a pound weekly,) pork, lard, and beef that will permit about one-third of the supply to be exported. Germany needs fats and will continue to get them from Denmark, whose Government officers complain that we are dooming their people to starvation because we withhold fodder required on account of crop failure. So far as can be learned, Holland still insists upon exporting dairy products to Germany and Austria. With each of these countries she recently made new food export compacts. We do not hear that they have been canceled. The Dutch semi-official press sees in our conditions obstacles which may prevent agreement about the use of the idle ships. The release of two—one to carry corn to the Belgian Relief Commission and the other with coal for South America—does not prove that our conditions have been accepted. While the negotiations were pending, last week, two Dutch luggers were sunk by the submarines, and all on board of one were drowned. The pirates may have been living on Dutch meat and dairy products.

Germany's need of food from the neutrals will be greater this Winter than at any time in the past. Whatever may take place in Russia, she can get no supplies there, for the Russian people, owing to transportation troubles, have not enough for themselves, but in many places are in danger of famine. The neutrals really have no surplus, if fair allowances be given to their own consumers. But some of them intend to go on exporting to Germany, and ask us to help them with fodder. For some days there has been no additional report as to the condition of the ship negotiations or the terms of the pending agreements. These should at least preclude any aid from this country for food exports to Germany.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Red Cross Activities Embarrassed.

As was inevitable, and therefore as might have been expected, the remarks recently ascribed to Secretaries Daniels and Baker—and not since repudiated by them—have chilled the enthusiasm and decreased the industry of the many women who have been knitting for the soldiers. The statements then made—to the effect that the sweaters and other woolen garments thus produced were not really needed as additions to the clothing supplied by the Government, and that the making of them was little better than a waste of time—these statements have had the further ill-effect of interfering with other activities of the Red Cross as well as that one.

According to reports coming in from the heads of Red Cross branches, women are asking if it may not be that to make surgical dressings is also a waste of time, resulting in a superfluous increment of abundant provision already made or making by the Government for caring for our wounded.

This question is an embarrassing one, for the Red Cross has been no more emphatic in appealing for these dressings and other hospital equipment than it has been in proclaiming an urgent demand for all the woolen garments that the women could possibly make. If the organization, as the two Secretaries more than intimated, was wrong in the one case, the natural inference is that it may have been wrong in the other.

The situation thus created is really grave, and the demand that it be cleared up, one way or the other, is entirely reasonable. Judging from what is said by great numbers of men from the training camps and by not a few of those in active service, it is the Red Cross that was right in commending the industry of the knitters and in urging them to keep their needles flying at topmost speed, while the two Secretaries founded on misinformation their assertions that everybody in the service was adequately protected from the Winter cold by the departments of which they are the heads.

The devotion and patriotism shown by many thousands of women in an effort to lighten the Government's heavy task are ill-rewarded when they are told on what ought to be high authority that for all the good their new industry accomplishes, they might as well have continued to play bridge, exchange "calls," or read little essays at the local Shakespeare or Browning club.

There Will Surely Be a Christmas.

Great numbers of people are now gravely telling all and sundry—including their children—that "There will be no Christmas this year." These statements are made in the tone of seeming sincerity, and they are strongly buttressed and justified by elaborate explanations of the innumerable demands for money that simply cannot be refused to which everybody, in war times, is subjected. Away back in most minds, however, and deep down in most hearts, there lurks the conviction that, war or no war, there is going to be a Christmas this year, as well as a Dec. 25, and the children, though they are a bit disquieted by the warnings they hear, are not really or very much alarmed.

"Something tells them" that the habit of Christmas giving is too deeply implanted to be abandoned, even in days like these, and of course it will not be, under anything less than absolute compulsion. Such compulsion, indeed, what with new taxes and the high cost of living and the diminution of incomes, will be imposed upon more people than usual, but they will not be by any means a majority of the population, and the numerous others, when the holiday season approaches, will revise their present determination.

The danger is that the revision will be postponed too long, and that there will be more than the ordinary amount of hasty, and therefore injudicious, purchasing done at the last moment. That would be a great pity, for it would be a serious setback to the reform effected in no inconsiderable degree of late years by the reiterated appeals to buy Christmas presents early.

This year it is more than ever important to do that, for the earlier the presents are bought the more likely are they to be judiciously adjusted to the resources of the giver and to the needs or taste of the recipient. So would the exchange of worthless trumpery—the things that are Christmas presents alone and have no other, or any imaginable, use. And this is a year, if ever there was one, when no money should be wasted.

Our Contract Must Be Kept.

Much perfectly good indignation—indignation that could be put to vastly better uses—among them that of characterizing adequately our pacifists and pro-Germans—has been wasted during the last week or so in denouncing the payment to the officers among our German prisoners of war of the same salaries that we pay to our own officers of like rank. This is, indeed, a thing calculated to cause some displeasure, especially in the minds of those who know how much better American soldiers are paid than are those of Germany, and that American prisoners get at most only the German rate. That, however, is only the chance of war.

What we do is not an absurd manifestation of generosity or magnanimity—it is only the carrying out of a contract formally agreed upon and signed by both the United States and Germany, among other nations, at The Hague in 1907, and the only possible excuse our Government could offer for not abiding by the terms of that contract would be the absolute inability to make the payments as then promised. And we have not come to that as yet. The section, as drawn, reads:

> Officers taken prisoners shall receive the same rate of pay as officers of corresponding rank in the country where they are detained, the amount to be ultimately refunded by their own Government.

That is mandatory, not permissive, and it is too late now to raise the question whether or not such an agreement should have been made. Made it was, and that settles it, and should settle it—for us.

Chastening from a Friend.

In "Jean-Christophe," a book that attracted, some time ago, an amount of attention that was in considerably closer proportion to its size than to its greatness, there is a passage calculated to chill the enthusiasm which its author's recent efforts to bring about a German peace have caused in the only country where that sort of peace is desired. For in the very first of the next to innumerable volumes devoted by M. Rolland to the history of his neurotic hero's life he wrote most disrespectfully of the Germans as a musical race!

It was when he described certain amateurs as gathering three times a week at the home of one of them to indulge in the performance, after their fashion, of what is called "chamber music." Of them he writes:

> They did not play very correctly or in very good time, but they kept to the appointed path and faithfully observed the marks on the score. They had that musical facility which is contented at little cost, that perfection in mediocrity which abounds in the race credited with being the most musical in the world. They had, too, voracity of taste, not particular as to the quality of what was provided, so long as there was much of it, the robust appetite for which all music is good, and the better the more solid—seeing no difference between Brahms and Beethoven, or, in the work of any one composer, between an empty concerto and a moving sonata, simply because they came from the same origin.

This, one might imagine, would give great pain in Germany, and it's no way for a pacifist to write about Germans. It's rather worse than references to what they did in Belgium, and, as is well known, no pacifist ever speaks of what happened there if he can possibly help it. And to say that the Germans, in music, as a race, have only "the perfection of mediocrity"—that really is too much!

ART NOTES.

An Exhibition for the Bronxville Red Cross.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Bruce Crane, an exhibition of paintings, both oil and water colors, has been arranged for the benefit of the Bronxville, Westchester County, N. Y., branch of the American Red Cross. The exhibition is to be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Gramatan beginning Sunday, Nov. 25, and to continue until Sunday, Dec. 2. The exhibition will include many celebrated canvases of eminent artists. Among the artists who will be represented are Cecilia Beaux, who will show a large decorative panel; Max Bohm, George Bellows, John Sloan, J. Alden Weir, Childe Hassam, H. Hobart Nichols, Jr., George H. Smillie, Will H. Low, William T. Smedley, Bruce Crane, William H. Howe, and Frederick C. Frieseke, the latter now being in France. Both of the Leyendeckers will exhibit original water colors in the water color section of the exhibition. There will also be shown interesting and original architectural studies by Otto Faelter, William H. Bates, Clinton M. Hill, and Harry L. Walker, who are residents of Bronxville. A private view on Sunday, Nov. 25, will be the opening function of the exhibition. The patronesses are Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Pressley Bisland, Mrs. Richard Hayward, Mrs. Ellis W. Gladwin, Mrs. Frederick T. Ackermann, Mrs. Harry R. Burt, Mrs. William V. Lawrence, Mrs. William Rand, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Lawrence, Mrs. Bertram Sears, and Mrs. Charles A. Culver.

Mrs. Wadsworth to Suffragists.

By Telegraph to the Editor of The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—In my statement published in The Times Monday I asked the people to consider the facts in proof of which I gave election figures. The suffragists reply this morning with a column of personal attack, but do not refute the fact that the number of new Socialist votes won by the Socialist candidate on a pacifist platform was similar to the number of German-born votes and to the increased vote for woman suffrage in New York City. A camouflage of personal abuse cannot conceal the truth. Senator Wadsworth and I are profoundly disappointed but not yet defeated, and will continue to oppose woman suffrage in the interests of home and national defense, regardless of any threats of political or personal retaliation.

A PROTEST FOR VENICE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Much as one must admire the manifold activities undertaken by this country since it entered into the war against the modern Hun and his ill-considered determination to destroy historic buildings and irreplaceable works of art, it strikes the foreigner as somewhat remarkable that no artistic body in the United States appears to have placed on public record its whole-hearted contempt for such vandalism.

It may, therefore, be of interest to recall that in October, 1914, the art lovers of Great Britain and Ireland drew up a protest against such barbarism. Copies were sent to the Comte de Lalaing, Belgian Minister in London, the American Ambassador in London, with a humble request that it be forwarded to the President of the United States, and Baron Kervyn de Lettenhove, art adviser to the Belgian Government. In due course formal acknowledgment of the receipt of the same was received.

Now that the foul destruction of Venice also is obviously contemplated, one may perhaps be permitted, although not a native of this land, to urge that some such formal protest be entered here before the blow falls.

The Anglo-American Task.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

General Bell will, I am sure, permit a regular army officer of the civil war to thank him for the highly patriotic, if somewhat apologetic, suggestion which he makes in your issue of today that the singing of the "International Anthem," first sung at St. Paul's Cathedral in London on the entry of this country into the present war, should "be encouraged."

To this may I be allowed to add that the noble speech of the President's ambassador to the Court of St. James's which was delivered at Plymouth (England) on Aug. 4, 1917, ought to be read by every lover of his country both in America and in England. It is described by The London Spectator as the greatest speech in our common tongue which has been spoken since the commencement of the war, barring two by the President himself.

Speaking of the task set before "this [the English] empire and the great Republic," he said that they "must, then, be the main guardians of civilization hereafter, the conscious and leagued guardians of the world. It is this that the war has revealed to us. It is not a task of our seeking. But it is a task that we will, with the other free peoples of the world, gladly undertake. To undertake it our comradeship must become perpetual and our task is to see to it that it be not broken nor even strained—our task and our children's task after us."

I forbear to quote more from this epoch-making utterance because an authentic copy of the whole speech is about to be published, which I hope will be read by all who believe in the law, literature, origins, and freedom of the English-speaking peoples.

Montenegrin Aspirations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the article of Charles Henry Meltzer about "Nicholas of Montenegro," I discovered an assertion which deserves to be brought to the attention of the public.

Mr. Meltzer, mentioning occasionally "a play in Montenegrin, (which resembles Serb or Russian,)" obviously means to say that there exists a Montenegrin language. Now, all people, including Montenegrins themselves, believe that the language spoken in Montenegro is Serb, and everybody, either in Montenegro or outside of it, calls that language only Serb, (srpski,) just like the language spoken in Serbia. The Montenegrins are of the purest Serbian race; their provincial name (Montenegro, in Serbian, "Tsrna Gora," means black mountain, a denomination which comes from the mountainous character of the country) has nothing to do either with their nationality or with the language they speak.

The mistake made by Mr. Meltzer is conceivable and could be left aside if it were without consequences. But in a moment when the most prominent representatives of Montenegro, with the recent Montenegrin Prime Minister, A. Radovich, at their head, claim in the name of the principle of nationality a political union of free Montenegro and Serbia, and when hundreds of Montenegrins living in this country proclaim, in public declarations, their solidarity with this claim of Mr. Radovich and his colleagues, the wrong assertion of Mr. Meltzer could create a quite unnecessary confusion.

Coal Saving in Office Buildings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that a great deal of coal can be saved if the janitors and tenants of office buildings eliminate overheating and useless lighting. Take a tour among the downtown skyscrapers any cold afternoon and observe what a large proportion of the offices are entirely too warm; then look around in the evening and see how many are brilliantly illuminated, although the tenants, or most of them, have long since gone home. Judging from my own observation, this is partly the fault of the clerks, partly of the janitors' force, cleaners having a way of turning on all lights and leaving them until the night watchmen come around.

Disloyalty in Private Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's issue I read with much satisfaction B. S Allen's letter, entitled "Disloyalty in the Schools." I hope and pray that this matter will be taken up at once. It is far more serious than most people suspect, and attention should be given to teachers in private schools. A German teacher, a clever instructor, of charming personality and wide experience, has done much harm in his very smooth way, and though parents have complained, the head of the school seems to think it is woman's fussiness.

A MARCHING SONG.

As we march, march, march to the martial strain
With the Stars and Stripes above us,
For the peace of those who love us.
For it's peace, peace, peace, and the right to reign
Like true freemen of creation!
Never shall the foe rest or pleasure know
Till he's settled with this nation!

As we march, march, march, with our measured tread,
The Stars and Stripes to lead us,
We laugh good cheer that our friends may hear
Our friends who just now need us.
For it's peace, peace, peace, and the eagle spread
Over sovereign rights forever!
To no evil foe shall our tribute go,
Our honor be sullied never!

As we march, march, march, every loyal breath
Shall cheer the sword that beckons.
He shall feel our strength in his country's length
Who with our cannon reckons.
For it's peace, peace, peace, be it life or death,
Peace for those who live and love us!
As we gladly go, let the bugles blow,
And hurrah for the Flag above us!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An American college student who served in the Ambulance Corps for four months at the western front relates the following in the Yale Literary Magazine:

> The morning following this, the section went into C——, which village had been abandoned that night by the boches. As we drove through the shattered town and past the Hotel de Ville a sight greeted our eyes which was worse than anything we had yet encountered. Stretched out on a number of planks that had been torn from the wall of a nearby house were three French poilus. Two long bayonets used as spikes pierced each man through the shoulders, while the hands and feet of each had been severed, interchanged, and tied in place. Underneath the poor fellows the boches had scrawled in black charcoal on a white board, "Stare and Wonder." We made photographs of the monstrous atrocity, threw the bodies in a corner to await burial, and proceeded to our task.

How could this young man be so inconsiderate of our feelings? He might have reflected how he would shock the susceptibilities of all good pro-Germans, pacifists, and neutrals in this country. Why did he not follow the example of another student who, writing last year from Belgium, declared that he had seen there nothing but what was to be expected in time of war, and who, with more naïveté than truthfulness, added that he had questioned several women who told him they had no special complaint to make against the German soldiers?

Yes, he might have; only he preferred to state what he had actually seen with his own eyes. We have heard and read before accounts innumerable of German fiendishness in this war; but, coming as they did from Belgian, English, and French sources, many Americans refused to believe them. Will they believe them now that they come straight from their own countrymen? Perhaps so. In any case we must be prepared to hear a good many more of the same kind. For truth scorns expediency. You may suppress it for a time, but it will out some time. Veritatem aperit dies, a free translation of which, although far less epigrammatic than the Latin version, would be: When Truth gets weary of hiding her nakedness in the bottom of her well, she comes out to claim her place in the sun.

LIBERTY COUPONS FOR WAR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In common, I believe, with many thousands of Americans, I should like to make a direct contribution toward the more effective prosecution of the war. We whom age, sex, or physical disability prevents from rendering actual military service chafe at the sense of our uselessness and long to do something that may count as actual and tangible help on the fighting line. To me, for example, the most effective Liberty Loan poster was the one which told prospective investors that every $50 bond would buy 1,007 cartridges to fire at the Germans.

But in buying bonds we were only making the safest of investments, with assurance of fair returns. Our contributions cost us nothing more than easily borne self-denial, which was its own reward in inducing thrift, and they were indirect. The same objection of indirection applies to subscriptions to such worthy objects as the $35,000,000 Y. M. C. A. Fund.

It does not apply, however, to a plan which has been favorably discussed in my hearing, namely, that owners of Liberty bonds pledge themselves for the period of the war to forego the receipt of interest on their holdings, such interest to be devoted by the Government to essential war expenditures which would otherwise be stinted for lack of money—to speed up airplane construction, perhaps.

Of course, not every investor could afford to sacrifice his income from the bonds, but it would be no hardship for a number sufficiently large to put in the hands of the Government additional funds running into many millions a year.

For the carrying out of this suggestion some special organization, official or unofficial, would doubtless be required, possibly also an act of Congress, in order to devote the funds to war purposes.

NEW POSTAL RATES.

J. A. Thayer Says Half of the Publications Will Be Forced to Suspend.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The adoption by the United States Government of a flat rate for magazines and newspapers of one cent a pound was one of the greatest and most far reaching moves ever promulgated. I presume that it was the idea of our Congress at that time that a low postal rate would not only promote education, consolidate opinion, and make for national unity of thought and feeling, but that it would bring the people in all parts of the country into constant touch with national affairs. The results from this low postage rate have been tremendous in many ways. The periodical press has been largely instrumental in bringing about the greatest solidarity of public opinion on matters of national importance. It has been the means of educating the people, bringing to millions of homes the best literature at a minimum cost. It is a fact that magazines, periodicals, and newspapers generally have not only multiplied in number, but have made giant strides in circulation, and the increase in advertising has been marvelous. But we must not forget the great benefits which the people enjoy on account of the tremendous circulation of national publications with their advertising income. It is this enormous revenue, as well as the flat rate of a cent a pound postage, which has enabled American publishers to make their periodicals the best in the world. But the large circulation and advertising incomes have been built up under the flat rate of postage. With the tremendous increase called for by the bill, which goes into effect next July, if not repealed, the price of the publications must be increased. This increase of subscription price will naturally decrease circulation; decreased circulation means a lower advertising rate, and hence less advertising income. Less advertising income means cheaper paper, cheaper illustrations, lower prices to authors, lower salaries to solicitors, clerks, and other workers, a reduction of employes to conform to conditions and bankruptcy for thousands. I say thousands, and believe I am right in saying thousands, for probably more than 50 per cent. of the publications existing today will be forced to suspend publication if this bill goes into effect. The printing industry, now the third industrial activity in this country, will suffer tremendously. There are some 700,000 men directly employed and dependent upon the printing industry. With this tax in effect, probably 30 to 50 per cent. of these men will be forced out of employment. If this bill is not repealed, magazines will have to increase their prices tremendously, and the public, therefore, will refuse to subscribe to a great many of them. Enough, certainly, will be forced out of business to nullify any proposed increase in postal revenue, while those which do survive will be greatly reduced in circulation.

BULGARIAN PLOTTERS BUSY

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Sept. 26 The New York Times published a leading article, under the title of "A German Garden," of which the subject was the discovery, in the garden of the German legation at Bucharest, of boxes containing high explosive bombs with a large number of tubes of germ culture for glanders and anthrax. The latter were to be used to kill Rumanian cattle and horses in case that country should join the Allies.

In one of the boxes was a typewritten note stating that "in case of good results the presence of M. Kostoff for one day here would be desirable." The writer of your article added: "We don't know who Mr. Kostoff is." May I be allowed to furnish some information about that gentleman?

M. Kostoff is a Bulgarian agent who was then in the employ of the Germans. His services being no longer required in Rumania, he has now been transferred to Switzerland. This is proved by a confidential dispatch from the Sofia Government to the Bulgarian Legation at Berne, which has fallen into the hands of the Allies, and was, through the intermediary of the Balkan Agency at Paris, published in the Gazette de Lausanne on Oct. 15. This dispatch runs as follows:

> At the meeting of the 21st the Cabinet approved your suggestion. It would be an excellent thing if an elucidation regarding our national aspirations could—in a veiled form—be published in the French-Swiss press so that the Entente Powers may learn the true meaning of our share in the war. We have intrusted Dr. Stojanoff with an important mission in Switzerland, and with reference to your report of Aug. 12 we have deposited 200,000 francs with the branch of the Deutsche Bank, which are from now at your disposal. Request Mileff to study the question of the hostile attitude of the French-Swiss press and the possible means of transforming that attitude. Buraff and Janoff will offer you efficient help, together with Kostoff. We quite approve that the Legation should remain at Villa Sonnenberg. The affair at the Milan Consulate is not serious. Please submit supplementary report 7,769.

> ZLATANOFF,
> Secretary General.

The two emissaries referred to, Dr. Stojanoff and Mileff, (the latter chief editor of the Echo de Bulgarie,) are at present at Geneva. The Kostoff in question is the individual who had the trunks of bombs and microbe germs sent to the German Embassy in Bucharest.

I am unaware if M. Kostoff's luggage again contains high explosive bombs and tubes of germ culture, but if the Swiss Government should incur the displeasure of Germany and there should be an epidemic among the Swiss cattle, the authorities at Berne will know where to look for its author.

TO STOP CHARITY WASTE.

Merchants Might Check Up Appeals for Advertising Support.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that some measure of protection ought to be afforded the generous merchants of this town if they are to be saved from the leeches who work on their sympathies in the name of charity and then pocket, as so-called "commissions," a large share of the money secured.

I see in the audit of the late Army and Navy Bazaar, the total receipts of which were $71,457.93, that the soldiers and sailors, who were to benefit by this, got about 1 per cent., or $754.96, the 99 per cent. being divided up for "expenses."

Of the total receipts the merchants of this city contributed $45,184.60 for advertising in the souvenir program, of which according to the auditor's statement the so-called advertising agent was paid, as commissions, one-half. I will not here characterize this payment to him by its proper name, but it certainly must be poor satisfaction to the merchants, who supposed they were contributing to a fund to buy comfort kits for the boys in the army and navy, to feel that fifty cents out of every dollar they contributed went to the glib-tongued solicitor who persuaded them to sign the contract.

Is it not time for the Merchants' Association or the Fifth Avenue Association to take up this matter of souvenir programs and protect their members by arranging it so that no merchant shall give an advertisement to any program which has not first received the stamp of authenticity from either one of these associations? It would be easily possible for these associations to look into the contracts as between the solicitors and the affair to be benefited and protect the merchants from a recurrence of such outrages as are perpetrated on them every week in the year. This plan of official approval is in force in many of the smaller cities of the United States. No merchant thinks of giving an advertisement to a program which has not been officially approved by the Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce, whichever it may be in the city. These organizations look into the contract as between the solicitors and the charity and, if the contract is a reasonable one, put their stamp of approval upon it. This protects the merchant and stops the high-handed work which is going on in this city all the time in connection with programs for philanthropic purposes.

Barnard's Realism.

"E. D. A.," commenting privately on my letter about Barnard's Lincoln, urges that the sculptor falls down at the very point where he sought to be strongest. Aiming at realism, he took a six-foot-four Kentucky rail splitter as his model. But the rail-splitting Lincoln was a youth. The Lincoln of 50 or over was a statesman of thoughtful and sedentary habits. An elderly rail splitter in a frock coat is neither fish, flesh, fowl, nor good red herring. It is false to history, false to nature, false to art. Cromwell asked to be pictured with the warts on his face, and a true artist would neither cloak nor dissemble them. But the face in the portrait would be something more than a background for these realistic excrescences. Lincoln's hands and feet were big, and the fatal gift of facial beauty was not his. But unless history and tradition have grossly misrepresented him, he was something more than a tall man with large extremities.

Two Anthony Georges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Times is requested to aid in checking the rumor which associates the identity of Anthony George, former employe of the Syracuse Smelting Works, now a United States cavalryman at Fort Riley, Kan., with a man of the same name who was recently sentenced to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta for selling drugs. The creation of this impression seems to have been due to the fact that the name is an uncommon one. In justice to a man now serving his country, however, it is only fair to state that the cavalryman and the drug seller are two distinct persons.

$49,209,411 RAISED FOR Y. M. C. A. FUND

"I Think It Is a National Blessing," He Telegraphs to Dr. John R. Mott, Secretary.

Completed returns compiled from all parts of the country yesterday showed that the Y. M. C. A. war fund for the extension of association work among the sailors and soldiers of the United States and its allies had reached a grand total of $49,209,411. This figure was $14,209,411 in excess of the $35,000,000 which the Y. M. C. A. War Council set out to raise at the beginning of the campaign. Almost every State in the Union exceeded its quota, and many of them almost doubled their quotas. New York State subscribed a total of $10,518,592, its original goal being $9,000,000.

Many telegrams of congratulation were received by the national directors of the campaign at 124 East Twenty-eighth Street yesterday, commenting on the great success of the drive. Among them was one from President Wilson to Dr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the National War Work Council, which read as follows:

"My heartfelt congratulations on the remarkable and gratifying results. I think it is a national blessing."

The message was received in response to the following telegram which Dr. Mott sent to the President late yesterday afternoon:

"It gives me great joy to report to you personally the remarkable success of the financial campaign of the National War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Association which closed at midnight yesterday. You will recall that our goal was $35,000,000. From present indications nearly, if not quite $50,000,000, has been subscribed. You will rejoice to know that the hope you expressed in your letter to me of Nov. 9 that there might be such unanimity and complete success of this patriotic and practical effort has been thus fully realized, because every State and apparently every county of the country and all classes, parties, and creeds have joined with real generosity and sacrificial spirit in accomplishing the desired end."

Great interest was aroused at headquarters by the neck-and-neck race for leadership between the Eastern Department, with headquarters in New York, and the Central Department, with headquarters in Chicago. The latter took the lead in the early stage of the drive, but when the final figures were compiled last night the Eastern Department led with a total of $20,091,665, as compared to a total of $18,380,733 for the Central Department. The official figures for the whole country, as given out by Campaign Director Whitford last night, were as follows:

From a careful analysis of the returns, Mr. Whitford said he was convinced that notwithstanding the large contributions on the part of corporations and persons of great means, the money to a great extent was raised upon the contributions of men and women in all walks of life. Special campaigns to assist in raising the fund had been conducted by employes in all kinds of business and industrial activities. Large contributions were made by organized groups of factory workers, messenger boys, and even bell boys. Colleges all over the country also gave material aid to the campaign by the contributions from their student and Faculty bodies.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—At the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences held at the University of Pennsylvania today, Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute announced a new cure for blood diseases known as "A-189," which, he said, was an improvement over "606," and cost 6 cents a dose against $3 a dose for salvarsan, the German remedy.

According to Dr. Flexner, the new blood cure is less injurious to the human tissues than salvarsan. It is also more readily manufactured. The designation "A-189" indicates the number of modifications of arsenic contained in the cure.

Dr. Samuel Meltzer, also of the Rockefeller Institute, showed lantern slides portraying how scientists of the institution had cured tetanus with injections of Epsom salts. He displayed photographic plates of different stages of his experiment on an animal into which lockjaw germs had been injected. Within an hour after the animal was rigid and unable to move it was shown on its feet able to walk.

"The war, with the large number of infected wounds, which develop into lockjaw," said Dr. Meltzer, "has demanded a successful treatment for the disease."

Nansen Confers with President.

SCHIFF GIVES $200,000 TO JEWISH WAR FUND

Banker Starts Campaign to Raise $5,000,000 for Relief and for Welfare Board.

Jacob H. Schiff has given $200,000 to start the $5,000,000 New York campaign for Jewish War Relief and for the Jewish Welfare Board in the United States Army and Navy, it was announced last night by David A. Brown, who is to direct the campaign from Dec. 3 to Dec. 15. Mr. Schiff announced the gift at a meeting yesterday, to which were invited representatives of the Jewish newspapers in New York. This contribution makes a total of considerably more than half a million dollars, which Mr. Schiff has personally given to Jewish War Relief in the last two years. At a dinner held at the Hotel Savoy several months ago Mr. Schiff gave $100,000, and he has on several other occasions given equally large sums.

Present at the meeting were Henry Morgenthau and Nathan Straus, who, with Mr. Schiff, made addresses outlining what is to be done during the campaign and the reasons for it. Mr. Schiff declared that unless the Jews of America worked together in the present war, both to assist the Government and to help European Jewry, American Jews would be compelled to suffer together. Word was received yesterday from Brooklyn that that Borough plans to raise half a million dollars toward the five million, in conjunction with its campaign for the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities. Simon F. Rothschild and Nathan Jonas head the Brooklyn members of the committee.

Nathan Straus and Henry Morgenthau dwelt upon the fact that in the forthcoming campaign New York Jewry is absolutely united and that for this reason, great as is the undertaking, success may be looked for with all factions pulling together. They both expressed their appreciation of Mr. Schiff's having laid aside personal considerations to lead the campaign in New York in response to the demands made upon him to do so.

SHOWERS OF CHEER ON GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary yesterday afternoon with a reception, from 4 to 6 o'clock, at their home, 135 Central Park West. About 300 persons called, and the couple were also showered with messages of congratulation from California, their former home, and from France, for Mr. Meyer is of Alsatian origin, and has been decorated with the Legion of Honor.

The guests included many prominent men in the financial and philanthropic world, as well as eminent Frenchmen who are in the city. Mr. Meyer is a member of many French societies, and two years ago he contributed [illegible] the French Red Cross. Lieutenant Pierre Geismar, who was sent by the French Government to this country as an instructor in firearms, was among the military men attending, coming from Camp Upton.

Yellow chrysanthemums were used largely in the floral decorations, and the halls were festooned in gilded laurel leaves. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer received in the library, Mrs. Meyer wearing a gown of white embroidered chiffon and old lace.

Grouped near them were their five married daughters and their two sons. The eldest daughter, Mrs. Sigmund C. Stern, with Mr. Stern, came from their home in San Francisco. Mrs. George Blumenthal, Mrs. Alfred A. Cook, Mrs. Charles J. Liebmann, and Mrs. A. Stern are the other daughters, and Eugene Meyer, Jr., and Walter E. Meyer the sons. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer also have thirteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. Meyer was born in Strasburg, Alsace, in 1842, and his wife, formerly Miss Harriet Newmark, was born in this city. They were married in Los Angeles, Cal., on Nov. 20, 1867.

When Mr. Meyer arrived in Los Angeles it was a straggling town of about three hundred inhabitants, nearly half of them Mexicans, and he saw it grow into a metropolis during his twenty-three years' residence there. He also saw the golden spike driven when the Southern Pacific was completed. For some time he was Consular Agent for France in Southern California, and for ten years was the manager of the then London-Paris and American Bank in San Francisco. After returning to New York he was associated with Lazard Frères, the bankers, and retired in 1901.

WOULD END RESTLESSNESS

Board of Education to Investigate Attitude of Those Who Refused to Sign Mayor's Pledge.

Dr. Joseph H. Wade, District Superintendent of Schools, in an address made last night at Public School 9, West End Avenue and Eighty-second Street, speaking of the agitation against sedition in the public schools, declared that in Germany the slightest expression of disloyalty ended a teacher's service, and perhaps his freedom, and, if the expression bordered on sedition, it ended his life as well.

"There must not remain in our schools a single discontented teacher," he asserted. "There is a spirit of restlessness that will grow up among our children unless those above them are absolutely loyal and continue teaching obedience to authority. Absolute loyalty of the teaching staff must be expected. On proof of disloyalty the teacher should be immediately dismissed. Seditious or disloyal acts on the part of high school students above 16 years of age should result in immediate dismissal. Our State should not be taxed to educate useless or worthless children."

The nine De Witt Clinton High School teachers suspended and transferred issued a statement yesterday which they termed "The Prussianization of the Public School." The statement reviewed the incidents leading to the disciplining of the teachers. Dr. Henry R. Linville, President of the Teachers' Union, also issued a statement in behalf of the union, giving its side in the controversy.

Meeting of Protest Tonight.

A mass meeting will be held at Terrace Garden, East Fifty-eighth Street, tonight to "protest against disloyalty and autocracy" in the schools. The nine teachers, Dr. Linville, and Dr. John L. Tildsley, Associate Superintendent of Schools, have been invited to speak.

The statement of the nine teachers, after reviewing a list of questions they allege Dr. Tildsley asked them, then goes on to say the appended assertions express rather faithfully his views of things:

> Every teacher who voted for the Whalen resolution (protesting against the longer school day) is disloyal to the authorities.
> I believe in teaching instinctive respect and reverence for position as such, regardless of the type of man who occupies the position.
> The pupils should have no right to determine school policy or school administration. It doesn't matter what they want; it is what the Principal and the Board of Education decide that counts.
> The office dignifies the man; hence the need of instinctive respect for superior office.
> If I were the President I should not exempt Quakers or any other persons for conscientious reasons.
> I believe in freedom of thought, but not in freedom of expression.
> I believe the teacher who permits complete freedom of discussion in his classroom is unfit to teach in our American school system.

In the statement the teachers assert that the controversial issue in the situation includes, "the problem of freedom of thought and of expression in war time, the compatibility of loyalty and internationalism, the place of the critic in war time, and the relation between teachers' duties and rights as citizens and duties and rights as educators."

It is asserted by the teachers that the "false" issues are: Whether teachers who "rush into print" are disloyal to the authorities. They allege that "this accusation is finally stretched to include disloyalty to the Government."

New Investigation Likely.

It was learned yesterday that the Board of Education will soon investigate the attitude of those teachers who refused last Spring to sign the Mayor's loyalty pledge. About 100 teachers refused to sign the pledge when it was circulated, but a good many signed it later.

The three suspended teachers—Thomas Mufson, A. Henry Schneer, and Samuel Schmalhausen—will have a hearing before the High School Committee at the Board of Education tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The hearing will be open to reporters, but not to the public. The Executive Board of the Teachers' Union will meet next Monday night, and it is expected that the charges which the union will make against Dr. Tildsley will be made public.

In Dr. Linville's statement it is hinted that "it is not impossible that the present crisis in the educational system may force another investigation of the system itself more far-reaching than any that has ever been undertaken." The statement also says:

> We respectfully submit to the public the question of how far any municipal department may apply the method of the infamous "third degree" to ascertaining the personal views of employes on any public question. Let it be understood that the union will not under any circumstances condone overt acts of disloyalty. We do maintain, however, that our personal views on politics, religion, and citizenship are sacred so long as we do not offend the public conscience by exploiting them in our official relation. The world has had experience enough with bigotry. May the public join with us in preventing its expression now.

Explaining why the union is supporting the nine teachers, the statement says:

> The reason is that we believe the mob spirit has been turned loose upon our fellow-teachers, with the result that the public is in danger of doing to us what the educational system has been doing for many years, and that is crushing out all manhood and womanhood in the process of making us spiritless automata, working in a machine-like educational system.

Explains Refusal to Sign Pledge.

Referring to the fact that some teachers refused to sign the Mayor's loyalty pledge, the statement gives as the reason for refusal "that we believed the Mayor was trying to make political capital out of the crisis in the nation." The statement adds:

> When the Board of Education required its loyalty pledge to be signed by the teachers a very small number declined, but, as I understand it, for reasons of self-respect and objection to the unwarranted implication of disloyalty. Every one of the nine accused teachers signed the pledge, but the union is in no way responsible for any opposition to either of the two pledges.

Dr. Tildsley's questions at the Clinton inquiry show definitely that he endeavored to learn the names of those who formulated the so-called Whalen resolutions, protesting against the longer school day. Evidently he was balked in this effort, since the teachers took the stand that all of the 162 signers were jointly responsible. Thereupon the inquiry took on the character of an examination into the personal views of the teachers on the conduct of the war.

Arthur Somers, a member of the Board of Education, wrote yesterday to the Board of Examiners requesting an explanation of why Jessie W. Hughan, a teacher in the Morris High School, said to be a pacifist, received a higher license. The issuance of the higher license to Miss Hughan was held up for six months, it was said, but it was finally granted. Miss Hughan is the author of a book called "Socialism in America," and has been a contributor to the Intercollegiate Socialist Magazine.

GALLAWAY.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hanover National Bank of the City of New York, held this day, the following minute and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The Directors of the Hanover National Bank, having learned with deep sorrow and regret of the death of their much-respected associate on the board, Robert Macy Gallaway, and desiring to make a record of the high esteem in which he was held by his fellow-Directors, and their sense of loss which they have sustained by his death, it is

Resolved, That in the death of Robert Macy Gallaway this bank has lost the valued services of a distinguished Director. Although his membership in this board covered but a brief period—less than one year—he was able to materially add to the business of this bank; and

Resolved, That his greatly varied and long experience as a banker and corporation officer, covering a period of fifty-eight years, coupled with his marked business and executive ability, made his service to this bank and his counsel in the deliberations of this board of very great value. He was a genial companion and a loyal friend. Engrossed in many business activities, he nevertheless devoted much time and thought to civic and charitable matters. He rendered important service to the Home for Incurables, of which he was for a long time Treasurer; to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, of which he was Chairman of the Board, and he also served for years with energy and tact on the Board of Education of this city, and as a Trustee of the College of the City of New York; therefore it is

Resolved, That with a keen sense of the loss of a valuable Director, and in sorrow for his death, this board tender their sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives, and that as a lasting reminder of the very high regard in which Robert M. Gallaway was held by his associates on this board, it is ordered that this minute be spread upon the proceedings of the board, and that an engrossed copy thereof be forwarded to the family of our departed friend.

SYNDICATE BALL IS OPPOSED BY TENER

SHIFTING STARS FORBIDDEN

The suggestion which has been made to the American League club owners to pool the players and receipts next season will be strongly opposed by the National League, according to a statement made by President John K. Tener yesterday.

"It is not in harmony with the spirit of baseball," said President Tener. "I do not believe that the American League intends taking any such action. I am quite sure that the National League club owners would not even consider such a move. In the first place the satisfactory placing of the star players would be a difficult problem to decide, in fact it seems that it would be impossible to accomplish it in a way which would be satisfactory to all clubs."

Other baseball men who talked about the plan were surprised at such a radical suggestion from a veteran club owner like Charles A. Comiskey, the owner of the world's champion White Sox. For many years this general shifting of players has been one feature of the game which the leagues have been trying to avoid. The sale or trade of star players from weak clubs to stronger clubs has caused no end of trouble in baseball, and only a year ago the National League passed an amendment forbidding the sale of players from one club to another after a certain date in the season.

Season before last, when Manager McGraw went out to strengthen his club he got Sallee, Herzog, Zimmerman, and Lew McCarty, an aggregation which brought the pennant to New York last season. The New York club's wholesale raid caused so much commotion in the league that steps were taken to avoid a repetition of the practice. The same sort of objection was made in the American League when Tris Speaker went to Cleveland. Any move which at all savors of syndicate baseball is now frowned upon by both baseball club owners and baseball public, so it is improbable that the major leagues will venture any such radical move.

Syndicate baseball has been successfully wiped out of both leagues, the last instance of it being a few seasons ago when Charles W. Murphy of Chicago was also interested in the Philadelphia club. The same ownership of any two or more clubs has a tendency to make the public suspicious. The Federal League could not gain the confidence of the public because it was known that the league placed its players around in different clubs.

The very fact, however, that Owner Comiskey even suggested such a proposition indicates that the club owners are worrying about the coming season. The draft is sure to hit the clubs harder than it did last season and several of the clubs are in danger of losing many of their younger players.

Manager Christy Mathewson of Cincinnati has jumped into the baseball market in opposition to Manager McGraw in an effort to land Al Mamaux, the Pirate pitcher who is now under suspension by the Pittsburgh club. Matty has already made offers for the star twirler, although Manager McGraw started plans to get him just as soon as he appeared to have trouble with Manager Bezdek last season.

Mathewson has always been a great admirer of Mamaux, who has one of the easiest and most natural styles of any pitcher in the league. President Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh has given McGraw and Mathewson little encouragement about Mamaux and it is believed that after the severe taste of discipline he had last year he may come back to the Pirates ready to follow the club's training rules next Spring.

The war tax on baseball admissions is going to be an important problem with the major leagues next season. It is calculated by baseball statisticians that if the game has a normal year the Government's income from the tax will be more than $400,000. There is a strong possibility, however, that the tax will have the same effect on baseball attendance as it is having on theatre patrons and will tend to keep down the patronage.

Most of the club owners who have expressed an opinion on the question maintain that the public will have to pay the tax and not the club owners. President Hempstead of the Giants said recently: "If the clubs pay the 10 per cent. it will surely mean a big deficit, and if the tax is collected from the patrons it may become very annoying and interfere with the attendance. The problem of each city on the circuit is different, and although I have plans of my own I do not care to express them at this time because it is quite essential that we act as a unit in the matter."

President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club says: "The Government requires that the public must pay the tax of 10 per cent. on all admission tickets to the Internal Revenue Collector." President William F. Baker of the Phillies expressed himself on the subject as follows: "The question is impossible to answer at this time. It is important and I do not care to give an opinion offhand." August Herrmann of Cincinnati, Chairman of the National Commission, says: "The tax must be paid by the patrons. This is specifically provided for in the bill."

President Ebbets has received several letters from officers with the American expeditionary force in France thanking the Brooklyn club for the baseball supplies which the club has sent abroad from time to time. One comes from W. W. Bunting of the Twelfth Engineers, who says, "I am a great baseball fan and they especially please me." George A. Belters of the Fourteenth Engineers sent this word from abroad: "Just a line to thank you very kindly. It was very kind of you and the boys appreciate it very much." William A. Cross of the Twenty-eighth Infantry also writes from France: "I wish to thank you for your generosity and thoughtfulness." Lieutenant Ira I. Hodes of the 106th United States Infantry, Camp Wadsworth, acknowledges the receipt of supplies as follows: "You have done your bit as a good American citizen. It should be a matter of pride that you have assisted."

President Tener, in discussing the action of the National Association at Louisville in voting down the proposal for a new circuit made up of the so-called Continental League, said: "These are the days of democracy. For baseball officials to try to force anything upon the minor leagues which they do not want would be autocratic, and we are opposed to autocracy of any kind. The territorial rights of the minor leagues must be and will be recognized and kept inviolate. They must agree to any proposed change in their circuits, and if they do not want such changes made their wishes must be recognized."

Ball Players Seek Redress.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 20.—Manager John C. Nee of the Dayton Central League baseball team and two members of the team brought suit against the Big Four Railroad in the local courts today for damages aggregating $70,000 for personal injuries received in a wreck on the road last August. The players set out that they were permanently injured. Nee asks $10,000, Patrick A. Donahu $50,000, and Fred Derrick $10,000. Louis Schetter, pitcher, filed suit here last Saturday for $50,000.

NAME OFFICIALS FOR GAME.

The Central Board of Officials, which has charge of making appointments for intercollegiate football games, has announced the names of the men selected for the game between Rutgers and "Cupid" Black's Naval Reserves at Ebbets Field on Saturday. The officials will be: Referee—George Beavers, Jr., West Point; Umpire—Edward B. Cochems, University of Wisconsin; linesman—E. T. Madden, Yale.

The Newport players will arrive in New York Friday morning, and they will have the use of Ebbets Field for practice in the afternoon. Arrangements are being made to quarter the Reserves at the Crescent Athletic Club clubhouse in Bay Ridge.

The Rutgers eleven will take no preliminary workout on the Flatbush field. The privilege of using it any afternoon this week was granted to the New Brunswick collegians, but Coach Sanford decided that his team could play as well without the preliminary work.

NASH COACHES AT RUTGERS.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 20.—Bob Nash, former all-American tackle, responded to Coach Sanford's call for help and led the scrubs in the hardest scrimmage of the season against the Rutgers 'Varsity this afternoon. The teams were kept at work for more than an hour, the 'Varsity keeping the ball most of the time and trying out its offense. From now on Rutgers will spend the time in perfecting the plays which will be used against Cupid Black's Naval Reserves on Saturday.

FORDHAM SEEKS A GAME.

Villanova Unwilling to Play on Thanksgiving Day.

The Fordham football players resumed practice yesterday in preparation for Saturday's game with the Pelham Bay naval reserves. No scrimmage was held, but Coach McCaffery ordered a brisk workout at running down under punts followed by signal work. The Maroon coach aimed at polishing off the rough spots in the new plays that were used against Cornell on Saturday. All the players were in uniform and showed no ill-effects from the contest at Ithaca.

Raymond Delehanty, the Maroon football manager, has been endeavoring to secure Villanova for a Thanksgiving Day game, but the Pennsylvanians sent word last night that they were unwilling to meet the Bronxmen. As Rutgers has an open date on Thanksgiving Day, the Maroon and the Scarlet may again meet. Rutgers easily defeated Fordham several weeks ago, but Coach McCaffery's team has improved since that contest.

ARMY POINTS FOR BOSTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The Army eleven began active preparation today for the season's final game with Charley Brickley's Boston College team here next Saturday. The drill saw all the 'Varsity men in the lineup except Vandegraff. The big Alabama cadet was in togs kicking placement goals and punting, but he hardly will be used against the collegians, as his leg injury still bothers him. Either Dickson or Smith will face Boston College at the uncertain tackle position.

The cadets look for the "Hub" collegians to offer the stiffest opposition since the Notre Dame contest. Oliphant's kicking improves with each workout. He is doing all the Army's punting now. Walker seems a fixture in the backfield, and is without question a "find" of the local season. He is heavy and fast, and next to Oliphant is the best ground-gaining back developed at West Point in years.

COLUMBIA'S HOPES REVIVE.

Injured Players Return to the 'Varsity Fold.

The Columbia 'Varsity romped through its practice yesterday with renewed hope, inspired by the return of Captain Dal Cochran and Rosen. These men have been on the injured list for two weeks. Cochran will again play at his place at right end, where Parnes has been substituting, but Rosen will go in either as a full back or as a guard, for Sam Weinstein has usurped his old position as quarter back. Houlahan, who was on the sidelines during the Wesleyan game, will report for practice tomorrow, fully recovered from his threatened breakdown, due to overwork and overtraining.

Yesterday the Columbia 'Varsity scrimmaged with the eleven from Manual High School for thirty minutes, using mainly forward passes and end runs. Coach Metcalf evidently believes that his warriors can make a formidable weapon of the aerial attack, and also wishes to make the long end runs effective, for the Wesleyan line repeatedly broke them up on Saturday.

Today the Blue and White eleven will have its hardest and longest practice of the week, in preparation for the big game of the year, that with New York University on South Field Saturday. With all the regulars out in uniform again, the chances for a Columbia victory are looking better and better as the days go by.

N. Y. U. 'VARSITY SPEEDS UP.

New York University's football warriors continued their preparation for the Columbia game on Saturday with a varied drill yesterday. At first the men were put to punting and forward passing. Then Coach Wall lined up both 'Varsity and freshman teams and put them through a signal drill. The two elevens later were brought together for a scrimmage which lasted until the practice closed in the dark.

CANADIAN HORSES LED BY SILK BIRD

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 20.—Canadian turfmen were favored today by the inclusion of a race in the program for horses foaled in Canada. It received eight entries, and all went to the post. A. Bulcroft's Silk Bird had been showing such good form in races against American-bred horses that the special race was looked on as a good thing for the son of Oiseau-Silk Hose. C. Kummer was intrusted with the mount, and this young jockey made no mistakes. Keeping Silk Bird well up with the pace, he drew away at the end to win rather easily from the old campaigner Amphion.

Top o' The Morning, the king of sprinters early in the Spring, slipped further back in the rating when he failed to get a place in the third race at six furlongs that attracted the best field of the day. Passport Regulations Put Prohibitive Ban on Meeting.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 20.—There will be no Fall and Winter meeting at the Juarez race course. Announcement to this effect was made here tonight by Colonel Matt J. Winn, Manager of the Juarez track, who said that recently adopted passport restrictions on travel to and from Mexico had made the holding of a meeting impossible.

Jacobs Captures Clark House Run.

The first weekly invitation road run of the Clark House A. A., which was held yesterday, was won by B. Jacobs in 21:12. The race, which was over a three-and-one-half-mile course, was a nip-and-tuck struggle between B. Jacobs of Clark House and Joe Sherman of the Morningside A. C. Jacobs, by a great burst of speed in the last 100 yards, finished fifteen yards in front of his opponent. Following Sherman, after an interval of six seconds, came M. Seinfeld of the Kings County A. A.

ERASMUS FIVE TRIUMPHS.

Earns a 21 to 17 Victory After Uphill Struggle.

Erasmus Hall High School's basketball team scored its first victory of the season yesterday by triumphing over the Cathedral Prep five in a closely contested game on the Erasmus court by a score of 21 to 17. The Cathedral team, with superior passing and all-round team work, ended the first half with the score in its favor by 10 to 8. Up to within four minutes of the end of the game the Erasmus lads were still trailing their rivals, but a cluster of five field goals then gave them the victory.

BASKET BALL WILL START.

Columbia Squad to Have Its First Practice Today.

The first practice for Columbia's 'Varsity basket ball five will take place this afternoon. C. C. Latour of last year's 'Varsity will be in charge of the Blue and White ball tossers until the coach is chosen. The prospects for the team are bright, as there are three of last year's regulars available. These are Latour, a forward, and Farer and Farrell, guards. As Farer and Farrell are playing on the 'Varsity football eleven, they will be unable to report for practice before Monday, when the local gridiron season will have ended.

Among the promising candidates are Alexander, Newman, Tomberg, Lester, Blumer, and Vollmers. Alexander and Newman were on the 'Varsity squad last season, while the other four men constituted the nucleus of the 1920 freshman five.

COLLEGIANS ON NAVY FIVE.

Granite State Basket Ball Team Will Play All-Stars on Sunday.

Members of the Naval Militia stationed on the U. S. S. Granite State, at Ninety-sixth Street and Hudson River, have organized a basket ball team to play against the various colleges and clubs of the East. The team is composed of former college stars. It has already won the navy championship, by defeating the sailors of the U. S. S. Santiago, former holders of the title. In addition the five has scored victories over two independent teams.

Among those on the team are Eberlie and Ningard, formerly of Cornell; McCaffrey of Holy Cross, Scully of Ohio Northern, and Archbald, a former High School of Commerce player. The five will make its first appearance in this city next Sunday, when it plays the Manhattan All-Stars at Manhattan Casino. A number of open dates remain on the team's schedule, and Manager Schmeelk is anxious to fill these with games against prominent club or college teams.

BROWN ATTACK IMPROVES.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 20.—The Brown eleven showed a strong attack in the practice this afternoon and scored one touchdown against the second team. Gordon was once more in the scrimmage, but Shaw and Weeks are still on the side lines nursing their injuries. Massed attacks through the line won the touchdown for the regulars, with the 'Varsity line opening up big holes for the backs to plunge through.

Tables were reversed, however, when Pollard's second team was carrying the ball. An 83-yard march toward the 'Varsity goal was made by the all-American half and his protégés. On their own 10-yard line, the 'Varsity line stiffened, and the threatened touchdown was turned aside.

W. AND J. FEARS AIR ATTACK.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Nov. 20.—Washington and Jefferson's football team began preparation this afternoon for the Notre Dame game of Saturday. Captain McCreight, half back, Smith, left guard, and right tackle Stein were out of the lineup. They are still suffering from injuries. However, all but Smith are certain to be in the game on Saturday and even he may be able to play.

A drill in defending against forward passes comprised most of the work of Washington and Jefferson, as Notre Dame is particularly proficient in this department. Smith has been Washington and Jefferson's best defender against the pass and if he he is unable to play Washington and Jefferson's chances against the Westerners will be materially reduced.

Coach Metzger, who saw Notre Dame defeat the Army, asserts that Notre Dame has a line far superior to that of West Virginia, so that it is imperative that the weak back field attack be improved upon. The two teams are about even in weight and each has a veritable pony backfield averaging less than 160 pounds. The game will be the final one for Notre Dame and the last at home for Washington and Jefferson.

SOLDIER ELEVENS TO MEET.

Two Fast Teams to Play at Ebbets Field.

Football elevens representing Fort Hamilton and the Twenty-fourth Company of Fort Hancock, the latter post champions, will clash in a benefit game at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Thanksgiving Day morning. The proceeds from the game will go toward a fund to provide athletic paraphernalia for enlisted and drafted soldiers.

On the Fort Hancock team are a number of former college players. The team includes Faber, a former Princeton soccer player; Caffrey, Catholic University; Gidding, Mount Carmel; Kiernan, Virginia University, and Liebowitz, a former High School of Commerce gridiron star. A band concert by the Fort Hamilton musicians will precede the football game. Admission will be 50 cents, 75 cents, and $1.

GEORGIA-PITT GAME OFF.

Proposed Red Cross Football Battle Definitely Abandoned.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—The proposed game between three-year unbeaten football teams of the Georgia School of Technology and the University of Pittsburgh, on Nov. 27, for the benefit of the Red Cross, has been definitely abandoned. Word has come from Pittsburgh that an epidemic of illness in that team, which put the Captain and two other players on the hospital list, and the team's remaining hard schedule would prevent it from meeting the Georgia team.

Road Run Set for Nov. 25.

The annual road race of the Young Men's Hebrew Association will be held over the Washington Heights branch's course of about four miles on Sunday. All members of the association's metropolitan league are eligible to compete. A number of prizes will be distributed among the leading runners, including two silver cups to the first and second enlisted athletes to cross the finish line.

PETRA CARA BRINGS BIG PRICE AT SALE

Buyers from out of town opened their pocketbooks at the Old Glory sale in Madison Square Garden yesterday and the result was a decided improvement in prices over those obtained on the opening day. It remained, however, for a Brooklyn amateur reinsman to carry off the prize of the afternoon in the six-year-old mare, Petra Cara, a daughter of Peter the Great, which was raced on the Long Island tracks last season with much success.

Petra Cara was brought out for sale after good prices had been realized for the lots immediately preceding. The Longacre Stable, which raced the mare at the end of last season, stimulated interest in the handy looking trotter by the statement that though eligible for the 2:19 class, she is likely to trot in 2:05 next year. The bidding was lively and Petra Cara was finally knocked down for $2,550, the bid of W. H. Leese, who was acting for Herbert Hanan, a member of the Parkway Driving Club, who drives his own horses in amateur races.

Another good racing prospect over which the professional drivers indulged in lively bidding was the eight-year-old pacer Ashlook, which has been timed in a race in 2:02¾, and is rated as one of the best 2:12 pacers in the country. Ashlook has beaten many of the stars in the last three years and is equally at home on half-mile or mile tracks. He was knocked down to J. F. Kingsley of Medford, Mass., for $1,800. Paul Kuhn, noted as the man who gave $31,000 for The Harvester, bought several mares for his stud farm in Indiana, and Walter Cox also purchased some new racing stock.

WALTHOUR IN SIX-DAY RACE.

Two new teams were combined last night for the six-day race at the Garden during the week of Dec. 2-8. Bobby Walthour was coupled with Paul Suter and Tom Bello paired with Vincinzo Madonna. The "Dixie Flier" has been riding against Suter all Summer in Europe, and says the Swiss motor-paced champion will surprise the local riders.

Suter is on his way from Europe with Egg and Dupuy, the winners of last year's race, the trio being expected here this week. Bello and Madonna will represent Italy in the race. Both riders are new to the six-day game.

Wellman will make a final effort today to sign up Frank Kramer, who has agreed to ride providing Goullet is coupled with him, but the latter has refused to hook up with the ex-champion. Goullet and Kramer have been riding together in distance events at Newark all Summer, but the Australian figures Kramer would not last through a six-day grind.

CAT SHOW STARTS TODAY.

The sixteenth annual show of the Atlantic Cat Club will be held today and tomorrow in the Winter garden of the McAlpin Hotel. A large attendance is expected, as the proceeds will be devoted to the Red Star Animal Relief Association for the care of American Army horses. There should be a particularly fine exhibit of Persian cats, as the fanciers in this country are now breeding better specimens than can be obtained in Persia. The show will open each day at 10 A. M. and close at 10 P. M.

PRIZE FOR HOCKEY LEADERS

Tom A. Howard, the hockey coach, has presented to the Long Island Interscholastic Hockey League one dozen hand-made hockey sticks as one of the prizes for the championship series that shortly is to start at the Brooklyn Ice Palace. Last year Coach Howard gave a similar prize, the sticks going to the team scoring the greatest number of goals during the season.

At a meeting of the league at the Brooklyn Ice Palace yesterday it was decided to award the sticks differently this season. From the total number of goals scored will be subtracted the total number of goals registered against a team, the prizes going to the school that has the best total at the end of the year. This method takes into consideration the defense as well as the offense of the teams.

CITY A. C. TO HAVE BOXING.

Amateur Bouts to be Held on Dec. 11 and 13.

Officials of the City Athletic Club, in West Fifty-fourth Street, yesterday applied to the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. for sanction to hold an amateur boxing tournament on Dec. 11 and 13, and are now going ahead with arrangements to stage the exhibitions. Bouts will be held in five classes, at 108, 115, 125, 135, and 145 pounds. A representative entry from the leading local boxers is expected. To the winners and runners-up in each class will go diamond rings, while safety razors will be distributed among the losers in the semi-final bouts. Each competitor will receive a scarfpin as a souvenir of the tournament and the club with the largest entry of boxers will be awarded a trophy.

Newcome Will Train Soldiers.

The Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. has announced that Harry Newcome of the Long Island Athletic Club, a member of the local body's Board of Managers, has received an appointment as director of physical training of the army Y. M. C. A. at Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C. Newcome was ordered to report immediately to his new post to take up the athletic training of the soldiers at the Southern camp.

RAIN SCARES GOLFERS.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 20.—Rain interfered with the qualifying round of the fourteenth annual Autumn golf tournament at Pinehurst today, less than fifty players completing the round and most of them finishing in decidedly poor figures. R. R. Sharman of Youngstown won the medal in 41, 43—84, with R. C. Shannon 2d of Brockport second at 89. Franklin Gates, winner of the Carolina tournament, took 90 today, and Clarence Hobart, medalist in that tournament, had 94. Ninety-seven proved good enough for admission to the first sixteen. Two sixteens and an eight qualified for match play.

N.Y.A.C. TO ELECT OFFICERS

Present Incumbents Expected to be Nominated Again.

A Nominating Committee to pass on candidates for election at the annual meeting on the second Tuesday in January was chosen last night by the New York Athletic Club. The committee is composed of Judge Henry A. Gildersleeve, James W. Hyde, Fremont W. Spicer, J. Emory Douglass, Henry J. Bigham, John J. Mulcahy, and George H. B. Mitchell.

The committee will accept and pass on all candidates for the different offices in the Winged Foot organization, but it is not expected that nominations will be made in opposition to the present incumbents. This fact simplifies the work of the committee, for it remains only for its members to formally nominate those at present in office. Dr. Graeme M. Hammond is President now, and while it was rumored some time ago that he would be unable to accept another term because of the war, indications point to his re-election.

TEST FOR FAMOUS COACHES.

Systems of Haughton and Glick to be Used by Army Teams.

When the elevens of Camp Upton and Camp Devens test strength at the Polo Grounds on Saturday the contest will in a measure be an exposition of the coaching systems which are in vogue at Harvard and Princeton. The Camp Upton eleven is being coached, and may be led, by Frank Glick, the former Captain and quarter back at Princeton, while the redoubtable system of coaching which brought Harvard to the fore in recent years, as expounded by Percy D. Haughton, has been drilled into the Camp Devens team by this famous coach. It is therefore anticipated that a spirited game will result in which the standard of football will be on a high plane.

There is keen interest in the contest at both of the training camps and a big delegation of men will come from Camp Upton to give vocal support to its team. It is expected that there will be fully 1,000 soldiers who will make the trip to New York, and they will march through the city on their way to the Polo Grounds, led by the regimental band. There will also be a drill by the men when they arrive at Brush Stadium. This will be the first appearance in this city of such a large body of men from the national army.

AYER, Mass., Nov. 20.—The rule barring officers at Camp Devens from playing on the football eleven was waived today and seven former Harvard 'Varsity stars began practicing with the team for the game with Camp Upton on the Polo Grounds, New York, next Saturday. The new members of the squad are Captains Charles S. Coolidge and J. H. Harris, and Lieutenants W. F. Robinson, Thomas C. Thatcher, Morrill Wiggin, Henry W. Minot, and Melville Weston.

Reece Leader in England.

Thomas Reece appears to be the present master of English billiard professionals. "Hazard," in Sporting Life, London, says: "Reece seems destined to become the player of the year unless something unforeseen occurs. Harry Stevenson made a hack of Champion Inman a few weeks ago. Tom Reece followed suit, and then Reece gave Stevenson a severe trouncing." Nevertheless Inman and Stevenson will not play Reece unless he accepts odds of 900 in 16,000.

NOMINATIONS MADE FOR TURF CLASSICS

Leading Thoroughbreds Among Those Named for Suburban, Metropolitan and Toboggan.

Nominations for the Suburban, Metropolitan, and Toboggan Handicaps were announced yesterday by A. McL. Earlocker, Secretary of the Westchester Racing Association, disclosed that interesting racing is in store for the visitors at the Belmont Park track next Spring. The entries are more remarkable for quality than for quantity, for although there is a slight falling off numerically, the horses engaged are the best that can be found in the country. The Metropolitan Handicap at a mile has received the largest entry of eighty-one, against eighty-six received for the 1917 running. Sixty-one noted thoroughbreds are nominated for the Suburban at a mile and quarter, and seventy-nine are named for the Toboggan sprint of six furlongs.

The stars of the turf are all engaged in the Suburban, the classic inherited by the Westchester Racing Association from the Coney Island Jockey Club. If all those entered go to the post next year's Suburban will mark the first meeting of the great three-year-olds Omar Khayyam and Hourless, with old Rosebud, the handicap king of the dying season. Also it will bring into competition with older horses the two-year-old star, Sun Briar. Papp, the great rival of Sun Briar, has not been entered in the Suburban, but has been nominated for both the Metropolitan and the Toboggan.

Canadian owners may cut a big figure in the big events next year, for Wilfrid Viau has entered both Omar Khayyam and Westy Hogan in the Suburban and Metropolitan, and the latter in the Toboggan. J. K. L. Ross, another Canadian, has the distinction of making the largest entry for the Suburban. He has named six horses, not one of which has raced on metropolitan tracks previously. Mr. Ross's entry of six includes two unnamed imported horses, one a colt by Lemberg, and the other a filly by Bridge of Allan. James Butler, John W. Corrigan, and Harry Payne Whitney have each named five for the Suburban. That R. T. Wilson, Jr, still believes Campfire, the two-year-old champion of last year, is a distance horse, is proved by the fact that he has entered him for the race over the mile and a quarter route, while another entry if interest is John W. Schorr's Cudgel, which Westerners believe is the equal of Omar Khayyam and Hourless.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Monday......5¼ " " " " " "

Woolen Goods Not Plentiful.

"However debatable may be the question of a raw wool shortage," said an authority in the local dress goods market yesterday, "there is developing a very real shortage of woolen goods. Ordinarily at this time of the year the mills would be soliciting our business for the coming Fall season. This year we find difficulty in placing our orders at all. With a large percentage of the mills of the country devoting themselves almost exclusively to Government business, the loomage left to supply civilian requirements is totally insufficient to meet the demand."

Heavy Underwear in Demand.

In the local knit goods market, it is said, there is an unusually large demand this Fall for heavy underwear, in spite of the moderate weather which has obtained thus far. While there is no scarcity of union suits, there is reported a serious shortage in separate shirts and drawers for both men and women. Though the mills have caught up fairly well on deliveries, they are not in a position to accept duplicate orders for near-by shipment. With jobbers pretty well cleaned out of merchandise, retailers whose stocks are low are finding it hard to fill in. Possibility of relief seems to be a long way off because of the necessity of supplying Government needs before any other work may be done.

Silk Underwear Again Active.

Reports from the local department stores indicate that the dullness which has prevailed for a month or so in silk underwear for women has given place during the last few days to a fairly active demand. While in some stores it is said the trend is unmistakably toward black, others report the standard colors for these garments as still the best sellers. The envelope chemise in crêpe de chine is said to be particularly well sought. In many cases it is preferred with but slight decoration. Camisoles are also popular, and in these, as in other garments, simplicity seems to be the keynote. The princess type slip-over gown is said to be coming back to favor again.

Why He Doesn't Get Them.

A local dry goods man who has some goods that are already several weeks behind schedule due him from a certain bleachery, recently "put up a holler" for them. The bleachery wrote that the goods were ready, but that they could not get freight cars enough to make deliveries of them and the goods that were ahead of them. After a reasonable wait the merchant wrote again. This time the reply said that the bleachery could not get the necessary wooden cases in which to ship the goods. Came another wait; then the merchant wrote a third time. Yesterday he got his third reply, which was to the effect that the bleachery's freight elevator had "gone wrong" and that it would require ten days or two weeks to put in a new one. Now the merchant is expecting to hear any day that the goods cannot be shipped because the bleachery has been blown up by a German spy.

Stylish Stout Suits Selling.

Here and there in the local women's ready-to-wear trade many wailings have been heard this Fall of a falling off in demand for suits of the popular and middle-priced grades. But never a complaint has come from those manufacturers specializing in "stylish stouts." They are said to have experienced none of the dullness which has been evident from time to time in the rest of the trade. Several of these manufacturers report that they have had one of the best seasons in their history. It is also said that a better grade of merchandise has been sold this year than formerly.

Hard Coal Receipts Small.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that, with October setting a new high record for anthracite production, the lightness of current receipts in this market is mystifying unless it is kept in mind that mining activities received a setback early this month, by reason of holidays and washouts, as well as by an unusual car shortage at collieries in the Schuylkill region served by the Pennsylvania Railroad. Output is again on a heavy basis, and a change for the better should soon be apparent at tidewater. There has been no noticeable increase in the tonnage of free bituminous available to trade buyers, but there has been a slight increase in the tonnage available to consumers as a result of the modification of a Federal rule which allows jobbers more latitude in distributing coal they have contracted to buy.

Lack of Individuality Hurts.

The Retail Millinery Association of America has received from a prominent local buyer a letter which bewails the lack of individuality on the part of the manufacturers, in part as follows: "This [the sameness complained of] results from the lack of independence or resourcefulness. At present buyers are swamped with a million samples of satin-brocaded or gold-embroidered hats. It is true that they sell well—but it is also true that by every manufacturer putting his whole mind on that one style, to the exclusion of any other style that might prove a ready seller, resourcefulness and individuality are lost. Many manufacturers are making Palm Beach hats, but only a few—not more than may be counted on one's finger tips—have created a line that has real merit."

Afternoon Frocks Liked.

In the late Fall duplicate orders which have been coming in for the last few weeks to local manufacturers of dresses for women it is said that afternoon dresses, from the simple styles to the most elaborate, are receiving frequent mention. The more dressy type of afternoon frock is particularly popular since the need for economy has developed, because it can be worn on formal evening occasions as well. Black satin is said to be one of the leading fabrics in these garments, though other silks in blue, taupe, brown, and green in various shades have sold well.

With liberal shipments of crude rubber being received here and with practically no trading of any real account, prices in the local market for this commodity continue to soften. The plantation grades are still relatively stronger than the Brazilians, but both of them are now below the 60-cent mark. In the case of the Eastern rubbers, at least, the spot price is slightly lower than that which holders are asking for the forward positions. Yesterday up-river fine was held here at 56½ cents a pound, spot, with up-river coarse and upper Caucho ball quoted respectively at 38 and 35 cents. First latex crêpe was held at 58½@59 cents for spots and at 59 cents for nearby forward positions. Smoked sheets were quoted at 57 cents, spot.

Printcloths were the most active in the local gray goods market yesterday, though buyers also took a certain amount of sheetings and drills. Bids of 10¾ cents for March 38½-inch 64-56s were referred to the mills by some commission houses, but it is understood that sales for this delivery were made at the price given. November-December deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60s brought 11¼ cents, but when these goods were wanted for December-February shipment they could be had for an eighth less. Spot 39-inch 68-72s again sold at 12¾ cents, and bids of 7⅛ cents for 27-inch 56-52s were successful. For February and March delivery, sales of 38½-inch 48 squares were made at 8½ cents. Sheetings sales included further lots of 48-square, four-yards at 13¼@13½ cents, according to delivery, and additional sales of 56-60, four-yards at 14 cents. For January-February shipments of 30-inch 3.25-yard drills 16½ cents was paid. Spot printcloths closed this way:

Prices Continue Upward Movement—Interest in Creation of Credit Board.

The stock market displayed more cheerfulness yesterday than for some time past, and opening quotations showed a resumption of the upward movement in prices which started in the closing hour of Monday's session. Not only was there a manifestation of a lack of selling pressure, but the buying of rails, shipping, coppers, and industrials showed that the demand was of a character which suggested a strengthening of the general market position. Transactions were approximately three-quarters of a million shares, compared with about 406,000 on Monday, and in the case of the more active issues the net gains ranged from 1 to 4½ points. The closing was strong.

The budget of news was on the whole interpreted as bullish; the report of the sinking of five German submarines in a single day attracted more attention than the sinking of the American destroyer Chauncey in a collision; the developments in the Italian situation appeared to be encouraging, and the closing of the Interstate Commerce Commission hearings on the 15 per cent. freight rate increase left the Street confident that the request of the carriers would be granted in due course. The publication of the final Liberty Loan figures by the local Federal Reserve Bank, showing that nearly $950,000,000 had been received on the second war loan in this district, was gratifying as indicating the ability of this financial centre to supply funds required by the Government. The temporary suspension of resort to the so-called "money pool," established for aiding the flotation of the Liberty Loan, has not vitally affected the money market, the rates for call loans ranging yesterday from 4½ to 5 per cent. and closing at the lower level.

In banking circles keen interest was taken in the intimations received from Washington that Government officials were engaged in working out plans for the creation of a Credit Board, the function of which will be to aid manufacturers and contractors supplying materials to the Government to finance their requirements. Thus far there has been a lack of uniformity in the Government's dealings with contractors, and, while in many cases advances have been made, in others they have been refused, with the consequent result that difficulties in financing production of goods needed for war purposes have delayed deliveries and caused some embarrassment. The need of a Credit Board is particularly important at this time by reason of investment market conditions and the inability to market the usual form of short-term notes. It has been suggested that later on it may be necessary for Congress to modify some of the provisions of the Federal Reserve act with the view of adjusting the banking machinery to the current conditions, which are extraordinary on account of the war and the continuous flotation of Government loans.

The advance in stock market prices was led by the rails, and the general list showed gains with the exception of Delaware & Hudson, Lehigh Valley, Pennsylvania, and Baltimore & Ohio preferred, which recorded fractional declines for the day. Mercantile Marine preferred advanced to 98¼, closing at 98⅛, or 4½ points above Monday's final quotation, while United States Steel moved up to 96⅞, at which price it closed, the gain being 1 point.

Trading in the 3½ and 4 per cent. Liberty Loan bonds was active, with sales totaling nearly $3,000,000; but the movement was just the opposite of that of Monday, when the 3½s advanced and the 4s declined. Yesterday the 3½s closed at 99, a loss of .20, while the 4s sold as high as 97.80, closing at 97.74, a gain of .24.

Exchange moved against Italy, 8.80 being quoted for checks, compared with 8.72 on Monday, while the cable rate for francs moved a fraction in favor of France.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Trading Reflects Confident Feeling Over Coming Allied Conferences.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—With the possible early issue of a part of the French loan, the imminence of another colonial loan and so many short-term Government issues available, the gilt-edged section of the Stock Exchange maintained surprising firmness today and reflected the confident feeling over the conferences proceeding with the allied visitors.

There were dealings in the new war bonds at par and numerous transactions in Shell oils, rubber and industrial shares at steady prices. Money and discount rates were quiet. Russian exchange was easy.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The Bourse was quiet today. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 59 francs 75 centimes for cash. Exchange on London was quoted at 27.28 and the new 5 per cent. loan at 87.75.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Readjusting Government Deposits.

New York banks subscribing to the last issue of United States Treasury certificates of indebtedness, which were offered in an unlimited amount, were asked yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank to convert their book credits into cash by sending to the Federal Bank their check for the proceeds. This was done, and immediately the Reserve Bank redeposited with the banks and trust companies about two-thirds of the funds thus transferred. It is estimated that of the $685,000,000 of the certificates sold, the New York district took about $350,000,000; and it is assumed that yesterday's shifting of funds reduced the Government deposits of New York banks by about $125,000,000. These funds will no doubt be used by the Reserve Bank in making advances to the foreign Governments on behalf of the Treasury Department.

Demand for British Bills.

Announcement of the resumption of offerings of ninety-day British Treasury bills by J. P. Morgan & Co. brought yesterday a large volume of applications, both from local banks and from out-of-town institutions. It was said that the higher discount rate, 6 per cent., made the bills unusually attractive. At the close of business last night it was reported that about one-half of the $15,000,000 had already been disposed of and that the balance would probably be sold today and tomorrow. Efforts are being made to place the bills with out-of-town institutions and to relieve the New York market from the pressure as much as possible, and in line with this general policy, several large applications from local institutions were cut down yesterday, one bank receiving $250,000 instead of the $1,000,000 it had asked for. The first lot of $15,000,000 of the bills matures today and will be paid. The first lot was sold at a discount of 5¼ per cent., but subsequent lots were put out at 5½ per cent.

Costs More to Ship Currency.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York has sent out a letter to banks advising them that in view of the increased postage rates it has been necessary to revise the schedule of costs for the shipment of Federal Reserve notes. Including registry and insurance, the mailing of 1,000 $5 bills will cost $1.79, and $6.54 will be charged for the shipment of 1,000 $100 bills. The Federal Reserve Bank is still willing to pay for the transportation of gold and gold certificates, and will exchange same for Federal Reserve notes without charge to banks.

The recent strong rise and continued firmness in the cotton market have given rise to renewed talk of Government regulation in this staple comparable with the regulation already introduced into practically all others. One of the largest New York cotton operators, however, gave it as his opinion yesterday that the regulation of cotton would be attended by far greater difficulties than have been experienced in iron, steel, coal, or copper. "Merely putting a maximum price on raw cotton," he said, "would simply mean taking the profit out of the grower's pocket and putting it into the spinner's, and no Congress, least of all a Democratic Congress, could be persuaded to do that. But to take the whole cotton trade, from the raw cotton to the infinite variety of fabrics made from it, and eliminate the 'vicious circle' of rising prices, would be a job before which any man might quail."

Prices and Consumption.

There is an increasing feeling apparent in the cotton trade that regulation, if it is finally forced by conditions, will be the result not so much of soaring prices as of shortage of supply, and will take the form, not of price regulation, but of restrictions on consumption. Something of the sort is already foreshadowed by the action of the British Government in restricting the output of the Manchester mills. At present, however, thirty-cent, or even higher, cotton seems to hold no terrors for the trade, so long as spinners are willing to pay the price, which, of course, will ultimately be passed along to the consumers.

Freight Rates and Profiteering.

A big shipping man yesterday objected to the use of the word "profiteering" in connection with the shipping industry, pointing out that not only have the reputable American shipping companies one and all accepted strict Government regulation and turned over their ships and entire organization to the Shipping Board with a good grace, but they and the big British firms alike are now under such complete control that they cannot "profiteer" if they want to, and in any case are earning far more money for the treasuries of their respective Governments than they are for themselves. The point is, however, that it is not the big fellows who have made trouble, but the little fish who have slipped through the net, and not even all of those.

The owner or charterer of an American steamer of 2,500 tons or over cannot "profiteer," for his ship is already requisitioned by the Government and he is running her for Government account; moreover, at the least suspicion of anything improper in the way she was being handled, the Shipping Board would take her away from him. The owner or charterer of a neutral ship, or American ship or steamer of less than 2,500 tons, under charter, cannot "profiteer," because every charter must be approved by the Shipping Board Chartering Committee, and that committee, composed of men who know all the ins and outs of the shipping business, scrutinizes it carefully. But the owner of a neutral or a small American ship not subject to requisition, running her himself and picking up cargo where he finds it, cannot as yet be reached, because he makes no charter to be approved. If there were plenty of tonnage available, the sheer weight of competition of the great bulk of regulated tonnage would keep rates for these small fry down. But there is something like a tonnage famine—and the tonnage picaroons profit accordingly.

Tobacco Against Candy.

Smokers are frequently taunted with the unpatriotic nature of their expenditure on tobacco, observes The London Economist, which points out that the usual defense is the assertion that a very high proportion of the cost goes to the Government in the form of taxes. "The man or woman who accuses the smoker of unpatriotic conduct is always a non-smoker, and most non-smokers are devotees of sweetmeats," declares this serious financial publication, adding, "The accusation lies ill in their mouths; for, whatever may be said for or against smoking in war time, there can surely be no defense for expenditure on sweetmeats, especially in view of the deficiency in sugar supplies. That the sweet-eating public have a bad record is shown by the report of Maynards, Ltd., the well-known sweet and confectionery retailers. This company's profits increased from £36,104 in 1914-15 to £46,836 in 1915-16, and to £71,663 in 1916-17. For the last year the ordinary shareholders received a dividend of 20 per cent. and a bonus of 1 shilling per share, which is another way of describing a distribution of 40 per cent. For the year 1913-14 they received 10 per cent. These facts provide a small but a glaring illustration of our frequent contention that large sections of the public are falling very far short of their urgent duty in curtailing unnecessary expenditure and lending the proceeds to the Government to carry on the war."

U.S. TRUST IN FEDERAL BANK

The Board of Trustees of the United States Trust Company unanimously voted at a special meeting yesterday to apply at once for membership in the Federal Reserve Bank. The resolution authorizing this step attributes it to "the vast financial requirements of the present war and the appeal of the President of the United States."

The action of the United States Trust Company was received with much interest in the financial district, as the long history and always conservative policy of this institution had given rise to the general opinion that it would be among the last, if not the last, important State institutions in New York to come into the fold of the new order. The trustees had already voted to make the Federal Reserve Bank the depositary of its surplus funds.

"During this company's entire corporate existence," President Sheldon of the United States Trust Company says in his report to the trustees, "we have steadfastly adhered, in theory and in practice, to what we believed to be the fundamental distinction between a trust company and a bank. This distinction has heretofore rendered direct membership in the admirable Federal Reserve System neither necessary nor helpful to us. The situation is now, however, radically changed. The appeal of President Wilson and the urgent money needs of the country make it the duty of every financial institution to come forward with all the moral, as well as financial, aid which it can lawfully furnish."

Bethlehem Dividend Declared.

Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation yesterday at the regular meeting declared the usual quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the A and B common stock and an initial 2 per cent. quarterly dividend on the new 8 per cent. preferred stock, both dividends being payable Jan. 2, 1918, to stockholders of record Dec. 15. President Grace, in a brief statement following the meeting, said that the Bethlehem, in common with other steel companies, was feeling the shortage of railway transportation facilities, particularly in securing raw materials and fuel.

A Larger Income with a Smaller Capital

The man with $1,000 today can invest conservatively and get as good, if not a better, income return than he could with $1,500 a few years ago. To help meet the increased cost of living, investors should make every endeavor to get the maximum income present-day investment conditions make possible.

To Compensate for Increased Taxation

investors with funds available can purchase some of the strongest bonds, notes, and preferred stocks at prices, compared with a year or so ago, that are most attractive. The difference between present and former prices in the great majority of cases more than discounts the new taxes to be paid.

THE COTTON MARKET

The local cotton market yesterday manifested some symptoms of regaining its equilibrium after the latest strong upward turn in prices, and throughout a day of fairly active trading prices moved sluggishly, within rather narrow limits, the close finding the entire list steady, at a net decline of 1 to 5 points, which indicated the stationary character of the market.

Monday's close had been so near the top that the long traders had little difficulty in scoring new high records for the season in January and March contracts, although these represented only slight actual advances. This occurred in the early trading, when for a time the market looked likely to develop continued strength on reports of a better ocean transport situation and consequent increased exports. There was considerable realizing among the cautious, however, and it was soon evident that the market had at least temporarily reached its maximum.

It is reported that the British Government has allotted 40,000 tons of shipping to the cotton trade for December, against 25,000 tons for November, and sufficient, it is believed, to take care of the present allowed consumption of the Manchester mills. News of this development, however, together with firm spot reports, no more than sufficed to steady the market. Southern spot markets were officially reported unchanged to 7 points higher. At New Orleans 10,491 bales changed hands at 28 cents.

Exports for the day were 19,513 bales, making 1,575,530 for the season to date.

NEW HAVEN ASKS INCREASE.

Passengers Would Pay More Under Proposed Change.

In an application filed with the Public Service Commission yesterday the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company asked for permission to change its schedules so that it might increase both its passenger and freight rates without the customary thirty days' notice. The proposed new tariff makes no change in the commutation rates, but it is proposed to increase all local one-way passenger fares from 2½ cents a mile to 2¾ cents, and all mileage fares from 2¼ to 2½ cents.

The principal passenger increase affecting residents of this city is that contemplated on the Harlem Branch, extending from 133d Street to New Rochelle. This line is now divided into zones, upon each of which a five-cent fare is charged if a ticket is bought at one of the company's stations. Otherwise the company exacts the legal rate, which is in excess of 5 cents.

The company wants to increase these zone rates to 6 cents, which would make the fare between this city and New Rochelle 18 cents, instead of 15 cents, as at present.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

For one reason or another the movement of wheat at Western points is falling off and receipts yesterday were little more than half of last year's movement. It has been evident, however, throughout the entire season that wheat is moving to the mills through different channels and less is appearing at terminal points. Bradstreet's visible showed an increase east of the Rockies of 2,061,000 bushels, while west of the Rockies there was an increase of 491,000 bushels.

CORN.

The corn market was apparently oversold on Monday, and prices yesterday rallied sharply on covering, closing 1⅜c to 2⅝c net higher. At best the market is a narrow one and feverish fluctuations are anticipated until stocks are built up and the cash position adjusts itself more thoroughly to a new crop basis. In the local cash market new yellow corn was strong; new yellow quoted at $2.13¾, cost and freight New York, shipment this week; Argentine, $2.05, free on board cars New York, to arrive.

OATS.

The market for oats was strong, closing with net gains of 1¼@1⅜c. There was a good demand from shorts and prices were influenced by the advance in corn, and also by firmness in the cash position. Receipts at Western points were larger, but it was said that country offers were smaller. Government agents were apparently buying in the West, and this gave the market a firm tone. The local cash market was strong. Standard quoted at 75@75½c; No. 2 white, 76c; No. 3 white, 74½@75c; No. 4 white, 74@74½c; fancy clipped white, 76@78c; ordinary clipped white, 75@77c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was firmer on a better demand stimulated by reports from Liverpool to the effect that the market there was strong and that the Government has advanced maximum prices all along the line. The firmness in hogs and the advance in corn were also factors, and prices closed at about the best. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 25,000, estimated for Wednesday 38,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 4,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was easy, closing with net losses of 6 to 20 points. The November position showed the greatest decline, and was directly influenced by tenders of 5,700 barrels on November contracts. These large deliveries were believed to reflect an easier spot position, while, moreover, the market recently has been influenced by an easier tone to the crude market. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market was more active yesterday with the price movement rather irregular, although it seemed that the lower level was attracting a better demand and that a somewhat steadier tone had developed. European buying orders were reported around the ring, believed to be for French account, which attracted considerable interest, while there was covering by repeat local sellers and perhaps a little trade buying. The market opened 2 points higher to 2 points lower, and sold about 3 to 6 points net higher during the morning. Offerings increased slightly at this level, and reactions followed with the close net 1 point lower to 3 points higher. A moderate demand was reported in the local spot market with prices unchanged at 7¼c for Rio 7s and 9¼c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

No fresh developments occurred in the sugar market, and very little sugar is obtainable in this territory, the consumer being able to buy in a small way only, and retailers in most instances being bare of supplies. Michigan and Ohio beet factories are now in full operation, but the car shortage is delaying rapid distribution, and there has been no relief possible in the Eastern States. Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged. New crop Cubas are offered in this market for shipment January-February-March at 4⅝c free on board Cuba, with lower indications asked for, and at open price, to be that ultimately fixed by the International Sugar Committee. Spot prices are nominally unchanged as follows: Centrifugal, 6.90c; molasses, 6.02c; cost and freight, 5⅝c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—The shortage of fine fresh creamery has not been relieved and the market made a further advance of about ½c. At the higher rates there is quite a scramble for goods and a very firm feeling. Choice qualities are sympathizing a little in the improvement, but there is still quite an accumulation of what are classed as secondary grades and the values for these are much the same as of late. Storage creamery moving better. Ladles slightly firmer and packing stock steady. Creamery, higher than extras, per pound, 46¼@47c; extras, (92 score,) 45½@46c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 42½@45¼c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 40@42c; thirds, 38@39c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 47½@48c; extras, 46½@47c; firsts, 43½@46c; seconds, 41@43c; creamery, held, higher scoring than extras, 43@43½c; extras, 42½@42¾c; firsts, 40½@42c; seconds, 39½@40½c; thirds, 38@39c; State, dairy, tubs, finest, 44@45c; good to prime, 40½@43½c; common to fair, 35@40c; renovated, extras, 41c; firsts, 39½@40c; lower grades, 35@38c; ladles, current make, firsts, 33½@34c; seconds, 33c; lower grades, 31½@32½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 33c; No. 2, 32c; lower grades, 30@31½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 8,707 cases, not including 3,850 cases in transit for export. Strictly fancy qualities of fresh gathered are scarce and promptly salable at firm prices. Average prime and lower grades are fairly steady, but the demand is supplied with the moderate offerings, and values continue extremely irregular. The moderate trading reported in storage eggs is at about steady prices, but the movement is not sufficient to give a very substantial foundation to the situation, and the tone is still somewhat irregular. Nearby eggs in light supply, but the demand is limited and selective, and values continue extremely irregular. Qualities must be exceptionally fine to reach top quotations. Fresh gathered extras, per dozen, 54@55c; extra firsts, 52@53c; firsts, 48@51c; seconds, 42@46c; thirds, 35@40c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 34@35c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@33c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 32@33c; under grades, 28@31c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 34½@35c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 33@34c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 31@32½c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 24@30c; refrigerator, nearby whites, 38@44c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 75@80c; ordinary to good, 60@72c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 58@75c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby whites, pullets, 53@60c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 55@65c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 55@61c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 48@58c.

Odd Lots and Your Financial Security

There is some reason why thousands of thrifty Americans all over the country have been steady purchasers of the best investment stocks and bonds at the prices recently prevailing.

Under conditions of war-taxation and uncertainty, when wealthy investors have been handicapped in furnishing their normal support, there has been one particularly encouraging factor. There has been steady buying by small investors everywhere. They have been purchasing in amounts less than 100 shares—putting their surplus funds into Odd Lots.

If you have surplus cash available at the present time, study the press reports on financial conditions over the past few weeks and note how practically every authority has commented upon the significance of this continued Odd Lot absorption of securities.

It is a popular financial fallacy that the most powerful banks, firms, institutions and individuals in finance pre-determine the course of events. Such banks, firms, institutions and individuals would be the first to deny this imputation of power, as far as any great economic crisis is concerned. They gain their power and prestige by interpreting correctly both economic developments and the reaction of the general public.

The fact that for weeks past hundreds of thousands of men of moderate means have bought the best type of time-tested stocks and bonds in a sensible way—within their income—seems to us important evidence as to the confidence which the average American feels in his Country and in his Company.

INVESTIGATE SALES OF LIBERTY BONDS

NEW LIBERTY 4S RECOVER

The Committee on Business Conduct of the New York Stock Exchange began yesterday an investigation of the sale of Liberty Loan 4 per cent. bonds. George W. Ely, Secretary of the Exchange, sent out a letter requesting all members to furnish detailed information regarding their transactions in Liberty bonds on Saturday, Nov. 10; Monday, Nov. 12, and Tuesday, Nov. 13. Up to Saturday, Nov. 10, the new 4 per cents had sold at par or above, but on that day $114,000 changed hands at 100 and a similar lot at 99.98. On the following Monday there was heavy trading and the bonds declined to 99.96 and on Tuesday they dropped to 99.80.

The Board of Governors will meet today and it is expected that they will consider the reports filed with the Committee on Business Conduct. Brokers have been asked to give the names of the parties for whom and to whom they sold and bought Liberty bonds on those three days, together with the prices paid. It is understood that the purposes of the inquiry is to find out if any member traded in bonds which were not immediately available for delivery, the Exchange authorities having promised the Liberty Loan Committee that transactions would be restricted to cash dealings in actual bonds. It appears that a bulk of the selling orders executed on the Exchange were received from out-of-town, and some brokers said yesterday that Chicago received the bonds before New York did.

Trading Believed Restricted.

It was understood that bonds traded in on the Exchange were restricted to the so-called "cash bonds" sold over the counter during the loan campaign, of which the New York Reserve Bank distributed about $60,000,000 and the rest of the country approximately $40,000,000.

The fact that the Exchange's inquiry pertains only to transactions on the three days mentioned, gave rise to the assumption that the Stock Exchange saw no reason to question the more recent dealings. A member of the Board of Governors said last night that the investigation sought merely to establish whether or not all the members had lived up to the agreement to deal only in bonds for immediate delivery.

Sales of the 3½ and 4 per cent. Liberty Loan bonds on the Exchange yesterday amounted to $2,997,000. The 3½s sold up to 99.22 and closed at 99, the low for the day, representing a net loss of .20; while the 4s recovered from Monday's sharp decline, selling as high as 97.80 and closing at 97.74, a net gain of .24.

Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company, said yesterday that it was necessary to call the people's attention to the fact that the Liberty Loan was still the Liberty Loan even though the campaign for subscriptions was over. "Apparently a great many people do not feel this way about it," he said. "They seem to think that, having bought Liberty bonds on the Government's offering, their obligation is fulfilled and that the matter of selling them is of no consequence whatever. The contrary is true."

Resale of Bonds Opposed.

As indicating his attitude and that of the New York bankers generally, Mr. Mitchell read the following excerpts from a letter to an out-of-town institution which had been sent by the National City Bank.

"We will gladly, if desirable, or necessary, make you a loan of $—— against the bonds mentioned in your telegram, carrying same any reasonable length of time. We will end the matter according to your convenience insofar as to make the expense light for you and to patriotically co-operate with the Government in helping to take care of the general situation, but we dislike to see you, or others similarly situated, throw into the general market just at this time the allotment of bonds which you have subscribed for, and feel it would be directly opposed to the line of public policy to lend our aid in financing transactions in the nature of an immediate turnover. Here in New York the banks are united in a patriotic undertaking to carry any bonds subscribed for in this district, to a practically unlimited extent; for as long as a year if necessary, on 10 per cent. margin, and at the rate the bonds bear, using the rediscounting facilities afforded by the Federal Reserve Bank, if necessary, to carry this out, and we feel that every other district should do the same, and all districts are morally under the strongest obligation to support the national credit in the war crisis by absorbing their own allotments, which were made proportionally to the wealth and banking resources of each section; and that the banks should use the machinery available for that purpose by carrying the bonds and making a market for them at home.

"It does not help any to subscribe for bonds and then offer them for resale in the generall market, as this only enhances the difficulties of the present situation. * * *

"This frank communication is not intended to tell you how to run your business, however, or reflect in the least on your patriotism, but rather to urge you to carefully consider the necessity of all these things. The war is forcing us all constantly to think in national and international, rather than local terms, and we must all work together under the stress of present conditions to distribute the unusual burdens of the time over the country as equally as possible, not only at present, but still more so in the future, in all of which I feel sure you must fully agree with me."

According to dealers the heavy selling orders executed on the Stock Exchange on Monday and yesterday came principally from the West and South.

Treasury Adopts Plan to Prevent Rush at Tax-Paying Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—To avoid concentration of tax payments on one date the Secretary of the Treasury, through the Federal Reserve banks, will receive subscriptions at par and accrued interest for a limited amount of Treasury certificates of indebtedness payable June 25, 1918, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum from Nov. 30, 1917.

These certificates will be issued in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and $100,000, and payment must be made upon allotment but not before Nov. 30. Treasury certificates now outstanding will be accepted in payment at par, with adjustment of accrued interest. Allotments will be made in the order that subscriptions are received. Federal Reserve banks will receive subscriptions, but the right is reserved to reject any subscription and to allot less than the amount of certificates applied for, and to close the subscriptions at any time without notice.

Collectors of internal revenue will receive certificates of this issue at par and accrued interest in payment of income and excess profits taxes when payable at or before maturity of certificates. These certificates will not be accepted in payment of bond subscriptions.

The certificates will be exempt both as to principal and interest from all taxation now or hereafter imposed, except as to estate or inheritance taxes and graduated additional income taxes, commonly known as surtaxes, and excess profits and war profits taxes.

After allotment and upon payment Federal Reserve banks will issue interim receipts pending delivery of certificates. Qualified depositaries will be permitted to make payment by credit for certificates alloted to them for themselves or their customers up to an amount for which each shall have qualified in excess of existing deposits when so notified by Federal Reserve banks.

CREDIT BOARD PLANNED TO AID MANUFACTURING

Federal Commission May Determine Financial Needs of War Contractors and Provide Funds.

It was learned yesterday that officials in Washington are at work formulating plans for the establishment of a Credit Board, the purpose of which will be to attend to the credit needs of manufacturers and contractors who are filling war orders for the United States Government. The details of the program are not yet available, but it is understood that among other things this board will determine the financial requirements of contractors and arrange for the financing either by having the Government make them cash advances or by other means.

Thus far some contractors have been able to obtain advances, but others have not, depending on the department with which the contractor has been dealing and the character of the goods he has been supplying.

Wall Street attaches much importance to the proposal for the creation of a Credit Board, for the reason that present market conditions are unfavorable for the flotation of short-term loans and that without governmental aid the production of various kinds of materials essential for the prosecution of the war will naturally be impeded. It is thought quite likely that when Congress meets next month efforts will be made to obtain legislation designed to amend the Federal Reserve act, with the view of permitting member banks to borrow from the Federal Reserve Banks on their own notes secured by obligations of corporations, issued for short periods, not exceeding two years, and formally approved by the Federal Reserve Board. Such an amendment, it is argued, would permit of financing that was sought by the issuance of ninety-day notes under a two years' renewal agreement, but which the Federal Reserve Board has ruled are "undesirable as investments for Federal Reserve Banks," a ruling which is tantamount to a decision that the notes are not eligible for rediscount.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The United Light and Railways Company is reported to be contemplating a new note issue to retire the outstanding $750,000 in 6 per cent. notes maturing Jan. 1, which may be made sufficient at the same time to cover some additions, extensions, and improvements.

A. A. Housman & Co. have published a circular on "Peace Stocks," dealing with twelve industrial stocks likely to prove as attractive when the war ends as now.

FAVOR HIGHER RATES ON BANK DISCOUNTS

Advisors of Reserve Board Also Would Give Preference to Paper Backed by Liberty Bonds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—General increase of discount rates, with special preference for commercial paper secured by Liberty bonds or Treasury certificates of indebtedness, was recommended today by the Federal Reserve Board's Advisory Council at the end of its quarterly conference with the board. Action on the recommendation probably will be taken by the board within two weeks.

Most of the board members believe that under the easy money conditions indicated by the Liberty loan payments last week something should be done to discourage inflation, promote sound business conditions, and prepare for a healthy absorption of future Government issues of securities. Easy absorption of the second Liberty Loan issue was reported by the bankers. They said that even the movement of about a billion dollars into Federal Reserve banks last week from the 18 per cent. installment payment, caused almost imperceptible disturbance of business and financial conditions, inasmuch as the money was redistributed by the aid of the Reserve system.

The country was reported generally as in a healthy economic condition with especially marked improvement in the labor shortage within the past two or three weeks.

The members of the board present were Daniel C. Wing, First National Bank of Boston; J. P. Morgan, New York; L. L. Rue, Philadelphia National Bank; W. S. Rowe, First National Bank of Cincinnati; J. CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Notwithstanding there was little in the way of definite news, the session on the Consolidated Exchange was broad and active with the trend almost persistently upward. There were occasional reactions, but they were due almost entirely to profit taking by traders. There were many who took small profits, but the ease with which the market absorbed these offerings checked the recession. The market was the broadest in more than a week, and the volume of trading was almost 75 per cent. greater than Monday's.

The Members of the National Child Welfare Exhibit Association, Inc., at a meeting duly convened this 14th day of November, 1917, desire to change the corporate name of said Company from that of the "National Child Welfare Exhibit Association, Inc.," to that of the "National Child Welfare Association, Inc.," for the reason that the new name will more correctly describe the proposed work of the Association.

BIG CURRENCY INCREASE.

Two-thirds of Outstanding Amount Was Issued in Past Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Rapid rise in the amount of currency in circulation is shown in a report issued tonight by Controller of the Currency Williams. He says that two-thirds of the outstanding currency consists of national bank and Federal Reserve notes issued during the year ended Oct. 31.

Of the $1,949,000,000 currency in the United States on that date $1,301,000,000 consisted of those two classes of notes issued within the year by the Controller. The larger proportion, or $976,000,000, was Federal Reserve notes, and $325,000,000 was in national bank notes. The total of both kinds of notes outstanding was $1,644,000,000.

Mr. Williams explains that "the large increase, $689,746,000, during the year in the amount of Federal Reserve notes outstanding is due mainly to the issuance of Federal Reserve notes against the deposit of gold or gold certificates with the Federal Reserve agents, the amount of gold and silver certificates so held Oct. 31, 1917, being approximately $600,000,000."

During the year the Controller's office redeemed and destroyed $464,000,000 of currency.

Reports that the shortage of one-cent pieces had caused Clearing Houses in several Eastern and Middle Western cities to determine to issue paper scrip, to be circulated locally instead of pennies, reached the Treasury today, and were met by an immediate effort to ship more small coins eastward from the Denver and San Francisco Mints. Five million one-cent pieces were on their way to Chicago, to relieve the shortage in the Middle West, and the movement of small coins will continue through December, to accommodate holiday shopping demands in Eastern cities.

ELECTRICAL MEN MEET.

Discuss Plans for More Efficient Trade Co-operation.

Representatives of all branches of the electrical manufacturing, contracting, and jobbing industry last night at the Garden Theatre discussed plans for more efficient co-operation between electrical interests in the metropolitan district. Louis K. Comstock, President of the Conference Club, presided. The meeting was called for the purpose of giving an impetus in New York to the movement inaugurated at the annual convention of the National Electrical Contractors' Association held at New Orleans last month, for the better merchandising of electrical supplies and appliances through the retailer.

W. L. Goodwin, one of the originators of the co-operative plan among all branches of the industry, explained what has come to be known as the "Goodwin plan," which is to have the various interests in the trade understand their functions better and to work more in harmony with each other. Mr. Goodwin laid emphasis on the establishment of retail distribution of electrical materials at fair prices to the consumer. The speaker said that the retail end of the electrical business should be popularized. Other speakers told of the advantages to be derived from closer co-operation in the different branches of the trade, not only from a trade point of view, but as making for greater efficiency in meeting any demands from the Government for electrical equipment for war purposes.

OCTOBER IMPORTS DROP.

Withdrawals of American shipping for the transportation of troops and supplies for the army in France, coupled with the inability of the Entente countries to maintain shipments in October, were responsible for establishing a new low level for monthly imports at the Port of New York. A compilation made public last night by Byron R. Newton, Collector of the Port, covering entries of foreign merchandise here in October showed them to have been materially lower than in February, the first month of unrestricted German submarine activity, and, in fact, the lowest in any single month since the start of the European war, in August, 1914, not even excepting August and September of that year, when shipping circles were in a panicky condition.

According to Collector Newton, total entries of merchandise of all kinds here last month aggregated only $91,319,486, or $6,515,402 less than in February. In June imports here reached $154,901,984, thus making a record for any single month of the present calendar year. Since June, entries have steadily declined. Although last month's total entries exceeded those of the corresponding month one year ago by approximately $2,000,000, the gain was in imports of raw commodities, such as rubber, hides, copper, and nitrates. Last month's imports from Europe were below those of October, 1916.

English imports last month were returned as having a value of $8,335,805, or $5,000,000 less than in February, while France, which in February laid down merchandise at New York worth $8,073,724, dropped in October to $4,734,879. Italian imports here last month were only $1,663,796, against $2,149,215 in February. Strangely enough, Russia made a big spurt in October, and landed merchandise, mostly in the form of raw materials, valued at $3,061,954. This compared with $34,571 in February and $763,067 in September. Russian entries here in October of last year were set down at $20,925. Nothing came from Germany or Belgium last month, but Austria-Hungary was credited with imports valued at $456.

OPTIMISTIC OVER RAILROADS

Washington Officials Hope All Danger of Strikes Is Past.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Concessions made by both the railroads and the heads of the four brotherhoods as a result of the present wage issue are taken by officials as complete assurance that America's warfare will go forward to the end unhampered by the possibilities of transportation tie-ups over wage difficulties.

The offer of the roads to place their interests in the hands of the President for decision and of the brotherhoods to mediate any questions of wages, it was pointed out today at the office of the Board of Mediation and Conciliation, had not been limited as to time. They will be effective until peace is won.

Officials believe that such unqualified adhesion to the principle of settling disputes through discussion eliminates whatever chance there might be of a traffic strike due to misunderstandings, and the negotiations commencing Thursday at the White House, when President Wilson will confer with the brotherhood representatives, are looked upon as likely to make this still more certain.

Word that two strikes had been averted by the attitude of railroads and employes toward the war reached the Board of Mediation today. Wage differences which threatened a walkout of engineers and firemen on the New York, New Haven & Hartford will be arbitrated through an agreement reached by the two sides. The management of the St. Louis and San Francisco cleared away misapprehensions of their men by notifying the railroads' war board here that they were willing to meet their employes for a discussion of grievances over working conditions and mediation is expected to forestall a rupture.

REPORT ON CITY GARDENS.

The Mayor's Committee on Food Gardens, which was organized in April, submitted its report yesterday. It says, in part:

"What has been accomplished by the committee may be summarized thus:

"An acreage of 1,035 in large plots was brought under cultivation through apportionment by the committee.

"Small gardens to the known number of 11,881 were worked under direction of the Park Commissioners.

"Not less than 1,000 acres of city land were brought under professional tillage as a result of the committee's activities.

"Estimates of the yield of land under such cultivation as was the rule this year range from $300 to $800 an acre.

"The small gardens, it is estimated, each returned $25 worth of vegetables, an aggregate of not less than $275,000. New York City, in other words, this year raised $675,000 worth of its own vegetables."

STRICT CURB ON GRAIN PIT.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The days of the big "bulls" and "bears" on the Chicago Board of Trade are ended until the war is over. Directors of the board have agreed with the Attorney General's office to adopt the following drastic rules the moment a big operator starts a drive either "up or down" in the grain market:

(1.) Placing a limit upon the amount of grain a trader may trade in during a single day;

(2.) Placing a limit upon the breadth of fluctuation which grain prices may take, either up or down, in a single day.

Both rules may be passed by the Directors under the broad authority given to them some time ago by the Board of Trade membership, which authorized any action which might appear necessary as a wartime expedient.

HYLAN ATTACKS RESEARCH BUREAU

Aroused by a statement by R. Fulton Cutting, which appeared in Sunday's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES, Mayor-elect John F. Hylan yesterday made a bitter attack on the Bureau of Municipal Research, which, he said, was receiving financial support from a number of wealthy men, of whom Mr. Cutting was one. Last night Judge Hylan followed up this attack with another on E. P. Goodrich, Director of the Municipal Research Bureau.

Judge Hylan declared that the Bureau of Municipal Research had failed in its vigilance when the Mitchel administration was putting through alleged "land grabs." John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Frank A. Vanderlip, Francis Lynde Stetson, and George W. Perkins were named among those who contributed to the maintenance of the Bureau of Municipal Research.

In his supplementary attack on Director E. P. Goodrich, Judge Hylan declared that despite declarations made by him that by following his suggestions the city might save from nine to ten million dollars in its annual budget, no saving had been effected either in this or last year's budgets, in the preparation of which, according to the Mayor-elect, agents of the Bureau of Municipal Research had assisted. Judge Hylan also quoted from reports of an investigation of the Municipal Civil Service Board, conducted by the State Civil Service Commission, to show that at one time Mr. Goodrich was drawing several salaries from the city at the same time.

At the offices of the Bureau of Municipal Research, 261 Broadway, it was stated yesterday that Director Goodrich had been summoned to Washington, and that no answer to Judge Hylan's attack would be made until his return, probably today. Mr. Cutting, it was said, was out of town.

In attacking the bureaus Judge Hylan said in part:

Tells of Land Deals.

"One of the Sunday papers gave considerable space to a statement by R. Fulton Cutting imputing that the newly elected administration desired to do things which have been prohibited in the past ten years as a result of the activities of the Bureau of Municiapl Research and reformers of the type of Mr. Cutting and the present Fusion reform administration.

"The Bureau of Municipal Research, which Mr. Cutting says for ten years has been helping the City Government, is practically maintained by the Rockefellers and those in sympathy with them. Why did not this bureau stop the Rockaway Park grab, the Dreamland Park deal, the Erie Basin land scandal, the acquisition of East River 'park,' which is no park at all; the Court House extravagances in Manhattan and Brooklyn; and why did it not condemn the attempt to purchase seven piers from Mr. Bush for $10,100,000, which is more than twice their value; and why did it not condemn the desperate effort of the Mayor to put over a perpetual franchise for the New York Central along the west side?

"Why did not the bureau prevent the gouging of the city by the Morgan, Kuhn-Loeb banking syndicate in the $100,000,000 loan, and why has not this Bureau of Municipal Research done a single thing to prevent the Mitchel administration from raiding the civil service?

"The Morgan firm and Kuhn-Loeb firm are large contributors to the Bureau of Municipal Research. Did the bureau fail to check the land grabs because Clarence H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, and other title companies' and Realty Associate directors are contributors to the bureau?

"Among the contributors to the Bureau of Municipal Research are John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who, according to the list of contributions submitted to the Walsh Industrial Commission two years ago, contributed $125,000; Frank A. Vanderlip, head of the Rockefeller National City Bank; Francis Lynde Stetson, counsel for J. P. Morgan, who obtained a $50,000 fee under the dual subway contracts out of the city treasury after O. K.'ing the Interborough mortgage; the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, which is a large stockholder in the Realty Associates, whose officers are officers and Directors of the Realty Associates; George W. Perkins, who is a business associate of Rockefeller, Morgan, and Baker in the Steel Trust, Harvester Trust, and other large properties; Albert G. Milbank, director and counsel for the Borden Milk Company; George F. Baker, George B. Cortelyou, President of the Consolidated Gas Company."

Attacks E. P. Goodrich.

In his supplementary statement assailing Mr. Goodrich the Mayor-elect said:

"This is the same E. P. Goodrich who in the report of the State investigation of the Local Civil Service Commission is charged with being responsible for 'closed' specifications for wood block paving in the Borough of Manhattan, by which the Barrett Company obtained a virtual monopoly, and also the same E. P. Goodrich who, according to the report (p. 25) drew several salaries from the City of New York at the same time that he was drawing fees or salaries from other cities. I quote from page 25 of the Civil Service Report:

> The consulting engineer, E. P. Goodrich, appointed without examination under Section 386 of the charter, does not act as consulting engineer in the true sense of the term, but is the practical directing and executive engineering head of the department. There also is an assistant consulting engineer, Mr. Schaeffer, though the charter allows only one consulting engineer. Mr. Goodrich is also consulting engineer of the Court House Board. He receives $7,200 a year from the Borough of Manhattan, and $7,500 a year from the Court House Board. Until recently he has been consulting engineer of other cities, some of them being on the Pacific Coast, and he conducts a private engineering business, does the work for the Inebriety Board, and is the practical head of the Sewer Plan Commission, which is planning new sewers in Manhattan estimated to cost from fifty to one hundred million dollars. Charles E. Gregory, chief engineer of sewers, and very closely associated with Mr. Goodrich, is Secretary of said Sewer Plan Commission, which place and others he holds at Mr. Goodrich's suggestion.

"It is a significant fact that since the domination of the city administration by the Bureau of Municipal Research the budget of the city has grown by leaps and bounds, and the tax rate has increased accordingly."

BAN ON WOMAN'S PARTY.

Memphis Mayor, Expecting Defense of Pickets, Forbids Meeting.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 20.—Mayor H. H. Litty today refused to grant permission for the holding of a mass meeting here tomorrow night under the auspices of the Woman's Party, and announced that if such a gathering was attempted it would be dispersed by the police.

The Mayor said he understood speakers proposed to attempt to justify the action of the party's militants in picketing the White House at Washington. Women arranging for the meeting denied this.

HYLAN THREATENS SERVICE BOARD

Tells Mayor-Elect Effort to Save Fuel Will Not Lower Heat Requirements.

Mayor-elect John F. Hylan threatened yesterday to lead a delegation of citizens to Albany to demand the removal, or ousting through Legislative act, of the Public Service Commission for the First District, unless that body took steps to see that every provision of the law regarding the heating of cars was rigidly enforced in the case of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

"If the Public Service Commission does not compel the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to heat its cars during the coming Winter as required by law, I shall ask all civic bodies of New York City to accompany me to Albany to ask for the removal of the commission," said the Mayor-elect.

Judge Hylan's statement was made before he went on the bench in the Kings County Court yesterday forenoon. He declined to amplify his statement last night so as to make clear whether he would merely demand a change of the personnel of the Public Service Commission or urge its abolition by the Legislature. Judge Hylan had been aroused by reports in the morning newspapers which represented officials of the company as demanding from the Public Service Commission the right to reduce the heat in its cars below the forty degrees required under the present law, in order to save coal.

Chairman Oscar S. Straus of the Public Service Commission sent a letter yesterday to Judge Hylan in which he made it clear that there had been a misunderstanding and that there was no intention to reduce the heat below the required standard, but merely to adopt during the rush hours a different method of heating which, it was alleged, would result in the saving of fuel. Here is Chairman Straus's letter:

> Dear Judge Hylan:
> I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your favor of today and regret that the notice to you on account of the delay in my letter reaching you was too short to enable you to be present at today's hearing.
> It was made clear in today's hearing by the company that there is no intent to lessen the required standard of heat in the cars, as prescribed in the order of the commission, but to adopt during the rush hours a different method of heating than heretofore with a view of saving coal. I returned from Washington on Saturday night last, and while there I learned that the Fuel Administrator had under consideration the issuing of a request or order to the Public Service Commissions throughout the country to reduce heat so as to save coal. The commission has the patriotic desire to co-operate in every way possible, within the limitation of its powers, with the National Government without sacrificing the comfort and health of the traveling public under its jurisdiction.
> The commission has adjourned the hearing until two weeks from tomorrow, at 2:30 o'clock, with the suggestion that the counsel for the commission and the company should confer with a view of presenting to the commission on Wednesday next the proposed plan by which such saving of coal may be made without discomforting the public; and should such plan be acceptable the commission would permit the company to put such plan in experimental practice pending the resumption of the hearing. I think you will agree with me that if a provision can be made by which a large amount of coal can be saved by any practical plan, without detriment to the traveling public, this should be done.
> I shall be glad at all times to receive your suggestion and co-operation. Very truly yours,
> OSCAR S. STRAUS, Chairman.

Judge Hylan said last night that he had not yet had time to answer the letter. He would not say whether he would appear in person before the Public Service Commission when hearings on the B. R. T. car heating case were resumed.

OLD CHURCH RAZED BY FIRE.

First Congregational Destroyed and Another Damaged in Norwalk.

NORWALK, Conn., Nov. 20.—The First Congregational Church here was destroyed by fire today, the chapel attached to it partly burned, and the St. Paul's Episcopal Church set afire four times, and saved only after hard work by the firemen. The loss to the Congregational buildings is set at between $70,000 and $75,000, with nominal damages to the Episcopal Church and to two dwelling houses nearby.

Ann Waters of Rowayton, who jumped a considerable distance from the church spire, and Oscar Waler, who was hurt by flying timbers when the bell fell, are in the Norwalk Hospital suffering with paiful injuries.

The First Congregational Church was one of the earliest of all Congregational Churches in America, being organized in 1652, and the building burned today was a fine example of the church architecture of a century ago.

WILL your Officer's Uniform go to rags in transport or trench? Lots of turncoats, unworthy of a soldier's back, are slinking into Military Outfits. Mine are all wool; full weight; firm weave.

My Officers' Uniforms will resist the harshest rough-and-tumble use, because—pardon the word for the thought—they have "guts," a mighty important thing, either in a uniform or an army. On top of that, my slashing soldierly swank and splendid soldierly set-up.

THE MAN OR THE FIRM IN NEED OF A HEAVY DUTY TRUCK MAY NOT HAVE ANOTHER CHANCE LIKE THIS FOR MONTHS—PERHAPS FOR YEARS

FORTY-FIVE six-ton Packard trucks are to-day offered in the New York market for immediate delivery. We have been short of motor trucks for months. When these are sold we shall probably be short again. This shortage is general. Motor trucks are so indispensable for war purposes that business will have to wait.

By a stroke of particularly good fortune we have managed to corral these few six-ton chassis in the midst of this nearly universal drought.

With transportation conditions growing more acute every day and a hard winter just ahead, with horses few and high in price and with feed prices way up in the starry ether now and going higher, this is the time for every forward-looking man to act.

The money, time and inconvenience you will personally save by adequate haulage facilities subject to your own orders every minute of the day and night is only half the gain. By acquiring such facilities you are rendering national service of the first importance.

Wallace ADJUSTABLE Lamp

You'll want it on your toilet table, when you're dressing; you'll clamp it to your bed when you want to read at night; you'll fasten it to the arm of your easy chair. You'll put it into your bag when you travel, for it takes apart and folds up into a few inches of space.

The Wallace Lamp means smaller bills for electric current. Because it saves light by vividly illuminating a small area instead of giving a weak, diffused light throughout a large room.

HANDSOME BOOKLET: If unable to inspect the Wallace Lamp itself, write for free booklet showing its uses in colored pictures.
